Cadillac

New Goal for Twenty Million Motorists!

Research as to motor car preference indicates that some twenty million motorists would like to own a Cadillac, if they felt it within their economic means. And pictured here is the new "heart's desire" of these twenty million people—a motor car they will certainly aspire to with even renewed eagerness—the Golden Anniversary Cadillac! . . . They'll want it all the more because of its beauty—for this is unquestionably the most beautiful Cadillac of all time! They'll want it all the more because of its luxury—for the new interiors are gorgeous and regal as never before. And they'll surely want it all the more because of its performance! For this new Cadillac is so dynamic and responsive in traffic, and so restful and relaxing on the highway, that it's an extraordinary experience just to sit at the wheel. . . . So if you are among the millions who have their hearts set on owning a Cadillac—come see this great Golden Anniversary creation in our showroom. We know that your ambition to own the "car of cars" will be greater than ever—once you have seen how truly magnificent it is today.

Palm Beach Smart Set Playing Towie

"Towie", which had such tremendous popularity among Palm Beach socialites back in 1934, is staging a dramatic comeback this season, according to a survey. Among the smart set, who are ardent Towie enthusiasts: Princess Laura Rospigliosi, Mr. Clifford Vail Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Robert White and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald M. Craigmyle of the Everglades Club, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Gunster, Mrs. Frederick Hattersley.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, Mrs. Henry K. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Kirkland, Mrs. Horace Elgin Dodge, Mrs. Herbert Farrell, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene P. Lanfranchi, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Scott, Mr. Carl Trent, Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Webster, Mrs. Fred-eric Owsley, Mr. and Mrs. L. Seton Lindsay, Mrs. Middleton O'Malley Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Francis Ready, Mrs. John T. Dorrance.

A form of contract bridge, Towie is heralded as the game to curtail divorces. There is no bickering between partners, because there are none... it is a three-handed game. It also eliminates the great American headache... trying to find a fourth for bridge.

Originated by the late J. Leonard Replogle, Pittsburgh steel magnate and civic leader, the game was evolved quite by chance. It happened like this... one rainy afternoon in 1931, at the Traveler's Club in Paris, three friends decided to play bridge, but a fourth was not handy. So, Mr. Replogle concocted a three-handed game, which proved so popular, it has been evolving ever since. And, with the present reported revival, Towie is said to be now threatening bridge, Canasta and Samba.

Mr. Replogle, who spent the winters in Palm Beach, was head of the new corporation, Towie Inc. and co-author of the book on the game by William J. Huske, who was one of Ely Culbertson's most noted aides in popularizing Contract Bridge. The resort at that time, had a virtual corner on the board of directors of Towie Inc.

Present owners of Towie stock, copyrights and supplies, are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jennings, Brookfield Center, Conn., who purchased the rights about two years ago.

There are various explanations about how Towie got its name and how it should be pronounced. Some say it should be pronounced to rhyme with "thou" because it refers to the thousands of points which may be made or lost. Another theory, which came to light again recently claims, "Palm Beachers played the game for years, when it had no name and then... one night, Pauline Wanamaker announced in her 'Philadelphia baby talk accent'... 'Oh, deawie, I'm down a towie', which meant, she was down a thousand points." From that time on, according to the legend, the game was known as Towie, pronounced to rhyme with "zowie".

The exciting three-handed bridge game continued to gain popularity until World War II and then was practically forgotten in most circles. In Newport, Southampton, New York's Racquet Club and other select locations however, Towie continued although it did not get any new followers. The present Palm Beach revival in homes among the elite (the exclusive clubs haven't taken it up as yet), indicate a return to the Towie craze of eighteen years ago.

Cat Key Club, Cat Cay, Bahamas, B. W. I.

THEY COME FROM NEAR AND FAR to this tropical paradise of Cat Cay.—And the season at the exclusive Cat Key Club, in the picturesque island of Cat Cay, nestled in the Bahamas, is well underway, with many of its members and their guests arriving daily, by private or chartered planes, or on boats of all kinds, to participate in the many social and sports activities featured at this popular winter resort in the British West Indies. Cat Cay, a British possession, is headed by Mr. Louis Rice Wasey, well-known advertising executive, and Mrs. Wasey, who acquired the Island twenty years ago. They are often referred to as the King and Queen of Cat Cay, and with Mr. George W. Collier, capable manager of the Cat Key Club, have made certain that nothing has been overlooked to please and satisfy the visitors, whether it be for the first or annual visit.

Featured on the sports calendar at this secluded resort is big-game, deep-sea and reef fishing, which leads in popularity at this resort. Other sports include yachting, sailing, skeet, golf, tennis, swimming and bicycling. Social activity revolves around nightly cocktail and dinner parties, beach picnics on Thursday evenings, and dinner dances on Saturday evenings in Sir Bede Clifford's Patio.

Many cocktail parties were given in the Kitten Key lounge preceding the dinner dance held in the Patio. Gay hats and favors, the traditional red, white and blue decorations, multi-colored lights amidst gentle swaying palm trees, along with an American orchestra, enhanced the scenic affair.

Cat Cay winter residents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Pew Jr., of Bryn Mawr, Pa., entertain frequently at their imposing home. They were recent hosts to their houseguests Mr. and Mrs. Brenden P. Walsh of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. Jewett Todd of New York and Nassau. Mr. and Mrs. Tristran P. Colket of Philadelphia will arrive to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Pew the second week in March, and many parties will be given in their honor. Mr. and Mrs. Pew are the owners of the 120 foot luxurious yacht Mercury V, the pride of southern waters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Donnelly Smith of Baltimore, Md., arrived to be the guests of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Stringer at their winter home Sanjeran. Mr. and Mrs. George Campbell of York, Pa., who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stringer for several weeks, departed for their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rice Wasey entertained all members, and their guests at a cocktail party at their charming winter residence Second House recently. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Collier also entertained at a large cocktail and dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lamot duPont Jr., of Wilmington, Del., and Lamot duPont III, who celebrated his 20th birthday. Also arriving from Wilmington, Del., were Dr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Bowdle who stayed at the Manor House.

North Carolinians at the Cat Key Club, all on their annual sojourn are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKinley Bryan and Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ayers, all of Greensboro, N. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Phillips of High Point, N. C. Other recent arrivals at the Cat Key Club include Mr. and Mrs. A. Baker Barnhart of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. William B. Godsey Jr., of Princeton, N. J.; Mr. Edward G. Carpenter of York, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. James Bovard and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Walton Jr., all of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. John Gammie of Plandome, Long Island, have arrived to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith of Cardiff, Wales, who are on their annual visit at the Smith house.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hollinghead of Philadelphia arrived on their Mallard plane and are staying at Victoria cottage. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Dockson of Grosse Point, Mich., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fruehauf of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., who are on their annual sojourn at Strong House.

Pirate's Cove Harbour at Cat Cay is filled with yachts and fishing boats of all sizes these days. Mr. and Mrs. William M. Packer of Detroit, arrived aboard their yacht Suzanne VI, and are participating in the many social and sports activities featured at Cat Cay. They frequently entertain aboard their yacht. Other members and boat owners arriving were Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Bengston of Lake Geneva, Wis., who had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. James Culbertson of Glencoe, Ill., aboard their yacht Almardon. Mr. and Mrs. Dell Kroehler of Chicago arrived aboard the Lark, and while here, gave a large cocktail party in the Kitten Key lounge, with dinner following in the Patio. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kroehler and their son Peter, of Chicago, visited Cat Cay earlier in the season aboard the Lark.

Bostonians Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cameron Church and Mr. and Mrs. Shaw Sprague, arrived on the Sprague's yacht Lion's Whelp. The foursome played golf daily on the Windsor Downs course while at Cat Cay.

Cat Cay home owners to arrive this season, are Mr. and Mrs. Wendell P. Anderson of Detroit, who reside at Forever Ambling. Their beautiful yacht Escapade won second place in the recent Miami-Nassau Yacht Race, and is moored at the Cat Cay Yacht Club when not racing. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Ford Jr., of Grosse Point, Mich., also arrived at their winter home. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Matthaei also joined the Detroit contingent at Cat Cay and are at their attractive home Topside. Joining them for a visit are their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Matthaei Jr., and their son Frederick Matthaei III of Birmingham, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross D. Siragusa of Barrington, Illinois, ardent fishing enthusiasts, were recent hosts at a large cocktail party at their Cat Cay home Pop's Place, for all members and their guests on the Island. Also joining the Illinois colony here are Mr. and Mrs. John M. Olin of East Alton, Illinois, who reside at Trade Winds. Mr. Olin recently caught a 515 pound Maco Shark, setting an enviable record in these waters. Also arriving for their annual visit to the Cat Key Club are Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitchell Harper and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Price, all of Chicago.

Distinguished visitors to arrive the end of February at the Cat Key Club were His Excellency Major General Robert Arthur Ross Neville, Governor and Commander in Chief of the Bahamas, and Mrs. Neville, of Nassau. They were feted at many parties at the club during their visit to Cat Cay.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch T. Colwell of Cleveland, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Coolidge Crawford at their impressive home Hi-Tide.

Arriving aboard the Cat Key Club motor sailer Landfall, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Phillips of Oyster Harbors Club, Osterville, Mass., recently was Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McAleenan of Guilford, Conn., their daughter Miss Sheila McAleenan, a student at Goucher College; their son Patrick McAleenan, a Junior at Hobart College, and their guest Miss Valerie Patrick, a Wheaton College student. Mr. and Mrs. McAleenan were hosts at a cocktail party aboard the Landfall for many of the Islanders.

Cottage Colony

Society Life

CHARITY IS HOLDING THE SPOTLIGHT in early March, as Cottage Colonists give generously of their time and resources in the never-ending battle against the world's ills.

"The very best ever" colonists said of this year's 26th Annual Kiwanis Benefit. It was hardly over when along came the brilliant Red and White Ball at the Everglades, for the benefit of Good Samaritan Hospital. This year, as before the important names in Palm Beach society attended, making it a strong contender against the Washington's Birthday Ball as society's peak event of the season.

In connection with the Everglades Red and White Ball, Mrs. John S. Pillsbury was hostess at a meeting of the Auction Committee at her home, "La Chosa". Other members of the committee in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Webb. Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, Mr. John Wheeler Peck and Mr. John W. Salisbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Pillsbury have as their guests their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pillsbury, Jr., who have arrived from Minneapolis, Minnesota for a stay.

Colonel and Mme. Jacques Balsan entertained recently with a small luncheon at their Hypoluxo Island home.

A wedding of interest to Palm Beach took place in Havana, where Mr. Charles A. Van Rensselaer 3rd, cousin of Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer, and Miss Yolande Mascia were married February 23.

Mrs. Herbert Chester Greer, who is residing in her villa on South County Road, has as her guests her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Raese and their sons Richard Greer Raese and John Reeves Raese, of Morgantown, West Virginia, who will spend the remainder of the season here.

"Fergus Heath", the Island Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson, was the scene of the third in series of cocktail parties given for their friends this season by the Fergusons. The third party was in honor of their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Byrne, of Old Westbury, Long Island.

Mrs. Dudley S. Blossom and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Gale have arrived from Shaker Heights, Ohio, for a stay at "Figulus", Mrs. Blossom's South Ocean Boulevard estate.

Guest at another South Ocean Boulevard home is Mrs. Drew Pearson, who arrived recently from the Virgin Islands to be with Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, Sr., at "Fourth Estate".

Mrs. Dodge Sloane, who is occupying "Concha Marina" at South Ocean Boulevard and Jungle Road, was honored by a large dinner on the occasion of her birthday, at "Casa Giravento", the home of her sister, Mrs. Wesson Seyburn. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strawbridge of Philadelphia are late-season guests of Mrs. Sloane.

Mr. and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett have gone to Naples for the month of March, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Douglas Dillon, of New York are occupying the Bartlett home, "Valmar", at Hobe Sound. Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leffingwell Bartlett and small son, Peter, of Washington, D. C., in February.

of 2,155 pictures were entered in the contest, competing for top honors in the $18,000 purchase prize exhibition, with a number of the canvases and watercolors purchased by the school for its permanent collection. Mr. Tripp's honor-winning entry was an abstract landscape in oils which he also entered in the Society of the Four Arts Annual last year. The canvas won him honorable mention on that occasion, as well as at the Terry School.

Guests from the north are still coming to Palm Beach for late winter stays with friends and relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Church Paull are entertaining at their South Ocean Boulevard villa in honor of their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lincoln of Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Pearson have arrived from Philadelphia to join Mrs. Pearson's mother, Mrs. Arthur E. Newbold, Jr. at the home of Mrs. Newbold's father, Mr. Charlton Yarnall on El Brillo Way. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Smith Kelly, of New York, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lawton Taylor at the Taylor home on Golf View Road and Mrs. Weston Bigelow is visiting Mrs. Jay J. O'Brien at her home on Adam Road.

Count Cesare Sturani of New York is the guest of Mrs. MacSherry Robinson at her home on North Ocean Boulevard.

Entertaining a guest from California, her sister, Mrs. Mary L. Heilner, is Mrs. William L. Schultz, at her Australian Ave. home.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Milliken were hosts at a luncheon and swimming party at their home, "Sans Souci", in honor of Mrs. Milliken's son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Victor Bradford Strauss.

Entertaining for houseguests took place at "Casa Alexandro", the Jungle Road residence of Mr. and Mrs. Paulding Fosdick, in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Reeve Schlet, of New York; and at the Banyan Road home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Kirkland, when the Kirklands entertained for Dr. and Mrs. Charles Norton Breed, guests from New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell have as their guests Mr. Pell's sister, Mrs. C. Davies Tainter and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Davies Tainter, of New York. Other New Yorkers, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Earl Adair have returned to Palm Beach to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Maguire at their home on Clarendon Avenue.

Miss Alice DeLamar was hostess at a luncheon at her home on Ocean Boulevard in honor of Governor John Davis Lodge and Mrs. Lodge, much feted colony guests from Conn. Other guests were Mrs. Achilli Angeli, Pavel Tchelitchev, Mrs. Leavit Stevens and Mrs. Charles Henri Stevens, all neighbors of the Lodge family at Westport, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. George White Traver, Chicago and Traver Ranch, Glenwood Springs, Colorado, have taken an apartment at Casa del Lago, South Lake Drive. The Travers have been house guests of the Noel Marshall Seeburgs, at their home on Clarendon Avenue.

Much rejoicing has been taking place in at least two cottage colony homes, at the arrival of Christopher Minturn Collins on Sunday, February 24 and young Master Bland on Monday, February 25. The Collins infant is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Minturn Post Collins (Edith Buckingham), 350 Sea Spray Avenue; and the day younger Bland boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Gilbert Bland (Lois Anderson) of Warren, Ohio, and grandson of Mr. Ferdinand Valdean Anderson of Brazilian Avenue, Palm Beach.

Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club

THE SAILFISH YACHT AND BEACH CLUB, one of Palm Beach's oldest social organizations, was founded in 1914, yet despite its long and proud history it is today as virile and youthful as if it were the youngest club on the island. A mammoth building and remodeling job just completed—referred to by one writer as a “fabulous face-lifting”—has given the club a new sparkle and brilliance unique in a community that is accustomed to unusual achievement.

In the unbelievably short space of nine months the interesting old clubhouse has been revamped from “stem to stern,” as the nautical members say. In that same period a swimming pool of Olympics proportions has been built, and surrounded by 70 cabanas. A completely new dock has been built adjacent to the two older ones. And for good measure a new, completely ample parking space has been graded and paved. And to top it off, the entire setting has been tastefully landscaped.

“Everything about the club is new, including the name” is the way one enthusiastic member described the herculean undertaking accomplished in such record time. And it's a true statement, since the club for almost 38 years has been known simply as the Sailfish Club of Florida. The more Frequent water shows are a part of the club's entertainment schedule, as befits a nautically named club. A team of divers rehearses their act, outlined against the azure sky, as the pool terrace starts to fill with dining spectators.

descriptive name was adopted at the start of this year's big season. When the club elected Gene T. Dyer, Palm Beach and Chicago businessman, as its president, and approved his immediate plan to completely renovate the clubhouse and build a swimming pool "as soon as such construction is feasible," that permission touched off a fever of enthusiastic building that did not let up until the big job was completed.

Teamwork in accomplishing the huge job was a foregone conclusion, for Gene wisely assigned the various divisions of the undertaking to members of the club itself, each a leader in his own line in the Palm Beach building field:

John Volk drew up the architectural plans, and Norman Schmid agreed to supervise the building details; Ernest B. Walton, Palm Beach home builder took over the building details; Earl Murphy and his big construction company was assigned building of the swimming pool and terrace as well as the new yacht dock; James Sturrock, head of his own landscaping concern, took on the project of beautifying the grounds, and Margaret Worrell agreed to supervise the decorating. Herb Bedford headed up this practical building committee with assistance from Jim Bell, Oz Crotty, along with the actual contractors named, Claude Reese and Forrest Fay. The actual work started last June, was carried forth without interruption to meet the deadline, the start of the winter season.

From a practical standpoint, this astonishing teamwork of member-contractors paid double dividends. Each worked at top speed, and even better on a no-profit basis. The cost reckoning was proving a welcome surprise to all, with the job done more quickly, and for far less money than the most optimistic member of the committee had dreamed.

When the day finally came for the club members to return to Palm Beach for the season, they had a new club house. Those who had not kept close touch with the project were amazed at the astonishing accomplishment. Many declared they did not even recognize it as the same club.

The returning membership was gratified also to find that not a single detail had been overlooked in outlining a social and events calendar for the season in full keeping with the swift new strides of the club structure. Dinner dances, formal and informal, have been presented with successful regularity, each with a special motif carried out in appropriate decorations and occasional costumes. The traditional Thursday and Sunday buffets, for years the delight of island gourmets, were augmented by special dinners on the other nights. Daily luncheons draw sizeable attendance on the cabana terrace, and frequent aquatic exhibitions are presented that feature the swimming and diving of the younger members.

And with all this social whirl, the club has lost none of its flavorful old zest for sailfishing and yachting. The few of the original sportsmen who founded the club and who still survive, are proud of its great scope. Regular fishing events and tournaments are as hotly contested as ever, with game-fish conservation, and sportsmanship the constant theme.

The club enjoys the distinction of being the only yacht club in Palm Beach. More than forty yachts and cruisers belonging to members are tied up at the modern docks, from sea-going fishing boats to luxury yachts that serve as homes.

"The only difference between the old club and the new," an old timer told your reporter, "is that nowadays the new club is truly a family organization where each member from youngsters to oldsters have their own facilities for entertainment—and that's the way it should be."

Yes, today the Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club is enjoying the greatest member patronage in its long history—and all because an energetic building committee decided that "as soon as feasible" was synonymous with "get the job done right now."

Presidents of the old Sailfish Club of Florida, from its beginning were: from 1914 to 1917, John D. Crimmins; 1918 to 1920, M. P. Grace; 1921 to 1923, W. H. Mitchell; 1924 and 1925, L. Q. Jones; to 1928, John Shepard, Jr.; 1934 and 1935, Charles Francis Coe; 1940 and 1941, H. H. Windsor, Jr.; 1944 and 1945, E. G. Lauder; 1945 and 1946, H. N. Gifford; 1946 and 1947, Elmer Rich and 1947 to 1951, Kenneth D. Steere.

Officers for the 1951-1952 season are Gene T. Dyer, president; Forrest C. Fay, vice-president and treasurer; Charles F. Johnson, vice-president; Leo E. Kaffer, vice-president and James B. Bell, Jr., secretary.

Members of the Board of Governors are: H. M. Harper, Gilbert Drake, O. M. Crotty, M. E. Murphy, Claude D. Reese, H. W. Stewart, Jr., George W. Coleman, E. B. Walton, Elmer Rich, H. A. Bedford, B. D. Crownshield, Hal C. Rich and Kenneth D. Steere.

At the head of the Entertainment Committee is Hal Rich, with Bill Feek, Jr., vice chairman, James Y. Arnold, Rosser Huff, Harry Stewart, Col. A. R. Baker, Ed Latham and F. H. Sprankle to help him.

Herb Bedford is chairman of Building Improvement, and

America's Art Inheritance...

TEN MILLION . . . TWENTY MILLION . . . perhaps a hundred million dollars represents the worth of the Chester Dale nineteenth and twentieth century French collection, now the most distinguished and notable in the world, and caring least of all is Chester Dale himself, a dynamic gentleman just now visiting in Palm Beach.

"Art can't be measured in terms of cash," he said, one day recently in the gardens of Brazilian Court, where he makes his home in the resort. "And for a very good reason, at least it's a good reason for me, and that is that whatever I've collected I wanted, loved and admired. My pictures are like a family, each new one has a special niche in my heart. Owning them is like having a family, costs money to begin with and to maintain. But does anyone ever place a dollars-and-cents value on a son or daughter? If they do, they don't deserve them."

So you pretty quickly conclude Mr. Dale deserves his pictures, and when he settles down to telling some of his experiences in bringing together the loved, and coveted-by-all-the-art-dealers-in-the-world collection, you're convinced he deserves them . . . and God be praised that there was a Chester Dale to acquire for American lovers of art the finest Manets, Degas, Renoirs and all the other great French masters of the last 150 years.

Portions of the vast Dale collection are in two of our great art museums—the National Gallery of Art, at Washington, D. C., and the Chicago Art Institute. In his own apartment at the Plaza, in New York City, there also hang notable works—among the most famous Toulouse-Lautrecs, purchased by Mr. Dale when few were being bought, important Daumiers—one, "The Beggars," just found last summer after a 12-year hunt by the banker and public utilities pioneer who turned art connoisseur a quarter of a century ago when influenced by his wife, Maud Dale, through whom he fell heir to an appreciation of "the great beauty and splendor of nineteenth and twentieth century French painting."

"And without Mrs. Dale's guidance and good judgment, the undertaking of well over seven hundred authentic masterpieces would have been impossible," he proudly informs.

But back to "The Beggars." The entire art world knew about that particular Daumier, but pictures, like people, are sometimes among the missing all of a sudden. Durand and Ruel had purchased it from Daumier's widow at the time of his death. Later it was acquired by the late Joseph E. Widener, and disposed of in turn by his son.

Chester Dale, with a flair for finding, and a quality in his nature that smacks of persistence, went hunting last summer abroad, and somehow in the back of his mind he had a feeling he might find "The Beggars." And he did—right in a rather musty, down-at-the-heels art gallery in Zurich, Switzerland . . . behind a door, practically hidden.

The hardy Empire-state-New York City-born Chester Dale, who began his career in Wall Street when the stock exchange stretched along the curb, hates dickering. "Just want to know the price, no special deals," he says, "only let's have it straight from the shoulder and if the painting is worth it to me, price is no object."

Right now he's looking for a particular Boudins—has been, too, for 20 years. "And I'll find it, maybe in Canada; I'm pretty sure that's where it is."

Another favorite Boudins was found a few years back by this wizard at finding missing pictures, and with the same enthusiasm of a youngster playing Indian who's just found an arrowhead, Chester Dale hastened to hang it in his apartment. A week later, John Walker, chief curator of the National Gallery, came to call, and, spotting the painting, exclaimed: "This can't be real, for I used to admire the original in the Boston Museum when I was a youngster."

The Chester Dale Collection

"But it is real," replied the cunning connoisseur, "and, what's more, it's the very one you used to see in Boston."

And the happy irony of the episode, Mr. Dale tells, with a certain air of assuredness that his luck won't run out, is that a decade ago he turned down a Boudins at an important Paris auction. "Always regretted it," he said, "until I found 'The Beach at Viller Villes', and right here in New York!"

Last year he found a Gericault after a hunt of a quarter of a century, and he's after a Van Gogh that somebody's father has in Zurich. Incidentally, Mr. Dale owns "Mademoiselle Gachet," one of the last three paintings Van Gogh did.

Quite as often reproduced on post cards and calendars as the words, "from the Chester Dale Collection," which appear in catalogues of any French show of apolmb held anywhere, is Renoir's "Girl With a Watering Can," pictured here, and hanging in the National Gallery.

More distinguished than the collection of the same period at the Louvre, and including the best early Picassos, among them several from his classical period, the Dale assemblage, covering an age when European art was established solidly and beyond challenge in one city, Paris, also cherishes the Corot "Agostina," she who became a Montmartre legend, and who just recently in the fascinating novel based on Toulouse-Lautrec, "Moulin Rouge," was described by the author, Pierre La Mure, as "the most sought-after model in the French capital, venerable academicians fighting over her services and favors."

Right now writing his memoirs—the life and times and experiences both he and Mrs. Dale have had in tracking down and discovering the brilliant art of France from the birth of David to the death of Cezanne, this story is but a peep-show to that which the collector will tell.

And will he perhaps talk about some of the things he is still looking for . . . and what, at this time, is he looking for?

"Yes," he will do just that, and he is looking for "more of the same," meaning, as he explained, "quality paintings of the period" he chose to collect—the refined and witty painting of eighteenth and nineteenth century France.

He wants more Boudins, and he wants to find them himself . . . prefers to make his own discoveries. And there are late Picassos he'd like. "But not at any price."

Soutine also is of interest, but, again, not at fashionable figures. Mr. Dale owns the Soutine portrait done by Modigliani, and several Soutines as well.

About 71 pictures comprise the Chester Dale Collection at the National Gallery, brought together to show the development of French painting during its greatest period, with special emphasis on the French Impressionists and Post-Impressionists—Degas, Berthe Morisot, Monet, Sisely, Pissarro, Renoir, Cezanne, Gauguin, Lautrec (Mr. Dale too owns a large number of Lautrecs' pungent posters), Vincent Van Gogh, and six outstanding works by the American in Paris, Mary Cassatt, who became closely identified with the Impressionist school.

Both profound lovers of art—Mrs. Dale as the student who dived deep into all the intricacies, the revolutions and ultimate progress that began (Please Turn to Page 83)

Washington Letter

Dear Dora:

News that the David Bruces would be arriving in Washington before long leaked out when the Bill Fosters, who have their house in Georgetown, began to search for another residence. Ambassador Bruce will come to Washington in the capacity of Under Secretary of State.

They are expected to add much charm to the social scene, having been great favorites in Paris. Evangeline Bruce is an extraordinary person in many ways: very beautiful, tall and brunette, romantic in appearance and reality. She wears very feminine clothes and has a flair for jewelry. She also has a magical talent for flower arrangement and does all the bouquets at the beautiful American Embassy in Paris herself. Not only that, she is an expert in French history, and the proud mother of three children.

The Bruces did a superb job of decorating their shooting lodge outside Versailles. And the Ambassador is a great favorite with President Auriol at his shooting place, Rambouillet, he being one of the best shots in Europe. The Ambassador, incidentally, is very proud of American art and has many American paintings hanging in the Embassy.

A few days before Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer, of Peru, one of our most attractive diplomatic couples, left for Florida, they gave another of their perfectly appointed dinner parties at the Peruvian Embassy. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnston, who returned only recently from Hollywood; attractive Admiral and Mrs. "Spats" Moore, who served several years in Greece; Mrs. Rahel Davies Fitch, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ansberry and many others, including former diva Rosa Ponselle, who added greatly to the party by singing for us all.

The charming de Berckmeyers went to Green Cove Springs to be there for the commissioning of three ships bought recently for the Peruvian Government. After the ceremony they had a reception at the Ponce de Leon Hotel in St. Augustine and, the last I heard, were leaving for Palm Beach to see Antonio Chopitea and Pablo Feraldo, of Peru, who are stopping at the Everglades and visiting Woolworth Donahue.

Saw Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and Mrs. Acheson in a bright red taffeta dress, surrounded by friends at the reception given by the Portuguese Ambassador and Madame Luis Esteves Fernandes in honor of the delegates to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Honest-faced General Bradley and Mrs. Bradley were there, sampling the really lavish buffet. And I saw Secretary of Defense Lovett and State Under Secretary James Webb, who became just "mister" after March 1, when Ambassador Bruce took over his job.

Also there were good-looking Lucius D. Battle, of Bradenton, Fla., with his California-bred dark-eyed and beautiful wife. Mr. Battle is one of the most important young men on Mr. Acheson's staff.

The Portuguese Embassy on Kalorama Road was recently done over in flawless taste. The interior is pale pink marble and the decor strictly French.

It's hard to believe that Jimmy Vinson is old enough to be married. The son of Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson has grown up in Washington and to his parents' friends he is not James Robert Vinson but just Jimmy. However, the middle of the month Jimmy took as his bride vivacious Margaret Byrd Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edward Russell, of Stanford, Ky. Margaret attended Barry College, at Miami, Fla., and famous Centre College at Danville, Ky. Jimmy graduates soon from George Washington University. The couple was married in Danville, Ky., and will make their home in Washington, D. C.

One of the best parties of the year was the sixteenth wedding anniversary party given by the Newbold Walmsleys in their Georgetown home, which they have leased from diplomat Philip Bonsal. The really glamorous Teresa, who is Spanish born, and Newbie, her State Department spouse, were stationed in Rome a long time and have friends all over the world.

Friends of many nationalities came to wish them well and enjoy the unusual buffet, which boasted a magnificent suckling pig wreathed with Teresa's best pearls in the traditional Spanish way.

Princess Alice of Greece, mother of Prince Philip, grandmother of Bonnie Prince Charles and sister of the Earl Mountbatten of Burma, was in Washington recently seeing quietly a few of her old friends.

She is a very serious person, who came to this country to raise money through Greek-American citizens to help finance a nurses' school of which she is directress. She is a member of a convent on the island of Tinos and wears the gray robes of a nun.

While in this country she visited her old friend and former American Ambassadress, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss. We had the privilege of seeing her at a very small luncheon given by the Greek Ambassador. And chatted with her again at a tiny tea, where she saw her old friends, our "Princess" Alice Longworth, daughter of Teddy Roosevelt, and Mrs. Daisy Harriman, our former Minister to Denmark.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Camalier, of Washington, have announced the wedding of their daughter, Lucile Camalier, to John J. Sirica, also of Washington. The wedding took place on February 8 at a quiet ceremony at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The Camaliers left Washington in midwinter for Florida, and the mother of the bridegroom is in residence at Surfside, Fla., for the season. The young couple will be feted at a large reception at the Congressional Country Club in Washington on their return from their honeymoon.

It seems like the pre-Lenten season always brings forth balls. And certainly the most spectacular one was the Bal Boheme held at the Hotel Statler by the Arts Club to benefit the American Theatre Wing, which handles entertainment for wounded veterans.

There were dozens of Juliets and Romeos, a Prince Charming who fitted a glass slipper on one of the many "Cinderellas," then there were Sadie Thompsons, cave men and women, Cleopatras, etc., etc., all a lot of fun in a good cause.

Hosting a pre-ball party was Paul Murphy, of the Pan-American Union, who invited some 200 guests to come by between 9 and 11 at the historic Hoyt mansion. The three massive drawing rooms were lit entirely by candle and gas light. Red and white flowers bloomed in them all and there was a heart-shaped cage filled with fine-feathered real love birds. Former Premier of France and Madame Camille Chauvins had still another party before the ball. Their ranking guests were Associate Justice and Mrs. Burton.

On February 29 there was a Leap Year dance at the Sulgrave Club, when the women let the men sit back and hope they would get asked to dance for a change. Mrs. Eugene Carusi (pictured as a best-dressed in Life magazine recently) was on the committee, as was Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Ed Foley, Mrs. William Fulbright and Mrs. Arthur Gardner, which automatically assured the success of the party.

Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley headed the guest list for the "Black Tie" dance held on February 22 at the Sulgrave Club. Ambassador and Madame Henri Bonnet, of France, were among the diplomats, and many Senators were there, including Senator Brien McMahon and Senator Estes Kefauver, with their glamorous and beautiful spouses.

Every dance the Black Tie group has given has been for a worth-while cause. In this case it was to raise money for the Washington Heart Association.

This one was a leap year dance, too, and among the attractive bachelors there were recently returned from Japan Maj. Taylor Simmons, who is an architect, thoughtful, forthright and handsome and one of Washington's best dancers. Other bachelors there were George Baker, a diplomat with a conversational spark and a flair for entertaining; Jack Darnelle, of Baltimore, tall and slim, a banker blessed with a brain as well as dancing feet; and Jack Logan, who waltzes or square dances with equal skill and is a popular host as well.

The middle of March will find Colonel and Mrs. Walter Bryte stopping at Brazilian Court and luxuriating in your sunshine down there. The Brytes returned a few months ago from Wiesbaden, Germany, where the Colonel was stationed with the Air Force for three years. They had a charming house there and entertained a great deal. Mrs. Bryte is the former Mrs. Chester Edwards, who spent every winter in Palm Beach for many years, always stopping at the Everglades Club. Although the popular "Jeanie" is a New Yorker, their permanent home is now Washington.

The recently married and charming Robert C. Joneses, Jr., were expected in Palm Beach for a three-week stay after their marriage in Westmont, Pa., on February 23. Mrs. Jones, who is of that city, is a lovely blonde, the former Miss Mirian Ann Grogan. Bob, Jr., is a partner in the firm of his well-known father, who is one of Washington's most prominent brokers.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Buchanan came back from Palm Beach for the Dancing Class at the Sulgrave, and although the dance was fun, they say they wish they were right back in Palm Beach. While there they saw attractive "Feets," Mrs. Kennedy-Moulton, of Warrenton, Va., who was there for a short stay.

Hear that Mr. and Mrs. Webb Hayes, Jr., had as their guests the end of February Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stifel, of Bethesda, and that the Webb Hayes, Sr., were leaving their beautiful house behind to go on a South American cruise.

Now, Dora, it doesn't look like I will get down there, so do write soon and give me all the news.

Yours sincerely,

GARNETT.

Sanlando Springs and Tropical Gardens

SEMINOLE COUNTY will soon be the home of one of Florida's outstanding tourist attractions as plans go forward for developing Sanlando Springs and Tropical Gardens. Already a favorite recreation spot among Central Floridians, extensive improvements have been made during the past year and are continuing at a fast clip aimed at putting it on the map as a major drawing card for all Central Florida.

A real recreation spot in tropical surroundings—that is Sanlando Springs, located in lower Seminole County, midway between Sanford and Orlando. For Sanlando Springs is both Central Florida's favorite recreation spot and one of the most beautiful bits of native Florida to be found in the state.

Latest in improvements has been the purchase and planting of nearly 3,000 camellia plants, which are being put out along the trails through the grounds as fast as possible. N. L. Nasty, Jr., well-known nurseryman who was one of the founders of the Central Florida Camellia Society, is in charge of developing the grounds, and his plans call for having Sanlando Springs rank among the top garden spots in the South within a few years.

During last summer, more than 43,000 persons were admitted to Sanlando Springs, and improvements and added interest on the part of Central Floridians in the spot point to a tremendous rise in this figure. Figures for this winter season are already showing a big pickup over last winter.

Picture a spring putting forth 14 million gallons of crystal-clear nature-pure water daily. Surround it with a white sand beach, tropical gardens, diving board and water slide, and then put all this down in a grove of stately oaks and tall palm trees. Add to this man-made conveniences of a separate swimming pool, bath house, picnic tables and complete restaurant—and you begin to see Sanlando Springs.

For many years this spot has been the mecca of both summertime and wintertime fun-seekers and sightseers. In the summertime it swarms with swimmers, picnickers, and other folks enjoying the scenic beauty or just relaxing in the restful atmosphere, for the springs provides one of the best natural swimming and picnicking areas in this vicinity. For those who like to swim in a pool, water is pumped from the heart of the spring to the pool which is enclosed on all sides by the bath-house facilities.

All year around, people enjoy the nature trails through the gardens and the boat ride into the jungle-like country north of the springs. Even in the winter months, many people enjoy the swimming, as the springs continue to boil forth at a constant 72 degree temperature all year long.

At present, there are more than three miles of landscaped paths through the tropical woods and adjacent to the stream formed by the springs. It is planned to extend these paths clear to the Little Wekiva River, a quarter of a mile from the springs.

A high wire fence has been placed around the main picnic grounds to insure the safety of those eating in the area, and to keep out dust and dirt from passing vehicles. A large barbecue pit has been added for public use as preparations go forward for accommodating the many large firm, school and organization picnics scheduled for the Spring and Summer months.

Other recent improvements include: Complete remodeling and redecoration of the club house restaurant, making it into what the builders have termed "one of the most attractive in the South." Included in the restaurant building was also a completely new soda fountain and complete gift shop displaying an unusually attractive group of modern gifts.

A view of the front of the bath-house showing the setting of stately oaks and extensive planting of azaleas which form a major part of the gardens.

Par Avion from Paris

ANY MINUTE NOW it will be spring. They're taking the sackcloth covers off the bay trees in front of the American Embassy, and setting out chairs and tables on the Champs Elysees and around the Place de l'Opera. The sidewalks, which have been in a state of upheaval during the repairing season, are now smoothly cemented down for the feet of the first visitors. Shop windows along the rue de Rivoli are blossoming out with such tourist attractions as scarves embroidered "O! la, la," and the legend which begins, "Oh, please do not kiss me" and diminishes, word by word, to "Oh." In the Tuileries gardens workmen in blue denim are starting to dig up the flower beds.

The four bay trees, a species of laurel, which have stood in front of the Embassy for twenty years, facing the bronze bust of Benjamin Franklin, never lose their glossy green leaves. But in winter they must go into sackcloth slipcovers to ward off possible frostbite. Their emergence is one of the first signs of spring in Paris.

Ex-Ambassador Bruce (now Under Secretary of State) and Mrs. Bruce will be exchanging the chestnut blooms for the Washington cherry blossoms just when both are at their best. Their departure will also mean that the American Embassy loses one of its most popular young attaches, Kenyon Castle Bolton. The son of Congresswoman Frances Payne Bolton and Chester Castle Bolton needs no introduction to native Palm Beachers—he grew up on South Ocean Boulevard, and his grandfather, Charles William Bingham, was one of the pioneer settlers of Palm Beach and a large landowner in the days when the ground was worth 40 cents an acre.

The move to Washington will be going home for Ken Bolton and his pretty, young wife and their four children—the capital is their permanent address in the States.

Among Ken's final chores was seeing that all the winners of prizes at the Roosevelt Ball got their champagne, perfume, chapeaux and what not. He was chairman of the ball.

Also looking toward a new diplomatic post are the James W. Riddlebergers, but as it isn't official yet they can't say where they're going. Silence is traditional in such cases, and observed by the grownups. But the 12 and 13-year-old pals of the Riddlebergers' son Peter ("Peanuts") are determined to break him down into telling where.

Mr. Riddleberger, who has been the State Department's special adviser to ECA (now MSA) in Paris, has served in Geneva, Washington, Berlin and London. Going with their parents will be 15-year-old Toni and "Peanuts"; their elder brother Christopher is in college in the United States.

If, like Harry Blum, of Chicago, you come to Paris four times a year and buy 60 million francs worth of gowns, hats, bags, shoes and jewelry, you can have a fashion show all for yourself, as Mr. Blum did at Dior's. The private presentation, with Dior's two top mannequins, Sylvie and Alla, doing the modeling, was to enable Mr. Blum, who was not only a very busy man, but an ill one, to make his selections without distraction. To appreciate the honor, you must know how difficult it is to get ONE invitation to a Dior show.

Without counting, Mr. Blum thinks he has been to Paris over a hundred times since he started coming in the 1920's. He has just sailed for home on the Queen Mary, after being at the Ritz for two months, most of the time working from 8 in the morning until midnight, just looking at the worlds' most beautiful clothes.

Which may explain why Mr. Dior didn't get to Madame Maurice Luling's magnificent party in his honor. Everybody else came, starting at 7 in the evening and departing at dawn. All night there was a fashionable crush of white ties, black ties, cocktail dresses, elaborate evening gowns and one raincoat. There was a dance orchestra, a singer, a buffet and two bars.

At the invitation of the Mayor of Blerancourt, Paris friends and admirers of the late Miss Anne Morgan drove, the other morning, to the little town in the Aisne which had been her home and is almost synonymous with her name in France.

Blerancourt was that day holding a memorial ceremony honoring the daughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, a post-mortem thank-you to an American upon whom France had conferred eight decorations in her life. Much of Anne Morgan's work during and between World Wars was done in the Aisne—to realize how much of War I was fought in this department one has only to recall the names of Chateau Thierry, Belleau Wood, Soissons, Berry-du-Bac, Reims and, saddest to remember, Chemin-des-Dames, where so many Allied lives were inexplicably lost. Or to drive through the little towns, still pock-marked with shells.

We left Paris early in a Red Cross car from the Foreign Office—as we drove out of the courtyard the sentry popped smartly out of his red, white and blue striped box. From the Quai d'Orsay our driver took what might have been a sight-seeing route but was probably just the quickest way toward Soissons: over the Pont Alexandre III with its golden horses, up and around the Arc de Triomphe, past the Parc Monceau, through the Place Clichy, over the bridge that spans the historic Montmartre Cemetery and the graves of Madame Recamier and La Dame aux Camellias, and onto the open road.

When Mrs. Roosevelt and Kenyon C. Bolton meet again in Washington, they can laugh about the things that amused them in Paris. In this case it was the grand entrance they made at the Roosevelt Ball.

In the pale winter sunlight the country was beautiful, as the French countryside is in all weather and all seasons. But in winter the leafless forests reveal the regularity and design of their planting, and the clumps of mistletoe in their branches. The tulip fields were lightly powdered with snow, and the peasants and their fat farm horses moved leisurely along the roads.

In Blerancourt, white-gloved policemen waved us toward the little 16th century church—we couldn't have missed it, standing guard over the town as it does. There was no time to examine its carved and crumbling stone facade, for inside Monseigneur Douillard, Bishop of Soissons, had already begun the Requiem Mass, and the verger in black Napoleonic hat was thumping the floor sternly with his staff.

Black crepe draped the walls, black and silver standards bordered the middle aisle, and a large American flag covered the black catafalque before the altar. The town band, a group of boys in new blue uniforms, provided militant music, their exuberance in contrast to the worn-looking War I veterans standing at attention, holding parade swords tipped with small bows of black crepe. Pink-cheeked school girls, their long braids wrapped in coronets around their heads and blue berets perched behind the braids, knelt in the aisles, kindergardners had seats on the steps of the side altars, the nuns stood. In the trim slate-blue uniforms and berets of Miss Morgan's Comité American de Secours Civil and of the Croix Rouge Française were many who had worked with her. These were the kind of French country people she loved best in the world. Among them she chose to spend her life and her fortune.

From the church, everybody followed the band and the veterans carrying banners, marching down the cobblestoned main street. In the windows of the hotel de ville housewives, in crisp white aprons, stood watching, and estimating the number for whom they must keep the luncheon bouillon hot.

The march led to the chateau which had been Miss Morgan's home and was later her gift to the community as a memento of Franco-American friendship. Once the residence of the Dukes of Gevres, the chateau was in ruins when Miss Morgan bought and restored it, making one of the twin gatehouses into a little house for herself. It is now known as the Anne Morgan pavillon. In it hangs a handsome portrait of her, painted when she was apparently about 40 years old and at the height of her remarkable beauty. She is not in uniform, but in a décolleté evening gown that reveals her handsome figure. Large, intensely dark eyes, well-defined dark eyebrows, soft gray pompadour, wild rose complexion and a firm but feminine chin were among Miss Morgan's physical charms.

After placing a wreath below her portrait and hearing tributes from the director of French museums and the Public Health Minister, our group was again on the march, this time to the salle des fetes in the city hall. In the big room, heated by a round wood stove, a buffet waited on tables covered to the floor with white tablecloths. Blerancourt housewives served hot red wine, hot bouillon, sandwiches, chilled white wine, cakes and coffee—a good and simple luncheon, graciously offered.

Mrs. David K. E. Bruce (right) is saying her good-bys to Paris as her husband, former Ambassador, goes to Washington to be Under Secretary of State. Marjorie Thornton, the prettiest American girl to grow up in Paris since the war, is the daughter of Gerald Thornton, European manager of TWA.

Coming in advance of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, George E. Judd, its genial manager, was welcomed to Paris with a cocktail party. The hostess is Mrs. Nicolas Nabokov, wife of the director of "Masterpieces of the 20th Century," a festival. The Boston orchestra will make its Paris debut in May.

Miami

TOP ATTRACTION on the Miami winter calendar for the coming weeks is the opening of major league baseball spring exhibition games. The colorful Brooklyn Dodgers will play host to such teams as the New York Yankees, St. Louis Cardinals, Boston Red Sox, Philadelphia Phillies and Athletics, Boston Braves and the Washington Senators during the month of March.

Tomorrow night (March 12) the Philadelphia Phillies begin a two-game series with the Dodgers at Miami Stadium. Palm Beach baseball fans will be interested to know the million dollar Miami Stadium is the most modern ball park in the United States. It boasts such features as seats with back and arm rests and a completely unobstructed view of the field from any angle, due to the specially designed cantilever roof.

The Yankees open a three-day engagement at the stadium March 14, with a night game against the Dodgers. On the 15th and 16th they will play in the afternoon.

Following on the heels of Hialeah's closing was the opening last week of Gulfstream. The newest of Greater Miami's horse tracks, Gulfstream will remain open until April 21.

Entertainment for spectators between races at Gulfstream includes boating and competition on their spacious infield lake. Water skiing has also been added to their entertainment this year.

While Hialeah's season has closed, there are still many noteworthy events to recall. For instance, the parade of the flamingos down the track preceding the running of the Flamingo Stakes on closing day was a spectacle rivaled only by the colorfully dressed ladies.

Among Palm Beachers who were down during the latter part of the season were Mrs. James Russell Lowell, who is wintering in Palm Beach, and her sister, Mrs. John Morris, wife of Jamaica's president. Also here were Mr. and Mrs. William Floyd-Jones (Alice Andre), who were stopping in Palm Beach following a wedding trip to Costa Rica.

Young New York socialites Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Tabb Ijams also participated in Hialeah's festivities near the end of the season. Mr. Ijams and P. A. B. Widener III, grandson of the present Hialeah's founder, were schoolmates. The Ijams are vacationing in Fort Lauderdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Combs II, owners of Spendthrift Farm, viewed the races from their clubhouse box during the season. Their Spendthrift Farm is where many of the top racers are bred.

Perhaps the most unique method of attending the races at Hialeah this year was initiated by Palm Beach winter residents. Mr. and Mrs. Harley Earl, of Detroit, and Mr. and

Mrs. Max Pray, of Chicago, flew their planes down from Palm Beach to Miami to see the horses run at the track beautiful.

Miami Opera Guild members were busy with parties following their presentation of "Die Fledermaus." Among those entertaining were George Mead, who played host to new contributors at his home. Mrs. Claude Siems, Mrs. William Root and the Stafan Zachars are among new donors to the guild. The Zachars raced some of their horses at Hialeah this winter.

Guild members met the stars of "Die Fledermaus" at a reception the next day. Heading the receiving line were Arturo diFilippi and Mrs. George Pawley, president of the guild.

Among first nighters were Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cheek and their daughter, Mrs. Edgar Marten Tutwiler, Jr., Mount Hope, W. Va., who is visiting them. The Cheeks were among the first supporters of the guild. Other sponsors who attended were Mrs. F. T. Broby, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Buswell, Mrs. John Seybold, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mead (brother of George Mead) and their sons, Budge and D. Richard Mead, and Mrs. Richard Mead.

The opera gained an international touch when Mr. and Mrs. Miguel Rosnich came here from Havana to attend. Mr. Rosnich is a prominent engineer in the Cuban capital and his wife is a concert singer. They are members of Pro Arts Musical in Havana, which sponsors operas there.

Still in progress is the Greater Miami Manufacturers' show at Dinner Key auditorium. This exposition has attracted more nation-wide interest this year than ever before. Industrialists throughout the country are here to learn first hand of the industrial advantages to be found in this area. The show closes March 16.

Mrs. Robert McKim of New York was a guest of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane of Palm Beach at Hialeah on one of the frequent days that Mrs. Sloane's Brookmeade Stable thoroughbreds were running.

John C. Clark, president of Hialeah, left with Major General R. A. R. Neville, Governor of the Bahamas; Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Neville, formed the receiving line at one of the large luncheons given by the Clarks during the recent racing season.

Col. Toni Story, who was pilot for General of the Army, Douglas MacArthur seven years. Colonel Story was also chief pilot for the "Brass Hat Squadron" in Washington.

Most Controversial Man in the World Today

Cols. Sid Huff and Toni Story, formerly of Gen. MacArthur's Staff, discuss the General's public and private lives.

"I HAVE HAD PLENTY OF OPPORTUNITY to see how General of the Army Douglas MacArthur lives both of his lives . . . the one that the public knows and another that is for himself and his family", said Col. Sid (Sidney) Huff, U. S. A. who was aide-de-camp to the General for fifteen years.

Chatting with Col. Huff at the home of Robert M. Harriss, Hobe Sound, where he and Mrs. Huff were spending a winter's holiday, he reminisced about his years with "one of the most discussed men in the world today".

"No man has given himself more unreservedly to the service of his country, over such a tremendous span of history. His first thought always, is love of his country. He has a tremendous pride in America, in the people of America and in their heritage", Col. Huff commented.

The oldest member of MacArthur's staff, from a standpoint of service, Col. Huff said, "I arrived in Manila in December 1936, as his assistant and was commissioned in the army as aide-de-camp later. Was with him when Manila was declared an open city, on the trip to Corregidor and Bataan and the wild torpedo boat ride, when we were headed for a southern island. Then to Mindanao, where our party was marooned for two nights and hid out during the daytime. Here we got planes and headed toward Australia and stayed there until the General returned to the Philippines . . . we were fighting the Pacific War all of this time. And then . . . after the U. S. Army secured Manila, went with MacArthur to Japan, where he was made Supreme Allied Commander and stayed until President Truman relieved him of all his commands."

It was Col. Huff who delivered the message to the General that he had been dismissed. "One of my most unfortunate and sorrowful duties", he volunteered. In discussing the matter, Col. Huff said, "I was getting ready for the Prime Minister of Japan's annual garden party and it was raining like mad. Mrs. Huff remarked, 'Why does it always rain when the Prime Minister gives his garden party?' Little did we know then, that much more than a downpour of rain was about to dampen our spirits."

"One of the American press correspondents telephoned and said, 'Be sure and listen to the three o'clock broadcast. We have word that all reporters have been called to the White House for a press conference and that President Truman is going to say something about Gen. MacArthur's resignation.' I couldn't believe that such a thing could happen and tried to phone the MacArthurs, but they couldn't be reached at that time . . . we listened to the 'stateside' broadcast and sure enough, at the very end of the commentary, there was a brief flash from Washington telling of the world-shocking news."

"Fifteen minutes later," Col. Huff continued, "the Signal Corps brought me 'an important message for the General' . . . it came in a small brown envelope. When I drove in the lower compound gate of the American Embassy where the MacArthur's lived, there were at least a dozen newspaper reporters waiting to verify the broadcast. I gave the envelope to Mrs. MacArthur and left . . . it was a gruesome task."

Col. Huff was virtually a member of the MacArthur family, throughout the years and he noted, "a finer woman than Jean MacArthur, never lived; she is one in a million". At this point, Col. Huff said he wanted to squelch the scurrilous rumors circulated about the MacArthur's rescuing their household furniture and even a grand piano from the beleaguered Philippines. "Jean MacArthur arrived in Australia with all of her worldly possessions tied up in a handkerchief and they included a compact, comb and lipstick."

Col. and Mrs. Huff left Japan with the MacArthur's and rode with them in all of the homecoming parades. It will be recalled, the General had not been back to the states in fourteen years and it was a momentous occasion. Col. Huff remarked that they had planned to arrive in the various cities after dark and were terribly surprised to see the tremendous crowds, when they landed in the "Bataan" at Honolulu. Amid all of the cheering, Admiral Bradford said to MacArthur, "What do you think of the reception?" To which he replied, "It's grand, but I hope they didn't come out of sympathy". "As every one knows," Col. Huff commented, "cheering crowds greeted the General at every stop".

In discussing "both lives" of MacArthur, Col. Huff said with emphasis, "The vicious rumors that he is a conceited and pompous man, are absolutely incorrect. He is a shy, kind and considerate person... a family man. He never relaxes in clubs like other men... he concentrates so thoroughly on his job, there is little time left for relaxation. He has no hobbies and isn't interested in 'small talk'. Does not enjoy meeting people merely for the sake of making new acquaintances. On the other hand, the General has tremendous charm and a commanding, exciting personality. He can be tactful, gracious and even gallant, as the occasion demands."

Summing up the many, many military accomplishments of MacArthur, Col. Huff said, "Of all the important things that the General has achieved, I think his most successful job was Japan... he took that country by the bootstraps as it were and in five years, made it one of the great powers of the world today." The Japanese attitude toward MacArthur, Col. Huff commented, could be best expressed in the words of a high official of Japan, after the General's dismissal. "This is a great loss to Japan. We can get another Emperor tomorrow if necessary, but not another MacArthur."

Col. Huff now retired, is touring the United States with Australian-born Mrs. Huff, who had never been in America. They have already visited in more than twenty states and in every one of them he said, the people ask him, "How can we nominate MacArthur for the presidency?" When asked about his opinion, Col. Huff stated, "Well, you know the General has said he had no political ambitions. But I have never seen him turn down a job he had to do, or shirk his duty. I think he would be one of the best presidents we ever had and I get thousands of letters, from persons all over the country, saying the same thing. And, we all know, from what he has said in his numerous speeches, 'he would like to give the government back to the people and bring back the Constitution of the U. S.' It couldn't happen to a better man."

Joining the Robert Harriss house party at Hobe Sound, was another important military man, who had been associated with Gen. MacArthur... Col. Toni Story, pilot for the General for seven years. "I flew him back to the states, to Manila, all the trips to Korea and during the time he was in Japan," Col. Story volunteered, in a brief chat at the Harriss home. "The General was a wonderful passenger, he always 'let me do the flying' and never interfered with my judgment, or with schedules. In all of my years of association with him, he never uttered a cross word... he was always calm and collected, regardless of the seriousness of the situation; never lost his temper."

Col. Story was with the R.A.F. at the beginning of World War II and then was transferred to the American Army. He was chief pilot for the "Brass Hat Squadron" in Washington... flying all of the top international dignitaries, all over the world. He is now engaged in commercial aviation and "commutes" between the United States and the rest of the globe.

Robert Harriss, textile tycoon, philanthropist and rancher of New York, has been a winter resident of Florida for many years. He "commutes" between his Hobe Sound home, Texas ranch and Long Island estate. "I have always been interested in farming," he commented, "and my latest venture, is the development of a large ranch in Martin County, Fla."

Recently completed in Palm Beach and jointly owned by Harriss and Thomas O'Donnell of New York City, is the "Casa Del Lago"... a sixty-unit luxury apartment house on Lake Drive. One of the newest and most beautiful of the resort show places.

Deep sea fishing and golf are Mr. Harriss' favorite sports and according to his cronies, he is adept at both. When he isn't out on his yacht, "Majobov II" (named for his three children, Mary, Judith and Bob), cruising and fishing, he is bound to be playing golf on the Everglades Club golf course.

The latest arrival to join the Harriss family at Hobe Sound, is Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana... "who broke with the late President Roosevelt, over the disagreement of some of his policies and the 'New Deal' in general."

In discussing the presidential possibilities, Mr. Harriss said, "I was for General MacArthur in 1948 and am stronger than ever an advocate of his election now. He is the man to bring unity, peace and security, to our present chaotic world."

Mr. Harriss is a member of the New York firm, Harriss and Vose, Cotton Brokers.

Gulfstream Park Season

Newly Renovated Clubhouse a Show Place

A WEEK AGO TODAY Gulfstream Park's brand new million-dollar clubhouse opened wide its doors for the opening of its 1952 racing season.

The three-story structure is one of the real show-places of the turf, complete with escalators, elevators, wall murals, lush lounges, two dining areas, seating for nearly 5,000 and conveniences and innovations unmatched by any other track.

The first floor is devoted to seller and cashier mutual windows, a wide terraced outdoor apron accommodating several thousand chairs, a dining room with facilities for 450, bars and rest rooms. Escalators and elevators provide transportation to the second floor, as Gulfstream Park becomes the first race course in the country to introduce escalator service for its patrons.

One of the distinguishing features of the second floor is a handsome wall mural, measuring 37 feet by 17 feet, depicting the challenge of a field of horses on the turn. The painting is the work of Russ Ellis, well known equine artist, and is spectacular in its vivid action and realism. Mutual windows, a wide lounge and abundant floor space, a bar, and two main outlets to a private box area and a tiered seating arrangement are other attractive features.

The third floor is devoted to the new Gulfstream Turf Club. This boasts a private serving kitchen and dining room, a display of orchids (no less), a beautifully equipped lounge, a mutuels department and a box and seating combination overlooking the infield and nearby Atlantic Ocean. The Turf Club has already become a favorite rendezvous of social, business and racing leaders throughout the March 4 - April 19 meeting. In the rear a wide balconade, with tables and chairs, faces the walking ring and paddock, affording other impressive views of tropical grandeur.

Work on the clubhouse actually started nearly a year and a half ago, but shortage of materials caused a stoppage in labor with only the first floor ready for the 1951 season. A temporary wooden roof was thrown over the section, topped by a striped awning, and this sufficed for the balance of the meet. This year, however, the structure is complete in every detail, from tiled floors to the novelty of organ music which is piped into the dining areas daily.

"You'll have to see it to believe it," seems to be the most bandied phrase among the many thousands touring the plant daily, as Gulfstream Park introduces the turf's most modern clubhouse, and takes another stride along a continuing pathway which has already made it one of the outstanding tracks in the nation.

Names of turf notables, whose familiar faces are part of the Gulfstream Park social scene each season, again appear on the lists of box holders and Turf Club Members.

Among the racing enthusiasts now on hand when Gulfstream Park inaugurated its 1952 meet were Palm Beachites Stephen (Laddie) Sanford, Sanford Stud Farms owner; Amory L. Haskell, president of Monmouth Park; and former ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy.

A portion of the huge grandstand at Gulfstream Park race track, seen from across the infield lake. The cantilever grandstand is the only one of its type on the American turf.

Gulfstream Park's brand new clubhouse continues to be the cynosure of all horsemen's eyes. Wall murals, depicting nine life-size horses in thrilling action, and escalators are features of the beautiful structure.

Miami Beach Surf Club residents Mr. and Mrs. Emil R. Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred De Cozen (Short Brook Farms) and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Veeneman (he is vice president of Churchill Downs and a horse breeder and racer), are patrons.

Mrs. Evelyn L. Hopkins, owner of the famous Three Rings, is again in her box. She winters on Sunset Isle, Miami Beach. Other Miami Beach Gulfstream patrons are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. George Bugnaizet, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Connell (he is president of Hazel Park), Mrs. Marie Horning, Mrs. Walter O. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grant, Charles Johnson, owner of Bernadotte Stables, Mr. and Mrs. John Hettche and former Maryland governor John Stelle, Mrs. Ethel Haffa (Dormeyer owner) and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Massey, horse owners.

Prominent stable owners Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Hooper, Coral Gables and Mr. and Mrs. Tilyou Christopher, Miami, are Gulfstream regulars as are Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Gilroy (they are racers and breeders) and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Volkhardt, the last two couple Golden Beach residents. Stopping this winter in Golden Beach are the Charles T. Fishers (Fisher Body), Dixiana Stable owners, and their daughter Miss Mary. Dixiana horses are on the Gulfstream program.

Other names in the limelight are John Clark, president of Hialeah Park; Mr. and Mrs. Craig Johnson and Ben Tobin, Hollywood. Mr. Tobin is an owner of Hollywood Beach Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wray, large citrus growers, Senator and Mrs. George Leaird, Don Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin A. Agar, all of Ft. Lauderdale, are also box holders.

Paris Collections, Exciting This Year, Show New Silhouettes

PARIS IS A MAGNET. All the year round, that bland old siren lures visitors to her heart-shaped city and charms them. She offers a keen intellect, ready wit, creative power, sense of proportion and balance, good taste, spiced with a gay and freakish fantasy—enough to stir tired brains and quicken sluggish pulses. Twice a year there are Paris fashion collections which turn out to be minor miracles, feats of juggling with old themes, rejuvenating variations on the jaded topic of elegance.

This spring, the new line flows free around the body. It is a line of motion—charming, airy. Everything fits, nothing clings.

Dior had a superb personal, thrilling collection. Slim clothes predominated for day and evening, always a feeling of slimness, not bouffancy. Skirts are never tight or straight; they widen from the hips, with pleats of all sorts that give freedom for walking, but the width is always moderate.

Each season Dior becomes more elegant through sophisticated simplicity and although there is so much that is new in his collection, he is working along classic lines. Above all his present clothes are right for our life today. In these troubled times one doesn't want a "new look." The present "new look" is charm, class, elegance.

Dior's new flared day coats suggest raincoats in their simplicity but are made in wonderful, new materials. In many cases, his linings are more luxurious and of more expensive material than the outside of the coat... grey tweed worn over green satin or green surah lined with a wonderful print.

Silk coats are everywhere. Dior's fit the body closely, are gored and flare out just above the thigh, belled out at the bottom. This bell-shaped effect is a line that is repeated in many dresses; morning and cocktails.

Many coats in all collections look as if they were made of silk, but are a mixture of wool and silk. Sometimes the fabric looks more like silk than wool or vice versa.

This combination of silk and wool fabric has a great future. Shantung is giving way quickly to it.

Very new and accepted by every Paris dressmaker with spontaneity, is a mixture of silk, wool and mohair, in equal proportions. This mixture gives a streaked effect. It has been done superbly by the Swiss house, L. Abrahams & Company. So new is the character of fabric textures, that it would have been worth while to come to Paris just to see them.

Important are crepe de chine, surah, triple voile and chiffon, which by the way, is well on its way to being a big fashion. Dior's bonnets are often of the printed material of the lining of the coat. Suits in many of the collections are boxy in cut. There are also collarless suit jackets following cardigan lines.

A definite silhouette shown everywhere has a middy overblouse.

The Paris openings are characterized by a fluctuating, wandering waistline. It moves from place to place according to individual dresses but with a preference for the low hip line. No one yet has had the courage to take a drastic step. It was Balenciaga who, last season, launched this middy line, a line which is today in every collection. The Paris couture is experimenting with it in some form or other.

Griffe had an enchanting collection, wearable and charming; the best chiffon Empire evening dress in Paris. If the Empire line goes over for evening, it will be due to Griffe.

All houses show sand, putty, beige, natural shades going into nut browns, charcoal greys, but almost no dark blue for day. Much pale grey alone and in combination, as for instance: grey with brown or beige. There is a surprising amount of green; mossy and oyster greens.

Desses' color combinations for day were very smart, such as a white coat over a cinnamon shantung suit or putty-colored coat topping a charcoal grey dress. Charcoal grey is here with a bang in organza, silk, or silk and wool combined. Many blacks have a charcoal look.

Desses makes jackets of his suits shorter with skirt interest concentrated at the sides, coming from below the hip-line. His coats also have side fullness, flowing from the waistline. Both coats and jackets have  $\frac{1}{2}$  length balloon sleeves, which are always pushed up.

We are in an entirely new print era; totally different in design and color. They are treated in an impressionistic, three dimensional manner, with blotched, blurred designs. Many look hand-painted. Matisse and the sunflowers of Van Gogh have had an influence in coloring and design.

There are printed surahs and printed peau de soie, but no conversation prints, no set all-over designs.

Alpacas, feather weight, which don't crease, are of a beauty never before produced. In reality, these fabrics are not alpaca, but the word alpaca gives an idea to those who cannot see these enchanting new fabrics. Some of them are woven with the finest wool thread ever produced.

For evening, printed silks in flower themes—not the early spring flowers sold in the streets—mimosa, violets, crocus or narcissus—but begonias, gloxianas, sweet peas, jonquil colors or the green of fresh mown grass.

Worsteds and the wool and silk fabrics replace grey flannel. Many corded and rep weaves, wool bengalines, wool ottomans, some checks, a revival of tweeds, are other interesting Paris fabric notes.

There is a new Paris house just opened, called Hubert de Givenchy. The collection was like a breath of spring, young, charming, gay, modern. Everything he makes is right for America. Givenchy is often near the edge of a precipice, but never falls over. If any of his ruffles were one inch longer, they would be wrong. From the Right: A Patou design for morning wear, in sheer blue wool. Set in open neckline is a starched white gilet. Short "bell" sleeves.

American point of view, the Givenchy approach to fashion is modern. A new generation in Paris makes its bow!

He has glamorous evening capes and charming short evening dresses in white shirting cotton. He accents this fabric throughout the collection. His shop, which in Paris is called a boutique, will have great success with the American private client, as she will need only one fitting, if that!

Fath, whose collection was strikingly lovely, shows little double-satin cape-scarves, mostly edged with fringe. They contrast or match the color of the dress.

His separates are elegant, feminine and definitely the right note for our American life today. He shows skirts with these, about 9 or 10 inches from the floor.

Desses shows beautifully manipulated long chiffon dresses. Castillo makes a very pretty jonquil-yellow chiffon ankle-length evening dress.

Prints are divine for evening with little jackets, but the prints must be in one of the exquisite new designs.

Balmain had the best collection he has had in years. His evening dresses were dramatic and exquisite in coloring.

Summing up, everything depends on simplicity—style and grace depend on simplicity. In Paris, style isn't the prerogative of dressmakers; it can be found everywhere; in every street, from the little florist's window riotous with color, to the butcher who adorns his meat with red rosettes and green bay leaves.

The French passion for style persists. To the French, an ugly woman with charm and intelligence has beauty that lasts forever. There are a thousand ways of being beautiful. But no matter how beautiful a woman is, if she hasn't style, she's like an umbrella without a stick!

What is style! It is the highest standard of attainment, be it in the arts or fashions. It is elegance of being, beauty of motion and expression. It is what cannot be conceivably better: A bunch of snowdrops wrapped in an ivy leaf. It is a flash of color, like a smile on a drab dress. It is a woman's walk and bearing; it is the studious silence of a writer's study.

EVERGLADES CLUB

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY BALL at the Everglades Club set an all-time record for attendance and was one of the highlights in a very successful season. There were over seven hundred reservations, with a waiting list of around two hundred. Dinner was served in the Orange Gardens and the dining room, where the patriotic motif and colors were effectively used in the decorative scheme.

Meyer Davis, society orchestra leader, personally conducted the Everglades Club Orchestra for the dancing, which continued until the small hours of the morning. Highlighting the entertainment program . . . Lee Fairfax, noted baritone, and Consolo and Melba, who were featured in a sensational "bubble dance," a special apparatus where they danced through a maze of multi-colored bubbles.

Adding brilliance to the setting were the magnificent gowns and glittering jewels of the guests. It was one of the most pretentious balls to be given in the recent history of the Everglades Club.

Among those entertaining guests at dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stewart, who entertained Mrs. Harvey Dwight, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Vere Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Stemmler, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Browning, Mrs. George Kulukundis and Mr. William M. Holmes.

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Noerling had in their party Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell and Mr. and Mrs. John Crandall.

Mr. and Mrs. Morton H. Fetterolf entertained for their house guests, Mrs. William M. Weaver, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Fetterolf, of Philadelphia, Pa. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. G. Brinton Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Ott, Mr. and Mrs. Webb Hayes, Jr., Mr. Webb Hayes, Mr. Harold E. Masten, Mr. John Barbey and Mr. Herbert W. Kendall.

Complimenting their Palm Beach hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg, Mr. and Mrs. George White Traver gave a dinner. Their guests were Col. and Mrs. Warren Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Heermann, Mr. and Mrs. D. Claude Luse, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Fetter, Col. and Mrs. Henry E. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Church Paull, Mrs. Warren Horton, Mrs. S. Baker Fullerton, Mr. Jack O'Connor, Judge Cullen Ganey.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester G. Provo were Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Roche, Mrs. Alexander M. Paul and Mrs. William McK. Barbour.

The Red and White Ball, given for the benefit of Good Samaritan Hospital, March 3, was another important event at the Everglades Club. Mrs. Horace Elgin Dodge was honorary chairman for the event; Mrs. Edward F. Hutton and Mr. Harvey Ladew, co-chairmen. Other members of the committee included: Mr. and Mrs. John S. Pillsbury, Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, Gen. and Mrs. Arthur Carter, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, Jr., Miss Isabelle Haskell, Mr. James Bohannon, Mr. Richard H. Grant, Mr. A. M. Sonnabend, Mr. Wiley Reynolds, Jr., Mrs. George S. Ross, Mr. Amory Haskell, Mr. John W. Salisbury.

Weekly Canasta Tournaments are always popular at the Everglades Club. Playing in a recent tournament: Mrs. William A. McGee, Mrs. Gerard F. Alley, Mrs. M. S. Chadbourne, Mrs. Adele Pugh, Mrs. J. Thompson, Mrs. A. Disher, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Bissett, Mrs. William Frederick Battin, Mrs. Harry A. Wakefield, Mrs. A. Minshall, Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson, Mrs. J. Kendall, Mrs. J. Hay, Miss Florence Lainhart, Mrs. Betty Bosworth, Mrs. Owen Roberts, Mrs. William Russell Huntley, Mrs. Lorraine Harris Kersting, Mrs. Robert E. Gorton, Miss Jeanne Petinot and Mrs. Francis E. Green.

Noted playing in the Backgammon Tourney were: Mr. Edward J. Baehr, Mr. Kenneth E. Bahe, Mr. Harold Barnes, Mr. John W. Barnhart, Miss Elrita Bartholomew, Mr. and Mrs. William Benjamin, Mr. A. J. Cummings, Mrs. Muriel S. Dalzell, Count G. di Castagnola, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Dempsey, Count Jose Dorelis, Mr. James W. Duff, Mr. Herbert Farrell, Jr., Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson, Prince Archille Gourielli, Mr. and Mrs. Intermmil, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham, Mr. and Mrs. David Graham Legget 3d, Mr. Alfred V. Leaman, Mr. Martin McDonnell, Mr. and Mrs. Neal O. Miller, Mr. William Netto, Mr. Thomas A. O'Gorman, Mrs. Frederic Owsley, Cmdr. Dwight C. Paul, Mr. Lumen O. Peck, Mr. H. B. Porter, Countess Maximilien de Pulaski, Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Raese, Mr. George S. Rasmussen, Mr. Sidney King Russell, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Small, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith, Mrs. Donald Tansill, Mr. and Mrs. Edmond H. Taylor, Mrs. J. Dinsmore Tew II, Prince Nicholas Toumanoff, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Traina, Mr. George U. Ulmer, Jr., Mr. Charles H. Warwick, Jr., and Mrs. Marusia Wilson.

Giving luncheons on the Golf Terrace recently were: Mr. and Mrs. William S. Speed, Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt T. Dickinson, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Windsor, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Hickox, Mr. Ira Dunkle, Mrs. J. H. McGrew, Jr., Mrs. Adolph G. Storz, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Bahe, Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. Russell White, Mr. William Q. Cain, Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Rasmussen, Mr. Markos P. Nomikos, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dinsmore Tew 2d, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Van Gonsic, Mrs. Edward H. Graham and Mr. George Burbach.

Mrs. Urban Harris gave a luncheon on the Golf Terrace in compliment to her daughter, Mrs. John Edward McAuliffe, Jr., of Princeton, N. J., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Lorraine Harris Kersting, of Clarke Avenue. Other guests included Mrs. Thomas Baird Appleget, Miss Virginia Love, Mrs. John Cushman, Mrs. John Edward McAuliffe, Sr., Mrs. Marvin Anthony, Mrs. Lorraine Harris Kersting, Mrs. John Wakeman, Miss Florence Lainhart, Mrs. Emil Butt, Mrs. Robert E. Gorton, Mrs. John Albert Pardridge, Mrs. Bowen Blair, Mrs. Wilson Adams, Mrs. W. L. Shoffner and Miss Edith Bowden.

Mrs. H. Winfield Chapin entertained at the Wednesday Tombola Luncheon in compliment to Mrs. Theodore Wiehe. Other guests were Comtesse Pierre de Rostang, Mrs. Raymond Royce Kent, Mrs. Arthur E. Genius, Mrs. B. Aylwin Jacob, Jr., Mrs. Georgia Lee Parker, Mrs. Faith-Baird Cole, Mrs. Glenn Hale, Mrs. A. Winfield Chapin, Mrs. Lamar Harmon, Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson, Mrs. Frank T. Byrne, Mrs. James W. McGaughey, Countess Giovanni di Castagnola and Mrs. Myrtle Leach Shepherd.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Humphreys were hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Howard French, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., who are here aboard their yacht "Emily T", and Mrs. Glover Nettleton and her sister, Mrs. Daniel Ritchie Long. Mrs. Joseph H. Duskin entertained a group of friends including Mrs. Frank Osgood Butler, Mrs. Edward J. Baehr, Mrs. Hollis E. Potter, Mrs. Hugh Pausin, Mrs. Wells A. Lippincott, Mrs. John R. Hopkins, Mrs. Philip Wagner and Mrs. Laurence B. Hickam.

Looking across the putting green to the first tee we find some of the Mixed Foursomes contestants sharpening up their putting and a couple of other girls practicing chipping at the edge of the green. The latter are Grace DeMoss (in shorts) and Edean Anderson, with Spencer Courtice, a member of the Everglades pro staff, watching. Miss Anderson's father is at right with Jack Cendoya, her partner, and her mother is standing with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bauer, whose daughters, Marlene and Alice were the big attractions a couple of years ago.

Mixed Foursomes Highlights Sports

Champions are Polly Riley, Ft. Worth, Tex., and J. Wolcott Brown of Manasquan, N. J., in the Everglades Club Mixed Foursomes Invitation Golf Tournament.

All Golf Photos by Bob Husky

POLLY RILEY, Fort Worth, Texas, and J. Wolcott Brown, Manasquan, N. J., exchanged places with 1951 champions Bea McWane, of Birmingham, Ala., and Robert Sweeny, of the Seminole Club, winning the 17th annual Everglades Invitation Mixed Foursomes Golf Tournament, 5 and 4, from the defending champs. A big gallery followed the title match and was stunned by the ease in which the Riley-Brown combination won the finals.

Polly and Brown grabbed a quick lead by winning the first two holes with a par and birdie, and after halving the third they went three up on the weird fourth despite a fat six. McWane pulled their second shot to the lake, Sweeny went over the green, and by the time they were in the cup they had used up seven strokes. Meanwhile, Brown failed to lift over the hill to the green, but Miss Riley chipped up and two putts for a six won the hole.

Miss Riley and Brown were two up at the turn. They halved 10, won 11, then halved 12 with birdie fours. Polly hit the green with her tee shot on 13, but McWane pulled her ball to an unplayable lie that cost her side a penalty stroke.

Sweeny put the ball up for a three-foot putt for a four, but Riley and Brown were down in three to go four up. Brown put his partner in the rough on 14, but Polly got out nicely and Brown chipped up to two feet from the pin for a four and the championship, as Sweeny missed a putt and left eight feet for Miss McWane, who failed to make it.

Miss McWane and Sweeny tied with Catherine Fox Park, Bloomfield, N. J., and Tim Holland, of Miami, for medalist honors. They carded 73s as 79 teams posted scores. Miss Riley and Brown were right behind the leaders as they tied at 74 with Betty Rowland, Lexington, Ky., and Reginald Boardman, Jr., Palm Beach and a Seminole Club member. The latter team missed a tie for first when Boardman's 30-foot putt on the 18 hole hung on the lip. Other qualifying scores were: Elizabeth Ridge and George R. Guy, both of Fort Lauderdale, 75; Pat Devany, Grosse Ile, Mich., and O. F. Woodward, 3d, Everglades, 77; Grace DeMoss, Corvallis, Ore., and Lynn Creason, Harrisburg, Pa., 77; Kathy McKinnon, Lake Worth, and W. A. Pagan, West Palm Beach, 77; Helen Hampton, Signal Mountain, Tenn., and Earl E. T.

Bea McWane follows through in pitching ball (seen directly in front of her partner, Robert Sweeney) onto difficult No. 4 green. Miss McWane and Sweeney were the defending champions, but they lost out on the final day to the team they beat in the 1951 finals.

Smith, Everglades, 78; Berridge Long, Huntington, W. Va., and Arthur Ruffin, Pinehurst, N. C., 79; Mary Agness Wall, Menominee, Mich., and Ted Bassett, Seminole, 79; Mrs. Bradley Streit, Everglades, and Jack Penrose, Miami, 79; Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio, and George Rasmussen, Everglades, 79; Mrs. Carl Tuttle, Everglades, and William Hampton, Pine Valley, N. J., 80; Edean Anderson, Helena, Mont., and Jack Cendoya, Havana, 80; and Mrs. Harold Stone, Greenville, S. C., and J. J. Van Gonsic, Everglades, 80.

Then came the first round of play, with four flights of 16 teams. In the championship flight, McWane and Sweeney beat Hampton and Smith, 7 and 6; Long and Ruffin beat Ridge and Guy, 2 and 1; Wall and Bassett beat Devany and Woodward, 2 and 1; Rowland and Boardman beat Tuttle and Hamilton, 8 and 7; Park and Holland defeated Streit and Penrose, 5 and 4; DeMoss and Creason defeated McKinnon and Pagan, 3 and 1; Anderson and Cendoya beat Diringer and Boardman, 4 and 3; Park and Holland eliminated DeMoss and Van Gonsic, 4 and 3.

In the quarter-finals, McWane and Sweeney eliminated Long and Ruffin, 3 and 2; Wall and Bassett beat Rowland and Boardman, 4 and 3; Park and Holland eliminated DeMoss and Creason, 3 and 2, and Riley and Brown defeated Anderson and Cendoya, 6 and 5. McWane and Sweeney knocked off Wall and Bassett by 1 up, and Riley and Brown gained the finals with a 3 and 2 win over Park and Holland.

First-round losers dropped into a Beaten Eight division in each of the flights, and taking that title in the championship was the team of Carol Diringer and George Rasmussen, who scored a 2 and 1 victory over Pat Devany and O. F. Woodward.

Bonnie Randolph, Columbus, Ohio, and Tom Shevlin, Everglades, won the second flight by beating Vonnie Colby, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Paul Dunkel, Palm Beach, 1 up. Mrs. Thomas Sheldon, Bethlehem, Pa., and E. C. Alvord, Everglades, beat Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ribner, Metropolis, N. J., 1 up in the Beaten Eight.

Betty Knoedler, Pittsburgh, and James H. Howard, Everglades, won the third flight with a 5 and 4 win over Maureen Riley, McKeesport, Pa., and H. R. Ring, Newton, Mass. In the Beaten Eight, Mrs. Marthe Cowden, Santa Cruz, Calif., and Walter F. Anderson, Ridgewood, N. J., defeated Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Howell, Palm Beach, 1 up.

The fourth-flight title went to Mrs. Stanley Emerson, Dayton, Ohio, and Kenneth O'Hara, Tampa, who defeated Ann White, Uniontown, Pa., and J. Woolworth Donahue, Everglades, 2 up. In the Beaten Eight, Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Noerling, Valatie, N. Y., defeated Mrs. George Bilowick, Butler, Pa., and Anthony Wilson, Seminole, 4 and 3.

The Quentin Field Feitner Memorial Trophy golf tournament was played at the Seminole Club, with Chris Dunphy winning. Playing with a five handicap, he shot a 67 to be five up on par. In second place, two up on par, was Kim Salisbury, with an eight handicap. Third place was won by Robert Sweeney, handicap one, who was even with par.

Topping the guests' division was Jack Van Zant, who had a five handicap and was two up on par, and M. Melvin, handicap ten, who was even with par.

In the members' division, John G. Searle, 12 handicap, was one down; Russell Kelley, 15, and Wolcott Blair, 16, were two down; Richard W. Woolworth, nine, and Edward Oelsner, 13, were three down; Frank Ahern, eight; Paul

W. A. Pagan claps hands as he comes up to No. 4 green during first round match of Everglades Mixed Foursomes. Just off the green is his partner, Kathy McKinnon, and their opponents and conquerors, seen behind Miss McKinnon, are Grace DeMoss and Lynn Creason.

Walker, 13, and Edward B. McLean, seven, were four down; Ray S. Heffernan, 14; W. J. Blair, 16; Earl E. T. Smith, seven; Ted Bassett, six, and Dan Topping, 12, were five down; and Joseph Ritter, 15, and Charles Terry, 15, were seven down.

Trailing Van Zant and Melvin in the guests' division were George Baker, 16; E. B. Austin, nine, and Stanton Barbour, eight, one down; Jim Maver, one; Grant Keehan, 18, and Tommy Goodwin, scratch, two down; J. S. Knight, 10, and L. T. Preston, 16, three down; Howard Murray, nine, and R. P. O'Leary, 18, four down; and Bud Morle, 13, five down.

The Everglades Club net team won its first inter-club match of the season, shading the Jupiter Island Club of Hobe Sound, three to two, on the local courts. Mr. and Mrs. A. Parker Bryant, Everglades, defeated Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Bush, 6-4, 6-2; Mrs. Edith Hasler and Valentine Ely, Everglades, beat Mrs. I. A. Chapman and S. Carpenter, 7-5, 6-2; Mrs. Austin Pardue and Dr. W. Ambrose McGee, Everglades, defeated Mrs. G. Carew and Edward Morrow, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2; Mrs. W. Scott Blanchard and William Oughterson, Jupiter Island, defeated Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grace, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, and Mrs. J. Baird and George Stanford, Jupiter Island, beat Miss Alex Hufty and Page Hufty, 7-5, 6-1. Miss Hufty and her father needed only one point to blank their opponents in the first set, and still lost.

Dr. and Mrs. Harold W. Corya furnished the prizes for a tombstone golf tournament at the Everglades Club, and they wound up with possibly only one stroke keeping them from taking home their own awards. They finished in the 11th hole with Mrs. F. Stewart and J. M. Johnson, while two teams topped them by getting off drives to No. 12. Mrs. W. Hayes, Jr., and J. R. Berden were the winners, their 12th drive on their 53rd handicap stroke reaching out 200 yards. Mrs. D. R. McLennan and J. F. Gunster were allowed 54 strokes and their drive to 12 stopped 15 yards short of Mrs. Hayes' and Berden's.

Seventeen teams finished between the 11th tee and the hole. They were Mrs. Flather and H. B. Henry, 53 strokes, 10 inches; Mrs. Hu Woodward and William Bell, 54, 20 inches; Mr. and Mrs. J. Clyde Hooker, 50, two and one-half yards; Mrs. Ola Miller and T. Wiehe, 55, three yards; Mrs. G. V. Ferguson and Theodore Stemmler, 55, five yards; Mrs. H. L. Murray and A. D. Bint, 53, six and one-half yards; Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Meehan, 53, seven yards; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fribley, 51, eight yards; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Van Gonsic, 54, 18 yards; Mrs. William Ansted and S. W. Simpson, 49, 21 yards; Mrs. J. I. Simpson and P. P. Prudden, Jr., 52, 25 yards; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Corya, 53, 26 yards; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Baum, 51, 35 yards; Mrs. P. P. Prudden, Jr., and J. I. Simpson, 51, 65 yards; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Jackson, 55, 85 yards; Mrs. Charles B. Long and J. E. Hollingsworth, 52, 90 yards; and Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Walter, 53, 105 yards.

In the 10th cup were Mrs. E. E. Bartlett and J. L. Terry, 53 strokes; Mrs. W. H. Hoffman and H. C. Cushing, 50; Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Shay, 49; Mrs. John Cushman and Shel Greer, 49, and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Craigmyle, 50. Those short of 10 were Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Wyeth, 48, three inches; Mrs. William Merrill and J. J. Weed, 51, eight inches; Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Noerling, 46, nine inches; Mrs. T. W. Stemmler and Harvey A. Turnure, 53, two feet; Mr. and Mrs. Hal C. Rich, 49, two feet; Mr. and Mrs. R. Cowles, 53, two feet; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Bishop, 56, two and one-half feet; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rea, 50, six feet; Mrs. Homer Smith and Herbert Farrell, Jr., 45, eight feet; Mrs. S. Clark and S. Rumbaugh, 50, three yards; Mr. and Mrs. S. Peabody, Jr., 54, 10 yards; Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Smith, 55, 28 yards; Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell, 55, 42 yards; Mrs. S. W. Simpson and George Ulmer, 51, 50 yards; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Huntington, 47, 250 yards; and Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham, 55, in the ninth cup.

Member Earl E. T. Smith and Tommy Goodwin, playing out of Nassau, won the member-guest Ernest G. Howes Memorial Handicap golf tournament at the Everglades Club, carding an eight-under-par 62. Tied for second, one stroke

Elmer Rich, chairman of the Everglades Mixed Foursomes tournament committee, scored a hole-in-one on the 160-yard fifth hole of the Everglades Club course. It was the second ace of his career, and both were made on the same hole, but several years apart.

Fifteen-year-old Berridge Long of Huntington, W. Va., putts on the fourth green, with the beautiful but hazardous lake in the background.

behind, were Ted Bassett-Bob Ludwig, of Miami; J. Woolworth Donahue-Robert Sweeny, of Seminole, and J. E. McAuliffe-J. Wolcott Brown, of Manasquan, N. J. It was played with handicaps.

J. J. Van Gonsic won the men's 1952 putting championship of the Everglades Club by touring the 18-hole green in 35. One stroke back were Minturn Post Collins, Paul Cushman and P. P. Prudden, Jr., with Collins taking the playoff by posing a 17 for the nine extra holes. Herbert Farrell, Jr., had a 37; John Cushman, J. E. McAuliffe and A. P. Jenkins tied at 38, and William McKim, the 1951 champion, had a 39.

Prudden was the winner of the regular weekly tournaments that same day. He carded a hole in one on the third extra hole to beat out Dr. W. O. Smith after the two had tied with 34s. Mrs. Edith Hasler won the women's division with a 35, and Ed Remmert was low for guests with a 35.

Two holes in one were made on the same day by Elmer Rich, of Palm Beach and Chicago, and John T. McGhee, Arlington, Va. Rich, chairman of the Everglades Club tournament committee, scored one on the 160-yard fifth hole at Everglades. It was his second, made with the same 4-iron on the same hole that he got his first one several years previous. He was playing in a foursome with James H. Howard, Hal C. Rich and Shel Greer. McGhee got his on the 125-yard second hole of Palm Beach Golf Club while playing in a foursome with Dr. W. B. Stewart, Dr. James McCaffrey and Clyde B. Smith.

Five hundred and sixty-nine sailfish were accounted for by anglers this year in the Silver Sailfish Derby of the Palm Beaches. Of this number, 315 were released to give angler sportsmen another day. Anglers from 36 states and several Canadian provinces and foreign countries participated in the Derby, which ran for four weeks and saw one period when more than fifty sails were registered on each of four consecutive days.

Two anglers released six sailfish apiece in one day, and one of them, Henry Chanin, of Palm Beach and Atlanta, was awarded the George A. Bass Trophy for the outstanding achievement of a single day, as he also had a four-foot sail which he boated that day for a trophy mount. The other six-release angler for a single day was J. D. McLamb, of Palm Beach and Savannah, Ga. Chanin and McLamb tied for most releases during the entire Derby with 18, and duplicate Aksel Wichfeld Trophies. The Jim Logan Trophy for the outstanding record for boat captains went to Sonny Barr, captain of the Marcene II, on which 28 of the 31 fish caught were released. Fred Grundy, Savannah, Ga., won the Silver Sailfish Trophy for his eight-foot-four-inch sail, longest of the Derby, and received a miniature of the perpetual trophy from Henry Oliver Rea, son of the late Mrs. Henry R. Rea, who gave the original award. Grundy also gets his winning sail mounted.

The Widener Trophy for the heaviest sail not entered for length was won by Emanuel Rosenfeld, of Philadelphia. His fish weighed 75 pounds. The Henry Chanin Trophy, excluded to winners of the Rea and Widener trophies, was taken by C. F. Carter, of Danville, Ill. His fish weighed 70 pounds and was eight feet, one inch long. It gained 167 points at the rate of one point for each inch of length and each pound. The remaining two trophies went to Mrs. George A. Bass, of Palm Beach and Oxford, Mich. Her eight-foot, two and one-half-inch sailfish took the President's Trophy, presented by West Palm Beach Fishing Club President John Rybovich, for the longest sail on light tackle. It also won the West Palm Beach Fishing Club Trophy as the second longest sail taken on any tackle.

An ocean-side view of the Tarrant home . . . note the number of "picture windows" which give an unobstructed view of the Atlantic and spacious grounds. The architecture is Georgian and the elegant simplicity is repeated in the interior.

The oblong swimming pool, flanked at one end with smart "poolhouse," equipped with charcoal grill and wrought iron tables and chairs. Two cleverly decorated dressing rooms are at either side. A grand place to sun-tan, read and lounge.

THE PAST AND PRESENT merge ideally, in the North Ocean Boulevard home of Mrs. Robert Tarrant . . . a smart example of 18th Century traditional, in perfect harmony with life under the southern sun and palms.

Georgian is the architecture and this elegant simplicity is echoed throughout the distinctive decor of the various rooms.

The spacious living-music room, in the traditional manner, has a soft yellow rug, poudre blue walls, pale grey nylon glass curtains and hand-blocked linen over-draperies . . . grey ground, with large yellow and green tropical flower pattern.

In the foreground, as pictured here, the card group comprises Regency chairs in green lacquer, upholstered in gold and beige coin-dotted satin. The French provincial table of pickled wood, has a gold tooled leather top.

Chairs in the piano grouping, are bleached mahogany with textured fabric seats in tones of beige. Love seats of the drapery material "tie the room together" and lend color contrast.

The fruitwood end tables flanking these pieces, are finished with a brass gallery . . . companion lamps of gold and crystal. Interesting old English prints enhance the "conversational grouping", which also includes Italian hand-carved bleached wood Italian chairs and lounge chairs of deep green textured fabric.

At different ends of the lovely room, are twin Chinoiserie-decorated cabinets, topped with a pair of antique urns and backed by huge mirrors. Proof that antique and the time-patinated furnishings of yesteryear, fit in harmoniously with present designs for living, even in the southland.

Another fascinating thing about this room, almost one complete wall is comprised of ceiling-to-floor windows... overlooking the Atlantic. A pickled wood mantel at one end is both decorative and functional; a pair of white china figurines enhancing the decorative value. A scenic oil painting, hung over the mantel, picks up all of the colors used in the room.

An interesting coffee table of mirrored glass, is developed in a twelve-sided contour. Unique lamps (there are many throughout the room) of the tall-base version, feature "under glass" designs in gold.

Dignity and unique color mergers, highlight the dining room decor. The rose-red rug was dyed to match the bougainvillea blossoms in the chair upholstery... contrasted with pale green glass curtains and over-draperies of deeper green, with fringe of the same color, touched with red. The silver, tropical leaf-patterned wallpaper, furnishes a glittering background for the entire setting. Accented with three-sectional, mirrored breakfront. A rare and interesting piece!

Especially made for this room, the table of light pickled wood, has a parquet top. The Bombay sideboard, in the Louis XVI period, is walnut with distressed fruitwood finish... the accessories include old Waterford lustre, crystal prism candlesticks, pair of Waterford compotes.

One of the most interesting rooms of the house, the library, has paneled walnut walls with tray ceiling. Gay colored chintz curtains enhance the interior decorating... the same fabric used for the sofas and chair upholstery. Provincial coffee tables, an oval book table and several oil paintings, complete the setting. The books around three walls of the room, add colorful decorative interest. A knotty pine writing desk, is equipped with a green leather top. A wonderful place for reading or writing... the library is on the oceanfront and has a number of large windows.

A first floor guest room, done in a blue, green and white color scheme is cool and smart looking. The furniture is French antique, with textured upholstery in the same white tone... chintz draperies combine the chosen tri-color theme. Eyelet organdy bedspreads continue the white note... also the antique provincial dresser and walls of the room. The bathroom carries out the same color merger, highlighted with unique birdcage wallpaper.

Tradition was forgotten in the first floor loggia... a virtual duplication is located on the second floor of the house. A spacious, cheerful room, furnished in pickled rataan with chintz, and sisal rug in a huge diamond pattern. The clever built-in bar is papered in silver with beverage recipes in multi-colors. Large parakeet lamps in natural colors, with beige textured fabric shades... and fish tail palms, enhance the tropical influence.

John H. Volk was architect for the Tarrant house; Worrell's did the decorating.

A colorful bedroom... shocking pink rug, with matching bedspread and draperies. The Bombay chests, harmonizing in color theme and design! Hand-carved Venetian bed in turquoise blue; blue damask sofa; six mirrored lamps for illumination.

Under the Stars

The Patio, Palm Beach's favorite restaurant-club at Sunset and North County Road, has stood out in the glare of the social spotlight of this record breaking season, and if names make news the Patio is one of the newsiest spots in the resort. For at this swank, softly-lighted, cleverly decorated rendezvous, the elite of Palm Beach gather, whether for quiet, informal parties of their own, or to join the fun and gaiety provided in outstanding entertainment.

One of the highlights of the season was the selection of the Patio by the Palm Beach Chapter of Florida For Eisenhower for its dinner and entertainment program in the campaign to draft the general as a presidential candidate. Among those helping put the night over in speeches or entertainment were Connecticut Governor John Davis Lodge, Tex McCrary and his wife, Jinx Falkenburg, well-known figures in television, and Mrs. Sydney King Russell, who led the singing of Irving Berlin's "I Like Ike."

A steady run of good entertainment, food prepared by the best chefs available, and the unsurpassed music of Maestro Val Ernie's orchestra have proved to be very popular with resort residents and visitors.

Lovely Gracie Barrie was there for a limited engagement, and Patio patrons were unhappy when they learned she couldn't stay longer. The singing comedienne made a great big hit.

A fashion show, presented by Martha's, was a big attraction, and another special feature, through the courtesy of the Breakers Hotel, was the appearance of George and Betty Montgomery, who included the tango, pasodoble and rumba in their series of latin dance numbers.

Because the top flight names of society, business, sports and entertainment like to dine and dance underneath the Patio's canopy of stars and waving palms, the rendezvous of the smart set has become known as the place to see and be seen.

Guests of an evening have included Mr. Howell Van Gerbig, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. R. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. William Marcus, Mr. David Gerli, Mr. and Mrs. George Schrafft, Mr. W. A. Phillips, Mr. John H. Small, Mr. and Mrs. Martha Phillips, Mr. Henry Brady, Miss Gertrude Brady, Mr. and Mrs. E. With the season at its fabulous height, the Miramar Restaurant is the setting nightly for smart groups of colonists who gather early for dinner, and remain late to hear June Nelson, society's favorite disease, who appears nightly in the new and glamorous Florentine Room. One of the resort's most fabulous entertainers, Miss Nelson has an enviable following, and a repertoire that has won her acclaim here and in Chicago where she has appeared in smart clubs.

Patrons of the Miramar find the atmosphere of the restaurant much to their liking. An intimate and decidedly continental atmosphere prevails, and makes for pleasurable dining and wining.

The new Florentine Room is also a popular rendezvous for Palm Beach winter colonists, who drop in for a late supper or a nightcap. Open until 3 a.m. nightly, the Florentine Room features continuous entertainment and delectable supper delicacies.

Noted there were Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn Jr., Mrs. Clarke Gable, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bassett, Mr. Woolworth Donahue, Zachary Scott of the films, Burgess Meredith, also of the films, and Mrs. Meredith, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Barry Jr., Count and Countess Jose Dorelis, Mr. and Mrs. James W. FOR THE LOVER OF AN EARLIER ERA, and who doesn't love the lusty, carefree eighties and nineties of last century, The Opera House, on North Federal Highway, Boynton Beach, is the place to eat, drink, browse and relax. Completely decorated in Victorian style, The Opera House has a marvelous collection of old playbills, and a ceiling papered with authentic posters that were used to adorn the sides of buildings and opera houses in advertisement of the hits of grandpa's day. tion of James A. Magner, Cape Cod, greets the diner at the door, and from then on time slips back more than half a century for the Opera House diner.

Owners Harold and Gwen Gaillard have made this southern Opera House the same wonderful place to go that summer vacationers find in their Opera House at Nantucket. From the old-time theater curio collection, some of which was photographed for Life magazine recently, to the superb Hot Hors d'Oeuvres Opera House, a sea food-filled French pancake; Filet of Pompano Amandine; Chicken Saute Maderia; Frogs Legs Provencale; Shish Kebab Flambee and Tenderloin of Beef en Brochette, the Gaillards have thought of everything to please the diner. A fully stocked bar supplies anything in the way of potables, with an Opera House Cocktail, of brandy, cointreau and a secret ingredient the specialty of the house.

Egypt-born piano artist Yannis "Duke" La Rai, who toured the United States, Europe and the Far East as part of an exotic dancing troupe with his French-Egyptian parents, is well known to winter colonists for his handling of show tunes, dinner music, boogie and low-down blues.

The Delray Little Theatre Group considered the glorious theatre history of the past, as shown in Opera House decor, the ideal place to hold a party recently. In a post-performance celebration after "George Washington Slept Here" were Mrs. John C. Church, Mr. Gerald Tabor and Mr. and Mrs. W. Osborne Webb.

Noted musicians who came to The Opera House to hear "Duke" La Rai in recent days were Dwight Fiske, Cliff Hall and "Cy" Walter, who is now playing at the Blue Angel in New York.

Seen dining recently at The Opera House were: Mrs. Irene DuPont, Mr. Charles C. Batchelder, Mrs. Tom M. Girdler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart B. The polo enthusiasts have found Scampi's in great numbers, as players and fans from Gulf Stream Polo Club have been dining there after the games. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart B. Iglehart have become regular customers of the Boynton continental atmosphere home of good eating, as have Mr. and Mrs. George Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Silvero, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Bostwick and Peter Perkins. Mr. Iglehart is captain of the Delray team and is the nation's top ranking polo player, a ten-goal man. He is also rancher, businessman and athlete.

Other guests who have recently been seen in Scampi's are: Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kingan, of Gulf Stream; Mr. and Mrs. George Bullard, of Fort Lauderdale; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Dattrick, of Fort Lauderdale; Mr. and Mrs. M. Maestros at the Music Box are of versatile and varied talents and thus keep the cheerful Worth Avenue restaurant and bar on the preferred list of Palm Beachers and Gold Coasters who swing along with the trend toward cocktails, dinner and supper-clubbing all under one roof.

And at the Music Box diversity is the theme from entertainers to patrons with jovial manager-owners Joe Moss and Martin McNally always thinking up something new to augment a program of fun and frivolity.

Along with Peter Carew of capricious vocal and piano escapades, Charlie Wright, Jr., mischief-maker with song, piano and accordion, and the Mary Wood Trio—Mary at the big bass viol, Freddie, the frolicking pianist and Tony of guitar and violin fame, the firm of Moss and McNally ring in an extra star who just now is Sandra Kiraly, Viennese songstress of sweet notes and calypso cavorting.

Dull moments are unknown at the Music Box where each Tuesday night the Fred Astaire dance studio sponsors a dancecade and on Fridays resort fashions are paraded by models under auspices of the fashionable Palm Beach shops.

And of course food at the Music Box is of the best with vintage wines and deftly concocted apertifs as a delightful accompaniment for those who so desire.

Lake Worth a-Buzz with Boats

ALL EYES WERE ON THE DOCK the other day when the biggest yacht ever to tie up at the Palm Beach Biltmore came gracefully to rest in its berth after a trip from South Carolina. The ninety-six foot "Spring Maid", belonging to Colonel and Mrs. Elliott White Springs, of Fort Mill, South Carolina, is carrying five cruise guests, in addition to Col. and Mrs. Springs. The yacht is named for the fabric manufactured by Col. Springs, president of the Kershaw Cotton Mills.

Colonel Springs is a World War I airforce ace, holding the D.S.C., Distinguished Flying Cross (British), Medal of Honor (Aero Club of America) and has written the following books: "Nocturne Militaire", "Leave Me With A Smile", "Above The Bright Blue Sky", "Contact", "In The Cool Of The Evening", "The Rise And Fall Of Carol Banks", "Pent Up In A Penthouse", "Warbirds and Ladybirds", and "Who Steals My Pants Steals Trash".

Word comes from Miami that Mr. and Mrs. John P. Porter of Chicago and Palm Beach made the Flamingo dock a stop on their cruise aboard the "Sea Dream" to Marathon, the Angler's Club and Shark River. The "Sea Dream", a familiar sight in Lake Worth in the winter season, is also carrying Mr. Porter's mother and sister, Mrs. Henry H. Porter and Miss Mary A. Porter, of Manchester, Virginia.

Another frequent Palm Beach visitor is the "Exact", belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. Burr Bartram of Round Island, Greenwich, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. E. Jared Bliss of Boston are cruise guests of the Bartrams'. The sailing of the "Exact" should certainly be smooth and pleasant, as Mr. Bartram is rear commodore of the New York Yacht Club, and Mr. Bliss is commodore of the Edgartown Yacht Club.

The "Cristina", Mr. and Mrs. William Schmidt's handsome yacht, with Richmond as its home port, has departed, with owners aboard, for Bahia-Mar, Ft. Lauderdale.

Headed for the annual yachting event, the Commodore Ball at Key Largo is Mr. T. G. Markley, oil magnate, of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, and guests, on board the impressive Markley yacht, "Wilmar".

Mr. Barney Balaban, President of Paramount Pictures, with Mrs. Balaban is at Whitehall for their annual visit. Their yacht is the "Judith R."

Another candidate for the cutest-name-in-yachts contest, if one is ever held, is the "For-Even's-Sake", belonging to Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Evans, of automobile sales fame. The "For-Evañ's-Sake" is frequently seen in Lake Worth on week-end cruises from its home port of Miami.

Stars of the entertainment world have been sailing the local and offshore waters in the past two weeks. Not only James Melton, who was cruising with his wife and daughter Margo, on the "Karina", but Robert (Bob) Smith, Master of Ceremonies on the "Howdy Doody" television show, has been cruising and fishing in the Larry Jones party on board the "Mermaid".

Nelson Benedict, sports editor of the Newark Star Ledger has been a recent and ardent fisherman from the decks of the "Riptide II".

Mrs. B. Davis Crowninshield of Palm Beach and "Hemlock Hill", Manchester, Mass., often referred to as one of the world's greatest anglers, has left for Peru to fish for marlin and sailfish. Mrs. Crowninshield has been fishing from the "Butterball", in local waters.

The stunning blue and white yacht noted near the end of the Australian Avenue dock recently was the "Savitar", owned by Mr. and Mrs. Feltman, of Miami. From Palm Beach the "Savitar" cruised to Nassau.

Mrs. J. B. Hughes entertained with luncheon and canasta on board the yacht "Sea Horse" last week. Guests were Mrs. George Archer, Mrs. Frank Smith, Mrs. Albert Compton, Mrs. George Woodward, Mrs. Harvey Van Cott, Mrs. Franklin P. Wilson and Mrs. Jack Butler.

Cruising to the Boca Raton club for lunch, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hughes had as their guests on board the "Sea Horse" Mr. and Mrs. Francis Woolard, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Melvin and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Geisler, all of Chicago.

Entertaining on board his beautiful "Wilmar" on a recent Sunday, Mr. T. G. Markley had as his guests, Mrs. Gertrude Astor, Baron Ritter Von Kreidner, Mrs. John R. Peddie, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Meader of San Antonio, Texas; Mr. William Filer, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fordyce, Greens Farm, Conn.; Miss Barbara Thurston, New York; Mr. Daniel E. Taylor, Mrs. Valerie Mann, Houston, Texas; Mr. William Baldwin Shearer, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alexander Irwin, Houston, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gubelman, Oyster Bay, L. # The Colony

NUMEROUS SOCIALITES AND CELEBRITIES from all over the country registered at The Colony during the past month. Among guests who are at the hotel for the remainder of the season, or who were there for winter holidays: Mr. and Mrs. William R. Kent and son Bill, of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Augustus Maxwell, of Woodstock, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lee, Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wells, Southbridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Saint, of Paris, France; Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Embiricos, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Ira Schey, Rye, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John O. Brennan, Short Hills, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Irwin, Houston, Texas, who have a penthouse at The Colony; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Sweeny, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Spees, Manhattan; Miss Mary Howes, New York; Mrs. Jacques Gerard, Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Taylor, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lothe, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Lyethe, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Leon Leonidoff, of the same place; also Miss Annamary Dickey; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Urschel, San Antonio, Texas; Mr. Dan Topping, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hale, Mr. Meyer Davis and Miss Virginia Davis, all from New York; Mrs. C. Gronewald, South River, N. J.

Mrs. C. Aubrey Cartwright, who has a penthouse at The Colony for the season, was hostess at a large cocktail party there for Palm Beach friends.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Irwin were also hosts at cocktails in their penthouse suite.

Colonists who are discriminating about their dining choose The Colony for its superb food, impeccable and gracious service and home-like atmosphere. The spacious green and white room, with its white ruffled organdy curtains, mirrored glass wall, to give the illusion of space, and modern decor present a setting analogous to dining in your own home.

Entertaining during dinner in the Colony's smart dining room . . . Herbert Ricci and Alexandro Rosatti, famous continental musicians, who are as adept at the classics as they are playing Broadway hit tunes: Ricca at the piano and Rosatti, violinist.

During the cocktail hour, in the Cocktail Lounge, Ricci entertains with impromptu piano and accordion "musicales," basing his programs on requests of patrons. The Terrace Club of The Colony is a popular rendezvous for members of the hotel and cottage colony . . . for special luncheons, cocktail parties, late supper parties. Ricci and Rosatti entertain in this attractive tropical room with the clever built-in bar, bamboo furnishings and wall murals of old Florida. One side, completely glass-enclosed, opens on the lovely patio, which, by the way, is a grand place to lounge, read and sun-tan.

With gracious service the "hallmark" of The Colony, and the atmosphere more like a private club or southern manse than a hotel, numerous winter colonists return year after year and make it their "home away from home." As Bernard H. Cooley, vice-president and general manager of the hotel ably expressed it, "Our slogan is service above everything else and the patron is usually right."

The Colony is open all year round, and each year finds more and more northerners coming to spend a summer holiday, discovering Palm Beach delightful in both seasons. Last summer a record number of visitors vacationed at the hotel. Also many Palm Beachers, who have homes on the island but found the air-conditioned Colony much more comfortable . . . and in close proximity to the beaches, golf clubs and the like, more convenient for summer living under the Florida sun.

PALM BEACH HOTEL

Vice President of the United States, the Hon. Alben W. Barkley, center, seen at the reception tendered him upon his arrival at the Palm Beach Hotel recently for a short vacation. Left to right, Controller of New York City Lazarus Joseph, who also vacationed at the hotel; Mr. Frank Seiden, proprietor of the Palm Beach Hotel; the Vice President, Mr. Milton Seiden and Mr. Leon Seiden, proprietors of the hotel.

THE PALM BEACH HOTEL effected a most decisive social coup of the season recently when Vice President and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley were snared into its gracious midst and out of the eager invitations of a number of other swank hostelrys in society's playground.

The Barkleys, by far the most important visitors to the resort this season, spent a four-day vacation at the Sunrise Avenue retreat as part of the Vice President's recuperation from a recent successful surgery.

The evening of their arrival, the Barkleys were tendered a reception at the hotel by Mr. Lazarus Joseph, Controller of New York City, guest of the hotel with Mrs. Joseph. Held in the quietly elegant Top O' The Palm Cocktail Room, the pre-dinner reception was a study in subdued lighting, exquisite fashion, and a glorious table surmounted by a spread-wing eagle in ice.

The Vice President and Mrs. Barkley spent most of the four-day sojourn resting in their suite.

Other recent guests at the Palm Beach Hotel were Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smith, of New Rochelle, New York. Mr. Smith, creator and voice of the "Howdy Doody" television puppet which has captured the hearts of the nation's children, spent a rather busy time at the hotel. Besides being besieged by autograph hunters with nieces or nephews or grandchildren "back home," the genial puppeteer found time to direct and act as master of ceremonies at a hotel staff show.

This marked the third consecutive season that the Smiths spent their vacation at the Palm Beach Hotel.

Also guesting at the hotel in recent weeks was Mr. Nick Kenny, noted columnist of the New York Daily Mirror. He and Mrs. Kenny also were repeat visitors to the hotel.

A columnist from a rival newspaper of the Mirror, Mr. Jimmy Jemail of the New York Daily News, visited the hotel recently.

Huntington Hartford, well-known member of New York and Palm Beach society, was noted last week at the Cabana Club.

On hand to entertain these outstanding guests and the less luminous vacationers at the Palm Beach Hotel were many outstanding performers and engaging evenings of diversion.

The Vice President and Mrs. Barkley, as well as the Josephs, were among the capacity throng that filled the Top O' The Palm Club one Wednesday evening to watch a show that featured Paul Gray, one of the most clever comedians ever heard in Palm Beach. His subtle, hilarious routines drew much applause from the distinguished visitors. The graceful interpretative ballroom sequences of Michael and Peggy Arnow, an English couple who are capturing audiences all over America, also drew the ovations of the gathering.

The recent Saks Fifth Avenue fashion show in the hotel's West Patio was one of the outstanding displays of the apparel arts in Palm Beach this season. Featuring the newest creations from the studios of Marusia, Traina-Norell, Nettie Rosenstein, et al., the show was well received by an over-capacity throng.

Still the favorite at the hotel, however, are the glamorous aquashows presented at the Cabana Club. At a recent aquatic presentation, Dick Turner, the world's championship handicapped diver, was the center of attention as the one-legged athlete performed feats from the three-meter board worthy of the best divers with full use of their limbs.

On another evening recently, Mr. Albert Meltzer, a guest from New York City, held a Cocktail Lounge crowd spellbound by mental wizardry found only among the best professional mentalists.

Mr. Meltzer studied psychology at Columbia University, and later participated in the extra-sensory-perception experiments at Duke University.

Mr. Burgess Meredith, the renowned figure of American drama, visited the Palm Beach Hotel's Cabana Beach Club recently. He was the guest of Mrs. Sue Bernstein, whose daughter, Miss Phyllis Bernstein, is on the New York staff of playwright S. N. Behrman.

The Ambassador

REFRESHINGLY UNIQUE in its spaciousness, appointments and thoughtful consideration of personal comforts for its guests, the Ambassador Hotel of Palm Beach enjoying this season the busiest in its history brings together discriminating holiday sojourners from the width and breadth of the country and Canada as well.

Your own estate far from the noise and confusion of mid-town, the Ambassador is a domain sufficient unto itself so far as the taste of every guest is concerned. Five golf courses and three tennis clubs are within minutes of the hotel with a fleet of limousines at the disposal of guests throughout the day and evening.

Fishing, polo, a shopping trip to Worth Avenue are within a ten-minute ride, while at the same time the sea and sand is at your door, a quick half-minute through a tunnel from the hotel proper landing you face to face with the blue-green Atlantic.

And while you may live at the Ambassador as you would in your city mansion or palatial apartment, a plan exists for dining out each evening in the elegant Embassy Room of the hotel where no connoisseur stumps Frederick, the hotel's maitre d'hotel of classic epicurean proportions.

Thus the aplomb in every dish served at the Ambassador, from traditional rare roast beef—the all-American specialty to Les Escargots Bourguignonne—one dozen snails has a touch of Frederick behind it and becomes an unforgettable experience in gourmandizing... a most pleasant unforgettable experience.

Then for late evening supper clubbing the Ambassador boasts the Embassy Terrace, quaint and convivial adjacent to its small but impressive bar with Williamsburg blue walls decorated in heraldic symbols. Here Norman Wallace, the Chicago American with a French accent performs each evening at two shows.

Continental capering at the piano is Wallace's specialty and besides playing a delightful program as background dinner music each evening at the Ambassador, he repairs to the Embassy Terrace on the stroke of ten to go into his versatile song and piano sallies for large audiences.

Making his first appearance in Palm Beach this season where he was brought from The Buttery of the Ambassador West Hotel in Chicago, there's no doubt that when the Palm Beach season's results are in, Norman Wallace will be high up on the list of the best entertainment performances in the resort this year.

Sojourning just now at the Ambassador are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Harris of Atlanta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Irving Edison of St Louis, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Janover of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Juster of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. Leon Burger, Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. and Mrs. M. D. Friedman of Shaker Heights, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. # New York Letter

Dear Dora,

I suppose by this time you have seen Sylvia Gable, whom I'm told has taken a house at Palm Beach for a few weeks. Lovely Sylvia you know was in Doctor's Hospital as a result of a motor accident at Nassau, and was told by her physician to come to your resort for a much needed rest. But friends from Palm Beach write me she has been seen almost constantly with Woolie Donahue, whom you will remember was her favorite companion before her surprise marriage to film star Clark Gable.

One of the loveliest parties I've attended in some time was the Mardi Gras Ball held recently in the main ballroom of the Plaza for the benefit of the New York Junior League's welfare fund.

Hues of pink, turquoise, pink and gold predominated in the decorations, while the color motif was carried out in the shades of materials of the court gowns worn by the women participating in the pageant.

There were many gala dinners given, and among those who entertained were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Luckenbill, Mr. and Mrs. James McKinley Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Jimenis, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Van Norden, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Twiss, Mr. and Mrs. Owen C. Torrey Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Rea, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Carrington, Mr. and Mrs. D. Nelson Adams, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Rosenberg.

Also Dr. and Mrs. George Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Bateman, Mr. and Mrs. Hahlon Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling S. Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Herndon.

Everyone in New York is having a huge laugh over the new decorator's shop opened by George Frelinghuysen, of the well known family. The fact that George opened a shop is not the reason for the giggles, but that George has told all his friends it's for men only is the cause for the mirth. His comment was "women are too much trouble." Oh well, George will learn.

The Duke of Argyle, who was at Palm Beach last winter, has stopped all talk of a severance with his wife, by joining the duchess at Nassau. And speaking of Palm Beach, whom should I see recently here but Margaret Emerson, who came up with the Eugene P. Lanfranchis and Aksel Wichfeld. The Lanfranchis, you know, have left for a cruise, but will return to Palm Beach much later in the season.

New Yorkers are mourning the departure of George Bagby who sailed recently on the Queen Elizabeth for England, France and Spain. George told me he plans to remain abroad until summer, so he shall also be missing from the Palm Beach scene.

Eleanor de la Bouillierie has moved into her new apartment where she is awaiting the arrival from Paris of her husband, Henri, who has been refused a visa to this country because of ill health. Eleanor and a group of friends have pulled some strings out of Washington, and chances are it won't be too long before her husband arrives.

Have you run into Norman and Tamara Newhouse at Palm Beach. They left Newport some weeks ago, headed south, and stopped here for a brief hello to friends.

Her Royal Highness Princess Alice of Greece, mother-in-law to the Queen of England was in New York. I saw her at the Sherry Netherlands where she was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Kyrou, the former of whom is Greece's ambassador to the United States.

Lewis Merrill, whose father is a vice-president of the South American Express Co., has forgotten about his New York girl friends and is expected to marry a southern belle in the early spring.

Nancy, is she or isn't she the Maharanee of Cooch-Bihar, Valentine, has sold a huge batch of uncut diamonds to Jane Stuart Smith. Evidently Nancy got something out of Coochie, even though it wasn't his title.

Barney Baruch Jr. and lovely Elizabeth Graves are so serious about each other that friends are predicting an announcement any day. At this moment, they are at Miami Beach, so don't be surprised if they should look you up.

I heard Ethel Merman was given a simply marvelous party at Palm Beach by Charlie Cushing who is staying with Mr. T. Ludlow Chrystie and his debutante daughter, Miss Julia Ross Chrystie, arrive for a ball given in the Plaza.

Doc Holden. She flew down for the gala, and then returned next day to do her lead in "Call Me Madam." Incidentally, I hear that when the show opens in Washington, Russell Nye, who has the juvenile lead, won't be with the company. Bigger and better things for Russell, do you suppose?

The Bert Rupps, she was Cynthia Foy, you know, are having a brief holiday at Nassau. So many New Yorkers are either at Palm Beach or in the islands that Gotham society has become quite dull.

Society photographer and social editor of "Town and Country," Jerome Zerbe, added another feather in his cap by M.C.ing the show in the Chanteclair Room of the Sherry Netherland the other afternoon. Jerry couldn't have been better as a fashion commentator, and everyone thought he was simply grand.

Irma Paris, who has a large heart balm suit in the making against Ledyard H. Birch, may throw another suit at him. Irma has been twice married, and is really a character. Her lively comments are the delight of New York society. Her last marriage was to a wealthy Brazilian oil man.

Tom Greenwood and his wife, the former Patricia Proctor of Proctor and Gamble fortunes, are agreeing to disagree. If the divorce comes through, he will allow her to obtain an uncontested severance in Connecticut.

Added gaiety—Noel Coward has been signed to appear in the Empire Room of the Waldorf, which will be a great treat for New Yorkers who haven't seen him in some time, professionally that is.

Another item to report to you—Ginny Simms and Bob Calhoun have patched their differences and all is cozy once more. But just how long this new lovey dovey business will last is what their friends are wondering.

No more news for the moment Dora. Will let you know when I have more gossip.

Love,

ELLEN.

Palm Beach Biltmore

STILL THE MAJOR TOPIC of conversation around town are the two glittering shipboard cocktail parties held simultaneously down at Dan Taylor's Palm Beach Biltmore hotel yacht moorings, this past month.

The hosts known from coast to coast for their super duper yachting parties were T. G. Markley of Baton Rouge, La., in port for the season on the luxurious Wilmar and Roy Evans, auto magnate from Miami whose ninety-footer, For 'Evans Sake, is a frequent visitor at the Biltmore docks.

Humorous event of the evening was the missing piano player and singer, Cliff Hall, engaged by Roy Evans to entertain his guests. He was no where to be found—meanwhile time was marching on and Roy was pacing the deck—about an hour later one of Roy's guests discovered Cliff on board the Wilmar, playing furiously for Markley's guests. Hall had climbed aboard the wrong boat, which was easy enough to do as both were moored bow to bow at the end of the dock. Later in the evening Markley discovered he had met Evans many years back in California. As both had issued cocktail invitations to about the same guests everyone wound up having the time of their lives, cruising back and forth from one party to the other.

Notable political writer on international affairs on board the Wilmar was William Baldwin Shearer of Washington, D. C., Mr. Shearer an expert on naval affairs was US representative at the Geneva Naval Conference and has authored such books as "Pacifico" and the "Cloak of Benedict Ar- nold". House guests of Mrs. Raymond Royce Kent, stepping up the gang-plank included Mrs. John R. Peddie, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Meader, San Antonio, Texas and William Filer, New York. Making merry in other groups were Baron Ritter E. von Kreider, Mrs. Gertrude Astor, Daniel E. Taylor, Mrs. Valerie Mann, Houston, Texas, Miss Barbara Thurston, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fordyce, Greens Farms, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alexander Irwin, Houston, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gubelman, Oyster Bay, Long Island, Mr. and Mrs. Temple Hargrove, New Orleans, La., Sally Sloane, Westport, Conn., and Allan Minter, Miami Beach.

Roy Evans who always favors colorful personalities had the sparkling Earl "Mad Man" Muntz on board, builder of the new Muntz, Jet auto from Los Angeles, California. Also hotel magnate Carl Dinkler Jr. and Mrs. Dinkler, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lee, Mr. and Mrs. David Leggett, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Little, Phila., Pa., Mrs. Ann Cook and Cam Stevens, New York. Others lined up at the spacious bar on Roy's floating palace were Virgil Moore, man about town and one of the Gold Coast's eligible bachelors from Star Island, Miami Beach, Mrs. Lister Trout, Haverford, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Trout and Mr. and Mrs. Don Davis. Many of the guests remained for the sumptuous broiled chicken and Spanish rice dinner prepared by Roy's master chef.

While the Biltmore's docks have been humming with activity, the social scene at the hotel has been jam packed with scintillating events. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Farley Jr. of New

Mrs. George F. Moran and her daughter, Laura, of Brooklyn, return to the Palm Beach Biltmore docks after a leisurely cruise on Lake Worth.

York have been the incentive for numerous parties. Mr. Farley is the son of the nationally known political figure, Jim Farley. Mrs. Farley who is considered a great beauty and Mr. Farley flew to Jamaica for a week's visit and have since returned to the Biltmore. Currently the group of Chicago "braintrusts" at the Biltmore all members of the exclusive Westmoreland Club are in the throes of their annual Florida golf tournament. Sojourning here annually the niblick wielders who evenings stage a gin rummy tournament include Sterling Peacock, vice-president of N. W. Ayer and Son, Graham McCorkle, retired chairman of the Bell Telephone System, Jerry Ungaro, vice-president and legal counsel of the Magnavox Co., Fred Jensen, Mr. and Mrs. William Otter, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Holland, and Lloyd Neeley. Needless to say, the two wives who accompanied their husbands are members of the large colony of "golf widows".

While the great George Washington Ball held out on the Tropical Terrace of the Biltmore with nearly 800 guests on hand to pay tribute to the father of our country topped all previous galas, the St. Patrick's Day Ball on March 17th will be of equal social significance. Erin will reign as king and the entire terrace will reflect the St. Patrick's Day theme with flashing green lights, Irish flags, favors, novelties and green Hawaiian leis adding zest to the celebration. A New York floor show will be presented as in former years and needless to say Irish jigs and the popular old Irish melodies will highlight the festivities.

Reservations are already being received for luncheon parties on March 23rd when the country's greatest Easter Parade of fashions with over forty Worth Avenue shops participating will be presented. Fashion and style editors, television and news cameras will be on hand to review what the well dressed man, woman and child will display on Easter Sunday—not only fashions for women, but for the entire family will be shown with style co-ordinator Kay Lowe directing the show. It is suggested that you mark this date March 23rd on your calender and call Jerome, maitre d'hotel at the Biltmore for luncheon reservations.

Gulf Stream and Delray Beach

THE CULTURAL LIFE of Delray Beach and Gulf Stream has been most active the past few weeks. The Little Theatre of Delray recently gave a full week of superb performances of the play, "George Washington Slept Here," a three act comedy written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, and directed by Stuart Warrington, professional director.

The February meeting of the Delray Beach Garden Club was held with Mrs. Howard Phipps at her ocean front home in Delray Beach. The Gladioli Festival which was seen by an estimated 36,000 persons, including petite Vera-Ellen, MGM dancing star, was most successful.

A special guest at the Gulf Stream Polo Field recently was movie star Veronica Lake, who starred in Philip Barry's gay comedy, "The Animal Kingdom" at the Palm Beach Playhouse.

The Delray Beach Garden Club is sponsoring a "House and Garden Tour" which will take place tomorrow, March 12th, with Mrs. Roland Joyal and Mrs. Edward Schellenberg as co-chairman. Homes to be shown will be the North Ocean Blvd. residence of Mr. and Mrs. Algernon W. Brown, the Seaspray Ave. home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Bond, the Waterway Lane home of Mr. and Mrs. William La Porte, and the garden of Mrs. Dorothy Day Mitchell on the intra-coastal waterway. Refreshments will be served at the North Swinton home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Pruyser.

A number of parties have been given during the late winter season. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Harold Pierce, of Brookline, Mass. who have been entertaining Mrs. Louis B. Harding, of Chestnut Hill, Mass. at MacNichol Manors where they are staying this season, gave a cocktail party at the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club. Capt. and Mrs. Earl M. Major, who with their daughter Miss June Major, are at their Gulf Stream home for the season, recently entertained with a "Neighborhood Cocktail Party" having as their guests, their neighbors in Gulf Stream.

Gen. and Mrs. Arthur H. Carter, of Delray Beach, entertained with a luncheon and a cocktail party for their house guests Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lovejoy, of Greenwich, Conn. Another cocktail party was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Faris for their daughter Mrs. Joanna Courson, of Eugene, Oregon, who is their house guest. The Tom M. Girdlers also entertained for his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joe Girdler, of Atlanta, Ga. who has been their guest at their ocean front home.

The James N. Wallaces of Southampton, L.I. and New York who are at their Gulf Stream home for the season, gave a large dinner party at the Gulf Stream Golf Club. Another hostess was Mrs. Albert White who gave a cocktail party at her home in Delray Beach.

Mrs. Irene duPont, Jr. of Wilmington, Del. has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Bredin at their ocean front home in Delray Beach.

Mr. William Breneman Stone has joined his parents Mr. and Mrs. William Wood Stone at "Sea Stones" their ocean front home in Delray Beach for a three week's vacation. The Stones who come from Cincinnati, Ohio are members of the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club and the Queen City and the Cincinnati Country Clubs.

Here for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kerrigan in Gulf Stream are Mr. and Mrs. John Oman, 3rd of Nashville, Tenn. and Mr. and Mrs. William Clark of New York City. Mr. and Mrs. Kerrigan with their two daughters, Betty and Anne, are at the Howard Frederick Whitney home which they have leased for the season.

In Delray Beach for a holiday are Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe Nesbit, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lyons Brown, of Gulf Stream, have had as their house guests, the latter's mother and brother, Mrs. Martin Shellabarger and Mr. Martin Shellabarger, of Louisville, Ky.

At Bermuda High, on South Ocean Blvd. are Mrs. G. Rathbun and her daughter Kay, of Perrysburg, Ohio and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bigelow Freeman, of Baldpate Hill, Newton Center, Mass.

Miss Edna French Look is attending Rollins College this year which makes it easy for her to run over and spend many week-ends with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Millard Look in Delray Beach.

Sgt. Robert S. Royce has been recently discharged from the Marine Corps at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Cal. and has joined his parents Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Royce at their home in Gulf Stream.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stearns of Glen Head, L.I. are the guests of Mr. Thomas Collyer Eastman at "Sea Sage."

Mrs. Clifford Rodman of Lake Forest, Ill. who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Tree in the Barbados, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Prentice at their ocean front home in Delray Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford George Remington who have been visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Schuyler Volkmar at her home on Seabreeze Ave. have returned to their home in Wynnewood, near Philadelphia, Pa. and Mrs. W. Dulty Smith, wife of Col. W. Dulty Smith has arrived from Ardmore, Pa. for a short stay at the Volkmar home. Mrs. Volkmar came down early in the season from "Greystock" her home in Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, for her annual stay in Delray Beach where she is a popular member of the Gulf Stream Bath and Tennis Club. She also is a member of the Acorn Club in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Martha Davis Whittaker has as her house guests at her home on Gulf Stream Road, Mrs. Robert Barton, of Richmond, Va. and Mr. John MacIntyre, of Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wattrous, of Janesville, Wisc. are enjoying a winter holiday with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Howard Troig in Gulf Stream. Mr. Wattrous is advertising manager for the Parker Pen Company, of which his uncle Mr. Kenneth Parker is the manufacturer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert Plimpton, of Boston, Mass. are at MacNichol Manors for a fort-night.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Donaldson Sloan, Jr. members of the Gulf Stream Golf Club and the Alleghany Country Club at Sewickley, Pa. are at their home on Miramar Drive in Delray Beach for the season.

The William J. O'Briens with their four children, Marianna, David, John, and Arlene, of Glen Ridge, N.J. are at their Gulf Stream home for the winter months.

JAMAICA, Land of Color

THE DISTINGUISHED of two continents are gathering in beautiful Jamaica this season. They come by yacht, private plane, airline, cruise ship and every mode of transportation, but no matter how they arrive, Jamaica is happy to have them.

Because Jamaica has an ideal climate, a gay way of life and a definite "something different" in its very air, possibly as a result of the island's vivid past, British, continental and stateside visitors are finding this a priceless pearl in the winter vacation string.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wrightsman of Palm Beach and New York recently came in their private plane from Palm Beach. Mr. Wrightsman is the well known oil magnate and yachtsman.

From the states also comes Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy of Palm Beach and Hyannisport, Massachusetts, wife of the former American Ambassador to the Court of St. James and mother of the talented and attractive Kennedy children; Rosemary, Eunice, Patricia, Jean, John, Robert and Edward, who have charmed the British Isles as well as the United States.

From England have come Colonel and Mrs. John White, Mrs. Ackers, Lady Pamela Bird and Sir Alfred Butt, to swell the ranks of distinguished British visitors.

Lady Megan Lloyd-George, daughter of the late Earl Lloyd-George, and a former Liberal member of the House of Commons, arrived in the S.S. "Nuevo Dominicano" from Miami, Florida, on her second visit to Jamaica.

Mr. George McManus, Travel Editor of the Boston Globe is spending some time in Jamaica swelling the ranks of the American contingent.

Princess Irene Galitzene de Medici of continental society is in Jamaica for a winter holiday.

From Brooksby Hall, Leichestor, England, David Field, 2nd Earl Beatty and Lady Beatty have arrived to spend a vacation in Jamaica. Lord Beatty, M.P. for Peckham, is President of the Navy League and a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron.

Awaiting the arrival of his yacht, "Tresca", which is enroute to Jamaica from its Bermuda base with its skipper and four Bermudan crew members, is Mr. Charles Pusinelli of London, England.

Senator and Mrs. Edward F. Riley, of Washington, D. C. are spending a winter vacation in Jamaica following their recent marriage. Senator Riley attracted front page notice in the island when, a Democrat, he spoke in favor of General Eisenhower for President of the U. S.

The "Invader", Carl Abraham's fishing boat has arrived with Professor Louis Rivas and Colonel John K. Howard from the Marine Laboratory, of the Miami University, who are fishing for Blue Fin Tuna.

A recent arrival is Sir Geoffery Knox, owner of the yacht "Suhail", now anchored in the harbor at Kingston. Another yacht in harbor is the "Pandora III" of American registry, owned by Mr. Robert D. Conary, which has arrived with a party from Montego Bay.

Visitors from Canada are Mrs. J. C. Scott and her beautiful daughter, Mrs. A. P. MacVannel, of Toronto, and Senator Adrian Hugeson, Q. C., assistant leader of the Canadian

Orville Bulman in One-man Show at Worth Avenue Gallery

FROM SUNDAY PAINTER to an artist whose pictures are in demand is the record of a Palm Beach winter resident, Orville Bulman who is to be honored with a one-man show opening March 17 at the Worth Avenue Gallery.

An exhibition of about 20 pictures, all oils, are the result of five years of intensive concentration on an enterprise that began as a hobby when the artist, president of the Bulman Manufacturing Company of Grand Rapids, Mich. was bitten by the bug to paint.

His collection to be featured at the Worth Avenue Gallery is largely in subject matter, a reflection of native life in the Bahamas where Mr. Bulman often visits during his stay in Palm Beach.

An artist, capable, and interesting enough to have been honored with other exhibitions, among them one in his home town of Grand Rapids, Mr. Bulman puts the ready sale of his pictures to good use—the Grand Rapids Art Gallery acquiring a desired Picasso with his contribution of revenue derived from sales during the show. Similarly profit from other sales is channeled in the direction of aid to young and earnest painters, Mr. Bulman purchasing paintings in turn from unknown but talented painters or aiding some small gallery to realize its dream of owning a particular masterpiece.

His first show took place three years ago in Palm Beach in the Shepherd gallery formerly in Royal Palm Way and operated by John Clinton Shepherd, now in New York who was among those who encouraged Mr. Bulman to carry on his hobby seriously.

He works not only with the open atmosphere in which his constructions move but with enclosed space has developed a talent for tight, precise painting. His work tends toward expressing native lore and legend always with a fresh resourcefulness indicated on each occasion and betraying a savage intensity suggesting the conflict of the jungle once removed.

An artist who doesn't need to sell his paintings as a livelihood, Mr. Bulman nevertheless takes great pride in knowing they are wanted. Just recently he sold "Nassau Modern" (pictured here) to M. E. Dawley, vice president of Lord and Taylor who plans to use it in a Lord and Taylor window to have Nassau as its theme.

Also attracted by his joyful portrayals, and adding one to their fine contemporary collection were Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Bolz of Madison, Wisconsin, Mrs. Bolz being the daughter of Oscar Meyer the meat-packing king.

The exhibition is to be current one week—March 17 through 23.

30 YEARS AGO

THE UNITED STATES WAS RECOVERING from its part in World War I . . . final peace conferences were in session at Washington, and we were entering upon the last lavish and elegant era probably in our history. Silk was still silk, and ersatz was a term unheard of in the vocabulary of most men.

Anticipating its most scintillating season since before the war, the Palm Beach picture of 1922 opened on a note of sumptuousness with a new beach facility—the Beach Casino, of Moorish architecture with towers and turrets, its swimming pool “the finest in the country,” according to reports in local and metropolitan newspapers.

Within its environs fashionable folk gathered daily “between eleven and twelve,” either to go for a dip or promenade about the sunny gardens within splashing distance of the 150-foot pool.

When all the family wore sailor hats—prominent on the Palm Beach scene in 1922 were Mr. and Mrs. David H. McCullough—Mrs. McCullough pictured here with her small daughter and son, Alice and Bobby.

The voting rights of women had been established just four years, and while the ladies were pushing further and further into the territory of the male domain (cigarette smoking, for example, was so generally accepted that “exclusive shops” for feminine smokers were being opened right and left in New York), Palm Beach still retained certain rules and regulations held over from the Victorian era.

For example, if a lady did smoke outside the confines of her boudoir or private sitting room, it was copy for resort reporters . . . and when it came to beach attire, rules set forth on the walls of the Casino demanded “ladies shall keep their limbs covered.”

And according to columns reporting doings of the resort then, nary a lady broke the rule.

Elegance keynoted the gowns of promenaders as Norma Talmadge, favorite movie star of '22's college set, was seen “sauntering through Casino gardens in a white crepe de chine outfit topped off by a shell pink straw hat.”

And in like manner bathers took great pains in assembling their togs . . . Mrs. Paulding Fosdick appearing in “black satin suit with small black satin cap and wearing gray silk hose.”

Mrs. Charles L. Harding, occupying her new ocean-front villa that year, appeared frequently on the beach, and “yesterday looked very charming and girlish in a black silk suit with black satin bathing cap faced with pink and white gingham; and Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen, on the beach with her prize Boston terrier ‘Kiki,’ wore a blue and white checked gingham with inserted bands of white organdy, her hat of white silk faced with blue straw, all topped off by a dark blue sun veil.

Bramley sportswear to the twenties was what Carolyn Schnurer is today, and along with enormous advertisements in every-day issues of the Palm Beach Daily News in which Irene Castle was pictured modeling the long-waisted, Peter Pan-necked garments, adjacent society columns predicted arrival of the dancer and her illustrious husband for “later in the season.”

Ladies of fashion were swathed in sun veils . . . even luxurious furs, when they took off for their morning stroll.

“Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle (Philadelphia, Washington, Palm Beach) was a delightful figure along the beach promenade yesterday wearing an embroidered orchid voile. Her hat was of orchid straw and she was draped in an orchid sun veil.”

Likewise Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, wife of the great Napoleon's great-grand-nephew, and a Palm Beach clothes horse of the day, frequently appeared “in white chiffon with pale pink sash, a large floppy hat adorned with luscious red roses, and magnificent furs billowing about her swan-like neck.”

It was a happy time for those who could afford it . . . Emily Post had not yet taken to advising what should be worn at what hour of the day, America was still very rich . . . and Palm Beach the undisputed territory of the country's most fabulous families.

with Classicism under David, Romanticism with Delacroix, Naturalism with Courbet, and her husband, the appreciator and apt pupil, developed early, as many collectors do not, a sense of responsibility to the public, and because of that fine spirit Americans have within their art world a "sequence of masterpieces of what is now acknowledged as one of the most fertile painting periods since the Italian Renaissance," as Mr. Rich so well tells it in an appreciative foreword of a catalogue on the Dale collection.

And in their earlier collecting years, Mrs. Dale organized in New York a series of stimulating exhibitions which are still recalled as unique, and that, perhaps, gave her husband his feeling for art as a family affair. For the first Dale-arranged art exhibitions were presented traditionally, Mrs. Dale selecting the ancestors and descendants of each group.

A full-time job for a retired gentleman, Mr. Dale devotes each summer to hunting in the age-old preserve, the capitals of Europe, for rare and distinguished paintings. There he found his famous "Forest of Fontainebleau," which Corot in his last will and testament said he wished would go to the Louvre; and it was here he discovered the only portrait ever done by Daumier, and one of the best possible examples of Boucher—"Venus Consoling Love"—in the National Gallery.

All artists and their work are of interest to Mr. Dale, though when it comes to collecting he stays close to his first love. He has Delacroix and Courbets, Marie Laurencins and Matisse, Utrillos, Vlamincks, and Legers, Braques and Dufys . . . and he intends to have more when fortune favors him with a "find."

A wide acquaintance with the art world and its notables since earliest days, George Bellows did portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Dale—they hang with his most prized French pictures in his New York home; and just a short time ago when the Mexican contemporary Diego Rivera asked him to have lunch one day in New York, it was a meeting that wound up with the artist doing a portrait of the collector.

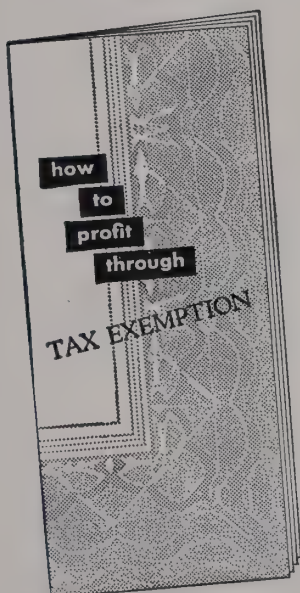

"I told him I didn't like his stuff, and why didn't he paint something worthy of his talent. He replied he would if I'd sit for my portrait."

"Well, I called his bluff, and he called mine, and so we wound up in his apartment with me behind a desk that was too high for me. Rivera had his man cut off the legs, then and there. Finally, with me on canvas looking at a magazine that just happened to open to a reproduction of Van Goghs' self portrait (Rivera painted it upside down). We now recall a good time was had by all."

The painting, incidentally, appeared in the January 27, 1952, issue of the New York Times.

But aside from all the fun, the travel, and joy that comes with owning great and famous pictures, there is a serious side. You have to know, or learn to know, as Chester Dale says, when to buy what, for you can lose your shirt in the picture game. Then there is the history of every picture to be researched. Mr. Dale does that, too, and through the aid of an especially able art secretary, Mrs. Mary Bullard, and a collection of catalogues numbering several thousand lodged in his office at the National Gallery, all concerned can delve back into the earliest—1819—and discover much more than could ever be imagined about the royal art family of the Dales—long may it reign!

HOW TO PROFIT THROUGH TAX EXEMPTION

Taxes are high today — may get higher tomorrow. If you're in a fairly high bracket and don't know how to profit through tax exempt securities, NOW IS THE TIME TO LEARN!

If your taxable income is over $16,000 you may be paying taxes, under present laws, of from 40% to 90% on some of your investments. You may be well repaid by an investigation of tax-exempt State and Municipal bonds. Yields on such investments can bring you as much net return as taxable securities yielding 8% or more.

OUR NEW BOOKLET, "HOW TO PROFIT THROUGH TAX-EXEMPTION"

explains in plain language your need for tax exemption, tells how much tax-exempt bonds can be worth to you. There's no obligation. Send for your copy today.

Reminiscent of roads in Virginia, Palm Beach's Country Club Road is one of the few in South Florida to cut through walls of rock. Rounding the corner just ahead and emerging from the coquina rock walls, the motorist encounters a breathtaking panorama of Lake Worth on one side, and the rolling greens of the Palm Beach Country Club on the other.

Have a Fling at Spring!

Of course you know that spring comes early to the mid-Alleghanies. That's why we advise having a spring fling at The Greenbrier. You may golf on any of Greenbrier's three magnificent courses . . . canter along famous blue ribbon bridle-paths . . . or, if you will, sharpen up your tennis strokes on one of Greenbrier's sporty tournament courts.

Come evening, you may dance to the toe-tapping music of a Meyer Davis orchestra amid an atmosphere of light-hearted gaiety!

Have a fling this spring at The Greenbrier. Rates but $19 per day, per person—including Greenbrier's incomparable meals.

ORVILLE BULMAN

Recent Paintings

MARCH SEVENTEENTH

MARCH TWENTY-FOURTH

The remarkable part of this show is that these are the paintings of a businessman who is still active President of his Company.

Even more surprising is that this will be Bulman's third one-man show in but five years of painting. And we safely predict that this showing will equal the fine reception of his former shows.

You will find in his work a new freshness and a great appeal. It is a show you will enjoy seeing.

One of the most beautiful spots in Palm Beach is this corner of Coconut Row with the Palm Beach Biltmore in the background, showing above trees planted over twenty years ago. The stately Royal Palms remain in memories taken away by thousands of visitors each winter, as their carefully groomed appearance is seldom equalled.

Entrance to the C. Henry Buhl estate, "Grosse Pointe," on El Vedado Road. The perfectly clipped hedges conceal grounds of unsurpassed beauty, shaded by their Royal Palm sentinels. Sparkling blue swimming pools, charming informal patios and extensive collections of tropical plants are hidden from the view of casual passers-by.

May I:

Have your attention for a few minutes of your valuable reading time and present for your pleasure — “an announcement of our present new project — and “news” of our next development” — and extend to you a cordial invitation to “inspect our properties at your convenience”.

Delray Beach Shores:

A complete residential community. Something new and something different — “each lot a water-front property”, and located less than one-half mile South of Delray Beach on South Ocean Boulevard. This development is practically complete with only 70 water-front homesites, and located just across the street from the ocean, with one-half mile of choice property — of which one-quarter mile faces Ocean Boulevard and one-quarter mile on the deep Florida Intra-Coastal Waterway. Lots now priced at $6,000.00 each, and upwards.

Then -- our next -- “And we hope, history-making development” --

Immediately South of the above, and of similar size —

We are proud to present --
“The Presidential Colony of America.”

The land has already been conveyed to this company. Strictly an apartment area. Each building will be carefully planned and erected to “typify the particular period of architecture of each President”, and to be named in sequence for each of our former Presidents. For instance — “The Mount Vernon” for George Washington; “The Brick Colonial” for Thomas Jefferson; “The Log Cabin type for Abraham Lincoln”; and so forth.

Each building is to be of two stories in height, and to consist of four to twelve units in each building.

Our Executive Office will be “an exact replica” of The White House and will be used in the future as “The Administrative Building”.

Plans for “this coming historical development” are now in progress for 1953 completion.

JOHN B. REID

Executive Director
Marine Terrace Hotel
Department “M”,

Cadillac

New Goal for Twenty Million Motorists!

Research as to motor car preference indicates that some twenty million motorists would like to own a Cadillac, if they felt it within their economic means. And pictured here is the new "heart's desire" of these twenty million people—a motor car they will certainly aspire to with even renewed eagerness—the Golden Anniversary Cadillac! . . . They'll want it all the more because of its beauty—for this is unquestionably the most beautiful Cadillac of all time! They'll want it all the more because of its luxury—for the new interiors are gorgeous and regal as never before. And they'll surely want it all the more because of its performance! For this new Cadillac is so dynamic and responsive in traffic, and so restful and relaxing on the highway, that it's an extraordinary experience just to sit at the wheel. . . . So if you are among the millions who have their hearts set on owning a Cadillac—come see this great Golden Anniversary creation in our showroom. We know that your ambition to own the "car of cars" will be greater than ever—once you have seen how truly magnificent it is today.

SMART CLUBHOUSE SERVICE

PARTY HINTS

By BERLIN GRIFFIN, INC.

TOM COLLINS: Pour into a highball glass the juice of 1 lemon, a heaping teaspoon of powdered sugar, and 1 jigger of gin. Add several ice cubes and fill with club soda. Stir the drink with a spoon. The sugar makes the Tom Collins effervesce. It should be stirred each time before a swallow is taken, keeping the drink alive and bubbling for a longer time.

PLANTER'S PUNCH: Fill a 12-ounce glass half full with crushed ice. Stir in 2 jiggers of rum, juice of  $\frac{1}{2}$  lemon, and a dash of Grenadine. Fill the rest of the glass with club soda, and more ice if desired. Decorate the drink with fruit and a cherry. Use straws. A tablespoon of claret is sometimes floated on top of the finished drink.

ARTILLERY PUNCH: Dissolve 1 cup of sugar in the juice of 6 lemons. Add 2 tablespoons bitters, 1 fifth claret wine, 1 fifth sherry, 1 fifth rum, and 1 fifth whisky. Mix well. Just before needed, pour over a block of ice in a punch bowl and add a quart of club soda. (20 servings.)

OLD FASHIONED PUNCH: To one fifth of whisky add 3 jiggers of lemon juice, 2 jiggers of Curacao and  $\frac{1}{2}$  bottle of seltzer water. Stir well and add a few drops of Angostura bitters. About 20 minutes before serving put a large piece of ice in a punch bowl and pour the mixture over this. Serve in small punch cups. (Servings from 12 to 20.)

MANHATTAN: 2 parts whisky, 1 part sweet vermouth, dash of bitters. Stir well in ice, strain and serve with cherry. For a dry Manhattan, use dry vermouth.

DAIQUIRI: Juice  $\frac{1}{2}$  lime, 1 jigger rum,  $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon powdered sugar, cracked ice. Shake well and strain.

MARTINI: 3 parts gin, 1 part dry vermouth. Stir well in cracked ice. Serve with lemon peel, olive or cocktail onion.

CUBA LIBRE: Juice  $\frac{1}{2}$  lime, 1 jigger rum, 2 cubes ice. Fill glass with cola.

WHISKY SOUR: Juice  $\frac{1}{2}$  lemon, 1 jigger whisky, 1 teaspoon powdered sugar. Shake well with ice, strain and serve garnished with fruit.

WIDOW'S KISS COCKTAIL: 1 dash bitters,  $\frac{1}{4}$  chartreuse,  $\frac{1}{4}$  benedictine,  $\frac{1}{2}$  apple brandy. Shake well in ice and strain into glass.

VANDERBILT HOTEL COCKTAIL: 3 dashes syrup, 2 dashes bitters,  $\frac{1}{4}$  cherry brandy, 3-5 brandy. Stir well and strain into glass.

Cultured Pearls

and How They Got That Way

A CULTURED PEARL is produced by the oyster in exactly the same way as a genuine Oriental pearl, except for one difference... the nucleus of the former is introduced into the oyster by human beings instead of the accident of nature. The only real difference between these pearls is the material of which the nucleus is formed. In the genuine pearl, it may be a small piece of shell, a grain of sand or any hard substance found in the ocean. Generally a round bead made of Mother of Pearl, is used for the cultured version, but the coating which gives value and life to the pearl, is exactly the same in both cases.

The cultured pearl industry is comparatively new. Back some six hundreds years ago, the Chinese used to insert a tiny Buddha statue into an oyster, then wait until nature took its course and coated the statue with nacre... like the iridescent inner layer of a shell. But it was only about fifty years ago that a smart Japanese named Mikimoto, made cultured pearls pay off in dollars and cents.

Today, at the site of Mikimoto's original oyster beds, around the southeastern coast of Japan and the Carolina Islands in the South Seas, oysters are big business. But it takes several years plus a lot of hard work, before either pearls or money are realized.

This is the procedure; mature oysters are brought up out of the water and subjecting them to fresh air forces the valves open. While the valve is propped open with a bamboo wedge, an incision is made in the oyster, into which is placed a tiny piece of mother of pearl. The peg is then removed and oyster shuts its valve.

Oysters thus treated are placed in cages and suspended in the water from four to six weeks. At the end of this time, the cages are lifted, oysters inspected and the unhealthy specimens eliminated. The others are returned in cages, to the permanent "resting" place in the water, to remain undisturbed for three or four years. Divers descend into the water and inspect them every three months.

Other factors besides health of the oyster, enters into the evolution of a cultured pearl. For instance, in warm waters pearls will "grow" faster than in cold waters. They also grow faster and better, in oysters that are between three and seven years old.

Pearls are harvested between October and January. Skilled laboratory workers open the shells, remove the mature pearls, wash them, dry them by hand (to avoid scratches) and then grade them according to shape, size and quality. The finest pearls are reserved for necklaces, earrings, cuff links, rings and other jewelry. Blemishes are marked with a tiny blot of ink, to indicate to the driller the axis along which the hole should pass. At "matching tables" the pearls are sorted in small, grooved trays and then strung on fine silk thread, after which they are sent to the appraiser for final inspection.

The larger the pearls, the more valuable they are, assuming all the other qualifications are the same. The perfect color is what is known as "rosee"... this is not a true pink, but a color that is slightly tinged with this color and has a good deal of what is known as "Orient". In other words, the multi-colored rainbow hue, which makes a fine pearl so attractive.

Guatemala

Land of Eternal Spring

Far from winter snow and sleet, Guatemala offers not only a grand climate for the winter vacationist, but also scenic attractions, the remnants of ancient Mayan civilization and colorful customs of the Indians.

Guatemala City is in the middle high-land section and is a modern metropolis surrounded by ancient villages. Its broad avenues run north and south, its streets east and west. The Indian market place is truly a shopper's paradise.

Many people remain in Guatemala an extra week, returning to New York on the following steamer, which gives them 11 days to really "do" Guatemala. High in the mountains, the vacationist finds true Guatemalan Indian civilization. Tiny villages cluster about the shores of mountain lakes, and each village has its own distinctive type of dress, which has been handed down from generation to generation. One of the most colorful of the mountain villages has the jaw-breaking name of Chichicastenango. Hundreds of Indians fill the narrow streets that wind in and out between white houses with red tile roofs. The men wear black wool jackets and knee-length trousers, elaborately embroidered in gold and red, with glowing red sashes. The women are outfitted in red or white blouses and wraparound skirts. Necklaces of silver coins complete their ensemble.

Sunday is the big day in Chichicastenango, for it is the market day and Indians travel for miles to bring their wares into town to sell, to visit with their friends and to worship. The steep steps leading into the Santo Tomas Church are crowded with Indians chanting prayers, burning incense or just sitting around chatting with friends.

At the end of the busy day, the Indians trudge out of town on foot for their homes, a distance of perhaps ten or fifteen miles over mountain trails.

Antigua, the old Guatemalan capital, was destroyed by earthquake in 1773 and its ruins are a continual point of tourist admiration. Huge cathedral walls ten feet thick are now covered with grass and flowers.

Visitors soon find that the description of Guatemala as the "land of eternal spring" is true—the days are sunny and the nights are delightfully cool.

FLORIDA ARCHITECTURE

Its Phases and Growth

QUITE AS DIVERSE AS THE HISTORY of Florida itself is the heterogeneous architecture that has colored three centuries of building in the state. Ranging from medieval dungeons and shell mounds of aboriginal construction, the historical, political and economic evolution of the vast peninsula has been recorded in terms of architecture that links present-day Florida with European culture, the composite result lacking in definition in some instances, but certainly not versatility.

Little is known concerning the manner of construction employed by the early Florida Indian tribes here but it is recorded that they used perishable materials in building their homes and ceremonial temples. The scanty journals of early Spanish explorers reveal that the Florida Redmen also used stone in construction although there are no traces of such buildings in Florida. Many shell mounds, however may still be seen, the largest number found in the vicinity of Tampa Bay.

Also lost to posterity are the many quaint missions built by missionaries who accompanied the earliest Spanish explorers to this shore. Built of wood and stone, the crumbling ruins of two of the missions may be seen today in the vicinity of New Smyrna, the walls and arches having withstood the inroad of centuries.

The earliest and most substantial examples of Spanish architecture in Florida are ancient Fort Marion (Castillo de San Marcos), and Fort Matanzas at St. Augustine and Fort San Carlos at Pensacola. Fort Marion begun in 1672 and completed in 1756 was constructed of huge blocks of coquina rock, quarried in Anastasia Island by Indian slaves and exiles, many of whom were sentenced to their task for life. The cost of building San Marcos castle as it was called is estimated at $30,000,000, the sum prompting the King of Spain when he was informed of the expenditure, to exclaim: "Its curtains and bastions must be made of solid silver." Fort Matanzas, built in 1736 of coquina rock is smaller, having been erected to replace a watch tower at the entrance of Matanzas Inlet.

Fort San Carlos as seen today represents a much later period of history and architecture, the original built of pine logs in 1698 was burned, rebuilt and blown up in 1719. Rebuilt again after England had returned Florida to Spain somewhere between 1783 and 1796, it has become a national park and its masonry completely restored.

The indelible imprint of the Spanish engineer, and architect, is still most obvious in St. Augustine and Pensacola although often no more remains of an original building than blocks. In St. Augustine survive a few rectangular two-story structures made of coquina rock covered with burnt oyster shell lime, the north walls left windowless to provide protection against cold, winds and rain. In some instances only the first story of a building was constructed of rock and shell, the second, fashioned of hewn cedars. It is said that this two-tone effect was prompted by a practical idea first worked out in the West Indies as a guard against earthquakes and hurricanes. The "Oldest House" in St. Augustine is now a museum and historians believe it to have been built in the late sixteenth century, since it has been certified by an unbroken chain of tiles since 1763. No nails were used in its construction, and it has arched doorways at either end of the second story, and an ornamental porch after the architecture of early Spain.

Proof of their superiority in all fields of endeavour as well as being among the greatest of explorers are the records that show the Spaniards to have built with stone in Florida fifty years before William Strachey, recorder of the Jamestown colony, described in 1618, the wigwams of that settlement. Also they were pioneering in the building of the new world long before the Dutch West India Company issued instructions to its American colonists in 1650 on how to build a house by digging a hole in the ground and employing sod for side-walls and boughs for thatched roofs. Yet Florida because of its wars and changes in ownership, was destined to start all over again with the most primitive kind of wooden dwelling at the beginning of the nineteenth century.

The "shotgun" house many of which still survive today, came into existence following the purchase of Florida from Spain in 1821 when settlers from Georgia, and other states to the north developed a utilitarian wooden structure consisting of two houses under a single roof with an open passage or ventilating airway between, where a shotgun could be fired between the passage without hitting the walls.

Another distinctive type that appeared about the same time in Key West where the salvaging of cargoes from stranded ships was once an important business, were for the most part styles of New England, and the British colonials of the Bahamas. Slight Cuban influence may be noted but Spanish architecture was lacking entirely. Although designed to meet the absence of shade, and fresh water, and while sturdily built and anchored with bolts to the native rocks to withstand high winds and waves, the two-story structures with balconies and steep-pitched roofs were fair targets for hurricanes.

Much of the building was done by ship carpenters and occasionally houses were constructed of mahogany because Honduras was more accessible than the northern pine forests. Today however no mahogany houses survive, but some interior mahogany trim remains in the older structures.

Before the conclusion of the Seminole wars in 1842, plantations developed in northern Florida, and with them came the pretentious colonial mansions of Virginia and Georgia. Characteristic examples are still extant, and notable among them is the century-old Governor Call mansion, an excellent example of the Greek Revival style, now serving as the Grove Hotel of Tallahassee.

A dozen more in the ante-bellum towns of Madison, Monticello, Quincy and Marianna all of them built about 1830 are of the southern planter type with two-story galleried porches and square boxed columns suggesting the lack of expert wood carvers in Florida during that period.

In central and southern Florida more elaborate homes began to appear during the prosperous days of the 1880's and early 90's, and with the arrival of sawmills, turning lathes, and similar devices permitting wide development of the ornamental use of wood, spindle supports and jigsaw tracteries gave way to classic columns and ornamental facades.

It was not until 1880 that Henry M. Flagler and his partner Henry B. Plant who brought the railroads to Florida,

Society Life

AS THE PALM BEACH SEASON is drawing to a close, the social life of the famed winter colony continues to center about small dinners and cocktail parties, always the perfect medium for entertainment.

It was a successful winter, with more and more visitors coming down than ever before, and adding eclat to the already gala season.

Assembling a number of winter colonists was the recent dinner, followed by dancing, given by Maj-Gen. and Mrs. Ralph K. Robertson at "Casa Della Porta". Joe Bonni played. To observe their 5th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Winston F. C. Guest were hosts to a number of friends at a dinner at their home on North Lake Trail. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Payne Whitmore have been giving a series of dinners at "Casa Dei Leoni", their lakefront villa. Cliff Hall played.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Brokaw gave a dinner at their home on Golf View Road, where a recent guest was Mrs. E. Victor Loew of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton entertained friends for dinner at their home on South Ocean Boulevard, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Schuyler Clark had dinner guests at the ocean front villa of her mother, Mrs. Herbert Farrell.

The ocean front villa of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman was the setting for a dance when Mr. and Mrs. Wrightsman were hosts recently to a large company of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gardner gave a dance at their seaside villa, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Vere Smith have been hosts at a series of dinner dances at their ocean front home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Markham Langham gave a dinner at their home on El Vedado Road, where recently joining them were his father, Mr. A. Denzil Langham and Mrs. Langham of Houston, Texas.

In farewell to Mrs. C. Aubrey Cartwright, Mr. John Jay Cisco gave a cocktail party at his home on Chilean Ave. Mrs. Cartwright, now in New York, is leaving April 2 for France, and will remain there throughout the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony O. R. Baldridge were hosts at a cocktail party at "Villa del Sarmiento." Their guests were Mrs. Van Burgen, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Adair, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Smaltz, Mrs. Julia Potter, Cmdr. and Mrs. John M. L. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Leo R. Best, Prince and Princess Levan Dadiani, Prince Archille Gourielli, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Chapitea, Mrs. George Waterman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Calvert, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprague, Baron de Freygang, Mr. Sacha Volkoff, and Mr. Paul Fernaldo.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Granville Smith entertained friends for cocktails at their home on Emerald Lane, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Maguire gave a dinner at their ocean front home, honoring Dr. and Mrs. Frank Earl Adair, who have come from New York to resume their stay with the Maguires.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner gave a cocktail party at their home on El Brillo Way, and Mrs. Latham R. Reed entertained with a dinner at her home on Grace Trail.

Col. and Mrs. Henry E. Russell gave a cocktail buffet at their home on Golf View Road, to honor members of their house party including Col. and Mrs. Charles Stuart Ward of Stamford, Conn. and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mangold of Dallas. Guests for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Pell, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Duskin, Col. and Mrs. Edward Par-

Par Avion from Paris

ALTHOUGH THE INVITATIONS aren't out yet, Parisians certain to receive them are looking forward to the Normandy wedding of Mademoiselle Rolande Mauche, of St. Jean de Cardonnay, and Jean-Pierre Pruvost, of Paris, son of Pierre Pruvost, geology professor at the Sorbonne.

The bride, whose mother, Madame Max Mauche, is an ardent and energetic Royalist in the interest of the Comte de Paris, may wear the bridal lace belonging to one of Queen Victoria's ladies-in-waiting. It is being sent from England; if it can be coordinated with the modern wedding gown, it will cover the blonde head of Rolande when she goes to the altar of the tiny 16th century church in St. Jean. The church is just around the bend of the road from the family chateau where Rolande grew up . . . she could walk to it between the blossoming blackberry hedges. Behind the church are apple orchards, in full bloom in May. Anything so lovely!

The wedding date, Saturday, May 24, gives little St. Jean a busy week end. The next day is the annual tir de pigeons at the Princesse de Polignac's chateau, an event in which all the country people take part. The bride's aunt, Madame Andre Lesoeuf, helps to organize it.

As many French brides do, Rolande will have only children for attendants. (In a recent Paris ceremony, the bride was surrounded by 18 enfants, all in green.) The little maid of honor will be her 9-year-old sister Eileen, who will march also in a Paris wedding this month. Rolande's father has already fortified himself for his role by going to see Spencer Tracy in "Father of the Bride," which he found "tres amusant," if a little terrifying. Unlike "Pops," however, he will have a very short walk to the altar. The church, like most village churches in France, is designed to fit the congregation—if it means a dozen families, that's the size of it.

French law does not recognize church marriages, so there will be the usual two ceremonies—the legal one in the mairie on Friday, followed by the wedding dinner for the families; the nuptial mass the next day, followed by a large luncheon and reception.

The engagement ring is an old jewel in a modern setting. Professor Pruvost invited his future daughter-in-law to make her selection from the family box of precious stones. (It took Rolande a week to choose!) Each stone has a little story; in this way a French bride-to-be learns much of the history of her fiance's family.

In France, the engagement announcement in the newspaper is made jointly by the two sets of parents. If they feel especially pleased, they may express themselves as "happy to announce the engagement of our children."

St. Jean de Cardonnay, one of the loveliest of Normandy villages, centers around the once handsome chateau of the de Polignac family. Now one can only guess how elegant it must have been, for the chateau was occupied during the war, the Germans put a V-2 launching platform behind it, Allied raiders bombed it, and the results are sad. Some of the towering old trees have been decapitated, the chapel is in ruins. But for the day of the shoot, the damaged walls with the mural portraits of counts and countesses long gone, and the marble busts are gaily garlanded with vines and flowers, champagne corks pop again in the big dining hall and the family comes back to be hosts to the villagers.

One of the aristocratic young beauties of France, Princess Caroline Murat bears an historic family name. The first Caroline Murat was the wife of the dashing King of Naples and the youngest sister of Napoleon Bonaparte. Her son, Napoleon Murat, migrated to Florida at the age of 20, married a great-niece of George Washington, and spent the remainder of his life near Tallahassee.

"Like a 16th century French marquise" someone described Mrs. James C. Dunn, new First Lady of the American Embassy in Paris. Tiny and exquisite, Mrs. Dunn is a perfectionist in all things; her knowledge of protocol gives other Embassy wives a feeling of awe.

To come to Paris, the Dunns must give up one of the loveliest old villas in Rome, to which they have added many touches in their five years' residence. The gardens are especially fine. But they did not spend all of their time in it. They like to know everything about the country they live in, and together they poked around in Roman back streets seldom seen by ambassadors.

Paris farewells to the departing ex-Ambassador and Mrs. David Bruce included a service in the American church, packed with Embassy people for the occasion. Special prayers were offered for Mr. Bruce, asking Divine guidance for him in his new post as Under Secretary of State.

Later a friend startled him a little by saying: "Of course I went to your memorial service."

Those reliable birds of passage, the Charles S. Deweys, are due in Paris any day now en route from their winter home in Washington to their summer home in Calvados. They come back to Normandy with the apple blossoms and leave when their apples have been harvested and turned into calvados by an itinerant distiller. Their home, at Longues-sur-Mer, is the ancient Abbaye Sainte-Marie, which they have restored, even to the garden. Among the things unearthed in and around the abbey was the plan of the original garden, planted in the form of a rose window, so they know their restoration of it is authentic.

To link their French and American homes, the Deweys used both on their Christmas card—a formal red and blue curtain with stars, symbolizing Washington, drawn back to show Monsieur et Madame Dewey in a two-wheeled cart drawn by a donkey, stopping at the door of the abbey. (This was particularly amusing to their friends, in view of former Congressman Dewey's life-long devotion to the Republican party; but of course he could hardly drive around Normandy behind an elephant.)

A favorite little show in Paris at the moment is the collection of Dr. Gachet at the Jeu de Paume gallery. Himself an artist, under the pseudonym of Van Ryssel, and a companion of artists, Dr. Gachet is best known to the world as the true friend and physician of Van Gogh. Dr. Gachet's little house at Auvers was a mecca, a subject, and an atelier for artists—Cezanne painted it, and in it everybody seems to have sketched or painted everybody else.

Van Gogh did portraits of the doctor, two of them famous; he painted the daughter of the house, Mademoiselle Gachet, at the organ. Other artists painted the doctor. Dr. Gachet did a head of Van Gogh in bronze, and when Vincent lay dead of his self-inflicted wound, the doctor took a charcoal pencil and, in deepest affection, sketched him as he lay on the bed.

Then Dr. Gachet gathered up the half-used tubes of paint and the palette used by Van Gogh, and put them away. He saved a little blue delft vase, somewhat nicked, and an Italian faience vase used by Cezanne in flower pictures, and the pitcher, wine glass and knife that were props in another still life. He put away the tan canvas cap he had worn to sit for Van Gogh—the cap that was to become famous with the portrait.

Later, these things and the pictures in which they appear could have been sold for enough to keep him comfortably in his old age, but he refused to part with them, wanting instead to give them to a museum. Two years ago his heirs presented them to the Louvre, which is showing them now in the little Jeu de Paume gallery before separating the collection to put the Cezannes with its other Cezannes, the Van Goghs with Van Goghs and the Monets with Monets.

About these souvenirs of the artists' life at Auvers there is the attraction of all personal possessions; it is something to see now, after more than half a century, the tube of paint dented by the forceful pressure of Van Gogh's thumb.

AN INTERNATIONAL AUTHORITY on architecture recently remarked, "we cling too blindly to the past, though we build for tomorrow". Palm Beach, featuring a subtle style of architecture and interior decorating, embodying an air of gracious southern hospitality and smart living that is typical of Florida, certainly can not be included in that survey. A delightful merger of the old and new, borrowing the best from each; blending yesterday and today!

Talking over the evolution of architecture in Palm Beach with John Volk, a pioneer in the field, he said, "the interesting saga of architecture in the resort, goes something like this... Spanish to Georgian to modified modern. With accent on simplicity!"

"Small houses are more popular today than the baronial estates of yesteryear. The cost of building has influenced the history of architecture... the average expenditure now being around fifty thousand dollars." Aside from the economic trend, Mr. Volk commented, "a freedom of living has promoted comfortable and functional homes... a feeling of being out-of-doors, for the inside of the house."

Although modern-tropical in character, Mr. Volk's designs are not too modern, he explained. "Not conscious of being a house at all, by 'bringing the outdoors in' and eliminating rooms that are 'not lived in'. Certain rooms included in the homes of the past, aren't needed in present architectural plans."

As an example of contemporary living in the Southland, Mr. Volk cited the idea of combining the living room and loggia... making one large room, which is the focal point of interest for the entire home. And, planning the rest of the house, so that every room, terrace and alcove, will have a practical use."

"The massive houses in Spanish and Italian architecture of the 1920's, with iron grille work, period furniture, Oriental rugs and huge formal gardens, were not typical of Florida," he stated. When the trend to change this type of "villa" to the English plantation style, influenced by nearby Jamaica occurred, Mr. Volk designed the first white-roofed, green-shuttered and balconied house in that category in Palm Beach.

"That set the pace for a new style of architecture in the resort and the idea caught on very rapidly. The second trend was the popular Bermudian, which was developed from 18th Century Georgian... and very expensive."

West Indian-modern, which is said by authorities to be the epitome of modernity and convenience... with huge window openings, eliminating the need of air-conditioning... is the "architect's dream". This is the type of architecture Mr. Volk's latest project exploits. The new "Buccaneer Bay" resort in Nassau, designed for yachting and fishing enthusiasts... which will take about three years to complete; at a cost of ten million dollars. It includes forty miles of ocean frontage and ten miles inland. There are 1800 persons working on the island now, Mr. Volk noted.

The houses will be 'native' in character with overhanging roofs, inspired by the native huts of Hawaii and the Philippines... a tropical idea, in which the roof acts as a shade for the house. Mr. Volk is so enthusiastic about the houses of this type and, feeling they are ideal for Palm Beach, plans to build one for himself in the near future.

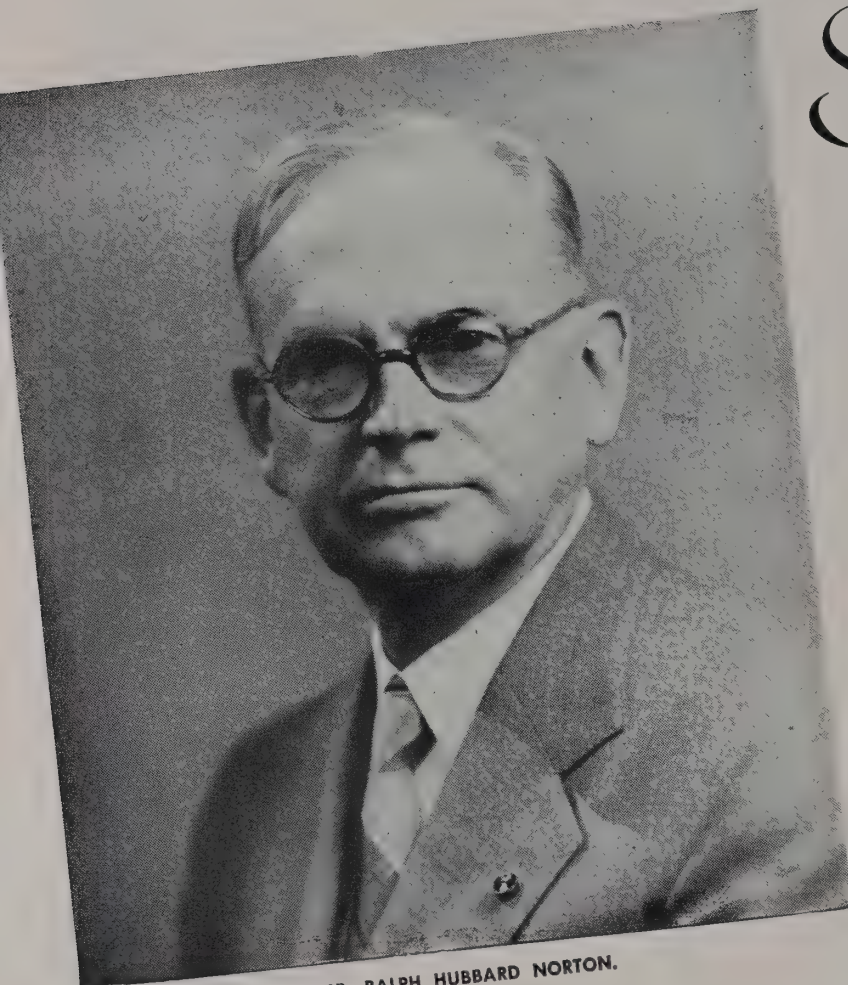

John Volk came to Florida during the boom in 1925 from Larchmont, N.Y. promoting land development in Key West... a million dollar project which by the way didn't materialize. He hadn't intended to stay, but through land speculation and building in Palm Beach, developed a business and has been in the resort ever since.

"The first architectural splurge in Palm Beach was Spanish and Italian," Mr. Volk commented. "What is now the Marquis de Cuevas home, on El Bravo Way at the lake, was the first big house in the Spanish manner; built in 1929.

Contemporary, which is a broad term for present architecture, in the Palm Beach scheme of things, is usually a merging of traditional ideas with modern trends. Mr. Volk's designs in this category are conservative... no odd angles and contours... no "exotic touches". Comfortable, restful and functional and at the same time, distinctive!

Norton Gallery and School of Art

MR. RALPH HUBBARD NORTON.

A FEATURE OF THE NORTON GALLERY, quite as widely recognized now as its splendid collection of art that embraces all the great schools of painting, and their most notable masters, is the art school which has an enrollment of well over 300 students each year.

Operated along progressive lines, students from tiny tots in the children's classes to adults painting as a hobby and those who plan art as a career may choose their classes and instructors rather than being required to follow a formal curriculum.

And with the school housed within the gallery, adjacent to a formally planted patio, just as the galleries are arranged, the student is afforded an opportunity to observe and study the permanent collection, considered one of the best in the South, and, as well, progress in his own chosen media through study of the carefully selected and well-balanced exhibitions brought to the gallery each year.

Growing with the gallery since it was first established by Mr. Ralph H. Norton in 1941, the school, a non-profit activity operated by the Palm Beach Art League, is designed to accommodate the winter visitor as well as the year-round resident, and one of the interesting features is its diversified group of students representing all age groups with greatly varying degrees of art experience.

In addition to permanent staff members, two guest instructors are brought to the school each year, and both daytime and evening classes are conducted.

Watercolor painting, sculpture and ceramics, painting and composition, and life drawing and portrait painting are included in the curriculum as well as special classes for children three days each week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 4 to 5:30 p. m.

Guest instructors this season are Jose de Creeft, returning for his third year as teacher of sculpture and ceramics, and Mitchell Jamieson, watercolorist, making his first visit to the school.

Mr. de Creeft, considered one of the most important contemporary sculptors, is an American artist of Spanish origin, having conducted his distinguished career in this country since 1929. He has worked with many of the great masters of Europe, among them the German expressionist Lipchitz, and was among the artists last year selected to work on the Ellen Phillips Samuel memorial on the east bank of the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art, the Whitney Museum of American Art, and the Norton Gallery of Art all have examples of Mr. de Creeft's work in their permanent collections.

Mitchell Jamieson, a nationally recognized artist especially in the medium of watercolor, is here from Seattle, Wash., for the winter term. The recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship and first-award winner in the fifth annual Pepsi-Cola art competition in 1948, he distinguished himself as a combat artist during World War II and, reflecting his versatility in several mediums, was among artists commissioned to paint murals for the Department of Interior Building at Washington, D. C.

An artist staff-member of long affiliation with the Norton School and a native West Palm Beacher to begin with, is Mr. James Mallory Willson. A thorough artist and teacher, Mr. Willson took his training at the National Academy of Design and the Art Students League in New York, and, living and studying abroad for 13 years, worked with Robert Henri and George B. Bridgeman. He has exhibited widely in the United States, and his life drawing and portrait painting classes at the Norton School are among the best attended.

Eric Lundgren, teacher of painting and composition, with emphasis on outdoor landscape and children's classes, came to the Norton School following service with the Air Corps in World War II. He studied at the New York School of Design, the Art Institute of Chicago and Art Students League of New York, and before entering service was art director of Esquire and Coronet from 1932 to 1941.

In all classes instructors proceed with usage of tested teaching methods designed to bring out individual talent—a method that works especially well with the children's groups.

Students from small fry to the eldest are given an opportunity to exhibit examples of their art each year, and there are frequent displays of the work of all age groups in the dean's office.

Veterans who are eligible under Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 and the Veterans' Rehabilitation Program may be accepted and may enroll when their certificates of eligibility have been received by the school for countersignature, and there have been many studying there until the Korean conflict, it was observed recently by Willis F. Woods, director of the Norton Gallery and School of Art.

The director, who has been head of the art center since 1949, when he came here from the Corcoran Gallery at Washington, D. C., where he served as assistant director, was recently granted a leave of absence to return to active duty in the capacity of captain with the Army Engineers Corps.

Replacing Mr. Woods will be Reginald Poland, who for 25 years served as director of the San Diego, (Calif.) Fine Arts Gallery.

New York Letter

Dear Dora:

Now that your Palm Beach season is drawing to a close, I imagine New York will be enlivened by the return of many Palm Beachers who will come up for the Manhattan season. Nevertheless, we here are continuing to be gay, and the rounds of parties flow on incessantly.

Weren't you surprised to learn of Pat Coogan's marriage to Lou Suritz recently at Arlington, Va.? Pat is the daughter of Mrs. W. Gordon Coogan, of Newport, and her merger with Lou, who is an executive for Henry Kelly and Sons, followed a six-week friendship. Prior to that, she was engaged to Harry Schell.

I hear Baron Wrangell and his bride are now at Palm Beach. Have you met her? The new baroness was Katherine Eller, formerly married to Dr. Joseph Eller, well-known New York dermatologist. She and George were married at Las Vegas.

Charlene Wrightsman, who has been recuperating at Harkness Pavilion, will go to Palm Beach to join her father, oil millionaire Charles Wrightsman, and his glamorous Jayne. I'm wondering if Peter Salm will follow her south. I suppose you know that John Barry Ryan, who is an heir to the Thomas Fortune Ryan and Otto Kahn fortunes, is assistant stage manager at "Pal Joey," the revived musical comedy that has taken New York by storm. John Barry's new duties with the show are the reason you haven't seen him around the Palm Beach hot spots this season.

Jack Seabrook, whose family is noted for its frozen foods, is serious about actress Eva Gabor, but so far no wedding plans are forthcoming. Eva went to Palm Beach to do "Blithe Spirit" for the Palm Beach Playhouse. I suppose there was a round of parties given in her honor.

Jay Rossbach, son of Sophie Gimbel, is in London, but his heart is with Denise Darcel. Jay has cabled the glamorous actress daily, and friends report he has spent a small fortune on words.

Bradley Dresser has opened a private club at Nassau, said to be one of the most exclusive on the island. I'm sure it will be a huge success, because Bradley has so many friends the joint will be jumping nightly. Did you know that Pat Ward married quite unexpectedly a Texas fellow by the name of Shelby Wilson? Pat was more or less engaged to Harrison Miller, who was in Virginia at the time of Pat's surprise wedding. Iris Mountbatten has returned from a few weeks at Miami Beach. She couldn't have looked more divine, and reported she had a marvelous vacation. Edith Foltz is at Jamaica, while her husband, only recently acquired, is living at Chicago. Edith is the former wife of Hugh Kirkland, who is at Palm Beach this winter. Spencer Martin and his wife are definitely not separated. They are seen together almost nightly at New York's better boites. She is the former Pat Smart, a lovely thing to look upon. Mrs. Angier Biddle Duke arrived for her Nassau sojourn the very day her estranged husband left that island for New York. What nice timing, don't you think? Alice Brisbane Chandor and Gordon Meichler are a twosome, and friends are wondering if it could mean wedding bells. They couldn't be more attractive together.

Bill Hansen, whose brother Jim is engaged to actress Audrey Hepburn, is now in London, but is keeping the long distance telephone wires hot, talking almost daily to lovely Sharman Douglas. Sharman, whose father you recall is the former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, is now at Hollywood. Peggy Maley, the play girl, has a new interest. This time it's Count Luciano Anchilotto, 26 years of age, handsome, and oh, so very, very social. Now I ask you, what more do you want?

Customers at Billy Reed's Little Club have had the thrill recently of hearing Marlene Dietrich's husky singing voice. Marlene has been lately dropping into the club, and when the urge to sing fills her, she gives forth, much to the great approval of patrons. It's hard to believe Marlene is a grandmother. But oh, what a lovely one at that. Lance, Tilly Losch visits El Morocco in New York with Lord Carnarvon.

The Marquis and Marquise de la Falaise, here from their home in Paris, attend a party at El Morocco in New York.

Reventlow, the 16-year-old son of Barbara Hutton, is seriously taking up polo. Do you remember Enzo Fiermonte, the Italian fighter who at one time was married to the late Madeline Force Dick Astor, mother of John Jacob? Enzo who couldn't be more attractive, recently had a small part in the English picture "Never Take NO for an Answer." Could be he is preparing for a Hollywood career.

Hamish Menzies has left his wife, Lenore Lemmon Vanderbilt Webb, and has taken his own place at the Blackstone. The couple have not been married even a year. Lenore seems to have more of her share of troubles than it deems necessary. You probably recall the old days when she was married to playboy Jackie Webb.

Ruth Linstedt Simson Harvey won her divorce from banker Hayward D. Harvey. Gilbert Roland, who was the constant escort of Doris Duke, "the richest girl in the world," is now dating Hildegard Neff, the German actress. Margot Morris has joined a New York decorating firm, and is working very hard. Margot was a popular deb a few season ago, but confides she loves working, and to date she is a huge success. Emerson Bainbridge, whose hobby is painting, is in town making plans for a show. Perhaps the wealthy Emerson can make his hobby into a profitable business. Margaret Biddle is now being seen with Capt. Tommy Thomas, whose ex-wife is Helen Marye Thomas. Mrs. John A. Morris came up from Palm Beach to begin work on the Belmont Ball, to be an event of June 6. Always a colorful event, this year it promises to be even more successful than ever.

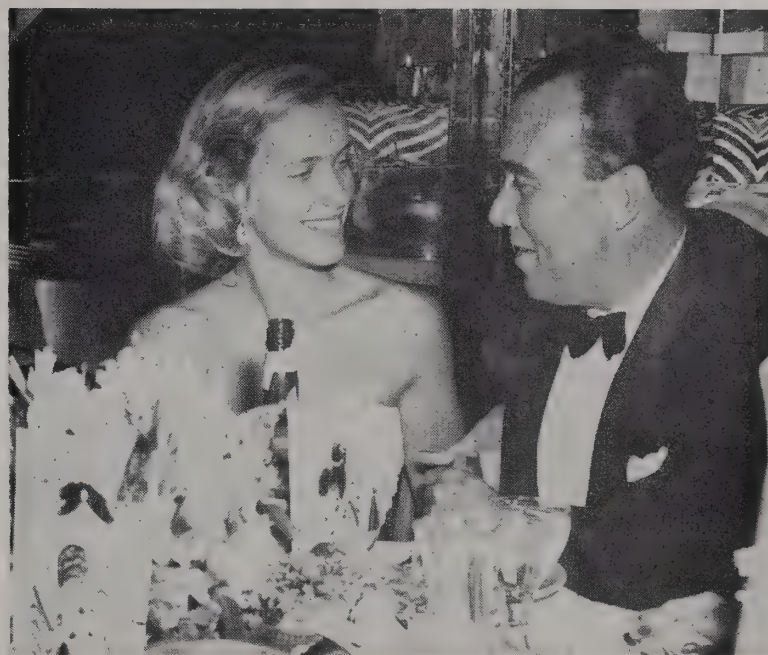

Steve Cochrane, of the films, is interested in Susan Zanuck, the young daughter of movie magnate Darryl Zanuck. The Freddy Beckmans are divorcing. They were married only two years, but just couldn't make a go of it. Tragic! Philip Van Rensselaer and Mimi McAdoo are that way. Friends say it won't be long before an announcement is made, so don't be surprised, my dear.

Arden Bondy and Corydon Stillman Sperry will be married March 22, the day after he is graduated as an ensign from the Navy Officers' School at Newport.

Brenda Frazier and Piero Mele are a conversation piece at Rome. Don't suppose you will be seeing anything of Brenda at Palm Beach this year.

Love,

ELLEN.

Two-decker accommodations—the Bath and Tennis cabana group northside.

A SPLENDID CLUB ALONG a holiday shoreline is the Bath and Tennis which has enjoyed the reputation of maintaining the Palm Beach tradition since 1926 when it was constructed to replace an earlier club by the same name that flourished for many seasons at the Breakers Hotel.

Strictly a membership seaside domain, the Bath and Tennis is as favored by day as by night, members finding its facilities much to their liking from December 1 to May 1—the official season during which it remains open.

Today with myriads of permanent cabanas looking out toward the ocean, the Bath and Tennis creates a day-long round of pleasure for its members within a skip of the surf. Luncheons are provided daily in its beachside cafeteria as well as the buffet spread so popular with those who belong that takes place daily in the Patio Dining Room.

Special tennis and aquatic events dot the Bath and Tennis Club calendar throughout the season, an annual tennis tournament for members sponsored each season, and swim meets and water shows frequently arranged for the young set.

Still flourishing as a symbol of the exclusive playground Palm Beach became at the turn of the century, the Bath and Tennis has weathered, though not without damage, many a tropical upheaval, and in 1926 its cabanas were swept out to sea, only to be replaced by more permanent ones that suffered in the 1947 hurricane.

Those of today semi-circling the club eastward are of the newest and most advanced architecture and building materials assuring the magnificent club of permanent security in the face of practically any upheaval short of an atom bomb.

The club's first president was A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., followed by a term of office served by the late Edward T. Stotesbury.

Today's officers are: Joseph F. Gunster, president; John E. Rovensky, vice president; Lumen O. Peck, treasurer, and J. Kenneth Williamson, secretary.

In ocean-liner style guests who choose the club's beach cafeteria for luncheon partake of a repast this side of wide, long-view windows looking out to sea.

Tropical cheer abounds in the generous guest lounge of the famous club.

Scouting the Shops

VERSATILE JEWELS: Aquamarines and diamonds are the medium for a large clip of artistic design at Greenleaf & Crosby, which breaks down into a pair of smaller clips; smart accents for strapless evening gowns. As beautiful as it is functional, the diamond wristwatch, dramatized with large emeralds.

"BASIC": The backbone of every well-planned wardrobe is a "basic" dress and Frances Brewster exploits this idea in clever casuals... "to wear virtually around the clock"; styled of crisp ribella cloth, in white and the pastel tints. There are matching casual hats!

SWIRLS AND PENDANTS: L. Barton Brookov's collection of diamonds is outstanding and smart... hair ornaments, which are much to the fore at present; clips, bangle bracelets, earrings, fabulous rings. In distinctive designs!

SPRING SHEERS: Organdy, in unique embroidered treatment... white, pastels, exotic shades; styled with the popular fitted bodice and full, flaring skirt. Anthony's have an unusually attractive collection... for wear north or south; by top-flight American designers.

AMORIAL LOWESTOFT: Recognized throughout the country, as the tops in china, silver and crystal... antique and modern... Plummer's are equipped to serve you from a single piece to a complete service. Among the outstanding pieces... an amorial Lowestoft cup and saucer and unusual plate of Lowestoft, that would delight the collector. Their extensive collection is a wonderful inspiration to browse and shop!

LINEN SUITS: With accent on comfort as well as style... the linen suits for men at Finchley's, are the talk of the town and no fastidious resorter, would be without at least one of these smart suits in his wardrobe. The smart colors, plus meticulous tailoring!

"LABELS MAKE NEWS": And, Norman's have a wonderful variety of the outstanding "names in designing"... Ceil Chapman, McMullen, Carolyn Schnurer, Cole of California, William Bass, Clair McCardell, Lanz.

"MORNING GLORIES": For a spring-like table... satin-banded rayon damask dinner set, with Luxor satin appliques in Moseley's own "morning glory" pattern. To make it personal, add your monogram, which may be done in self or contrasting satin. Available colors are grey, ivory, shell pink, gold, blue, turquoise.

"AS GOOD AS GOLD": And, "gold is good" this year... Milton Fuller's collection of gold jewelry is a conversation piece in Palm Beach. Unadorned and jewel-studded, as the occasion demands; the majority is on the popular massive side.

"BEHIND THE SCENES": Noted for exquisite diamond jewelry, Palm Beachers have the opportunity to go "behind the scenes" at Koslow's and view the magnificent jewel originals in the making. It is really an exciting and enlightening experience!

OVER 4001 ITEMS: Are obtainable at the Charles E. Soll "general store"... the most complete place of its kind in Palm Beach; smartly displayed, with a backdrop of modern decor.

COOL AND CLASSIC: Ruth Chagnon's pristine white silk spectator dress, that goes just about anywhere with dash and comfort. Style notes include... hand-stitched buttonholes, discreet red-stitched arrows and matching lizard belt. A must in the resort wardrobe!

THE TIME HAS COME: To take inventory of your hands, and care for them the Empress Josephine way... via the Empress Josephine hand lotion, a product of International Research Laboratories Inc. They claim, "if Josephine had known, she would have used it too".

MOGABGAB SPRING COLLECTION: Suits and coats, by such noted designers as Maurice Rentner, Philip Mangone, Nettie Rosenstein... like this shop, "famous names in fashion", for many years. Colors exploited: grey, beige, navy, spice tones. Long, full taffeta coats are style news; also the fitted faille affairs... promoting the smart ensemble idea!

PURITY OF LINE: The artisans of Manor Industries, create a special kind of furniture, treasured for purity of line, artful workmanship and unusual fabrics. Fabulous sectional pieces, which may be moved about the room for different smart effects. Woods for this custom-made furniture, comes from all over the world.

COLLECTION OF PITCHERS: Treasures and Trifles, have an intriguing array of pitchers from all over the world; a grand find for the collector and comprise glass, silver, china, pottery. Other interesting items include the "beehive" Austrian service plates and those of old English Bromfield. A wonderful place to browse for heirlooms to add charm to your home; distinctive gift ideas.

KOREAN CHEST: A fabulous antique, this Korean chest, which is a superb example from a rare collection of Oriental art... among the many, many interesting items at the Patricia Holsaert shop, new to the resort this season. They specialize in Swedish glass... outstanding custom-made furniture, by a noted New England cabinetmaker. Also consultants in interior decorating.

"YOU OUGHT TO BE IN PICTURES": And, you can take your own, as a record of your Palm Beach winter holiday. Miller & Wallace have all of the necessary equipment and also do custom photo finishing.

HAND-KNITS ARE BACK: In the style picture... if you knit your own, Evelyn Curtis in the Via Parigi has imported and domestic yarns, knitting bags, knitting needles, etc. Instructions in the art of knitting, if you need them. If you haven't time to knit your own, they will do it for you... all kinds of garments made to order.

"ON THE SCENT": The Everglades Pharmacy has one of the most complete lines of imported and domestic perfumes in the resort. Their prescription department is also important... delivery service to expedite matters.

BABY SEA HORSE: A unique cigarette box and lighter, has tiny starfish, baby sea horses, beautiful shells, bits of coral, embedded in heavy, clear and durable plastic. One of the numerous items noted at Palm Plastics, Inc.

Countess Jose Dorelis, who was chosen the best-dressed woman in Palm Beach, at a recent contest in the Patio. She wore the Martha original shown here . . . a striking pink net bouffant evening gown, with organdy tucks lending style interest to the skirt.

"Wings of spring", Elizabeth Arden's smart and feminine new evening coiffure. It has all the breeze and charm of a balmy spring night, with the delightful fantasy of a drift of butterflies in flight... plus elegant simplicity. The idea is also adaptable, for a spray of delicate spring blossoms.

B. H. Wragge's side-split straight and narrow coat of beige silk linen, worn over a matching sleeveless dress. Beige wooden buttons "embroider" the round neckline. Included in the spring and summer things at Finchley's.

Black silk taffeta afternoon dress by Gothe, with a stitched fan-pleated skirt. The jacket buttons to the waist, over a strapless bodice and has double-flounced collar and cuffs of white organdy. From the spring collection at McDonald's.

Black silk shantung sun-dress, teamed with stark white linen jacket, double-breasted with jet buttons. Among the smart creations in the Elizabeth Arden spring and resort ready-to-wear collection.

The jacket of this navy blue wool rep suit extends just below waistline. Red and white striped ottoman, is effectively used for the deeply-notched collar, cuffs and diagonal bow. Semi-flared skirt has an open pleat in back. Designed by Jo Copeland of Pattullo and available at Saks Fifth Avenue.

GULFSTREAM PARK

ONE OF THE MOST REFRESHING SIGHTS in Gulfstream Park clubhouse this week was the handsome William Stevens, Jr. and his lovely bride-to-be, Miss Joan Marshall, daughter of the James E. Marshalls of Sunset Island. Miss Marshall was a vision of daintiness and chic in a pink linen frock frosted in braid and white beads around the yoke. A white beaded cap and pink linen pumps completed the delectable picture. Young Stevens' parents live on Pine Tree Drive.

Lunching in the Turf Club were the Michael A. Morrisseys with their friends Mr. and Mrs. John J. Brinkworth (he is vice president of the New York Central RR), from Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. John McJoynt, Cincinnati and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Barry, New York.

Down from Delray Beach were a group of racing fans hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stewart, whose northern home is in Rye, N. Y. Their friends included Mr. and Mrs. Philip Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Aken, also Rye residents who winter in Delray, Miss Frances Smith, Orlando and Ralph B. Johnson of New York and Delray. Following luncheon the party occupied one of the larger boxes in the Turf Club.

With Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Ratigan, Miami, were Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Ritenour, Dearborn and Palm Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Parham, Jr. also from Dearborn and Palm Beach.

Another Turf Club luncheon party included Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Eiteljory, Miami Beach and Mr. and Mrs. William D. Vogel, Jr., Indianapolis, Ind. Near them were Major and Mrs. Albert Warner, Miami Beach, Mrs. Alfred Leeds, New York and Miami and M. M. Shanberg, New York.

Spring Theme Keynotes Four Arts Exhibition

IN A SPRINGTIME SETTING of natural flower arrangements, the Society of the Four Arts opened its fourth and final art exhibition of the current season with "Two Centuries of Flower Painting" on March 7 at a preview tea for members.

The splendid collection lent by a large number of leading galleries throughout the country is to be on view through March 31 and presents paintings of still life by a distinguished group of masters, among them Fantin-Latour, Henri Matisse, Redon, Marc Chagall, Augustus John, and some of our own great painters, Eugene Speicher, John Marin, Demuth, Georgia O'Keefe, Maurice Sterne and Maurice Prendergast.

Arranged chronologically, with two early Chinese scrolls adorning either side of the entrance to the main gallery, the exhibition, arranged by Mrs. Paul Moore, chairman of the Society of the Four Arts art committee, unfolds in large and small canvases throughout the large salon and carries over into the smaller gallery, flanked by two handsome blackamoors garlanded at the opening of the show, with luscious-colored camellias attached to a vine arrangement of carissa leaves.

Working with Mrs. Moore in creating a setting of spring in Florida for the distinguished exhibition, the floral displays as inspiring to the large assemblage that opened the show as the array of notable paintings, were Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, Mrs. Gerard B. Lambert, Mrs. Paul L. Maddock, Mrs. Henry F. Richardson, Mrs. Frederick Johnson, Mrs. George C. VanDusen, Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mrs. William R. Johnson and Mrs. Columbus Healy.

Mrs. Frank N. Horton, president of the Palm Beach Garden Club, generously lent four blackamoors, which were appropriately decorated for the occasion by the flower arrangement committee, and the Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest contributed a large box of gardenias for presentation to guests attending the preview.

From the main foyer throughout both galleries the floral displays caught the eye of guests at the preview. A flower and fruit arrangement held aloft by two blackamoor figures was set off with a profusion of yellow carnations, and an immense bouquet of Easter lilies placed center of the pale green and blue Chinese scrolls was embellished on either side by magnificent Meissen china birds (as pictured here).

The very long tea tables with their splendid tea services were decorated with low bowls of flowers in most artistic portrayal of springtime, and in the small gallery there was a striking composition of calla lilies with sprays of waxy pink desert flowers.

NASSAU

THE BAHAMAS HAVE many historic, social and economic ties with their big cousin, the States, and the celebration of Washington's birth date emphasizes that. Washington often visited these islands when his brother Lawrence built a home here and named it "Mount Vernon." The old house still stands on East Bay Road, and the Washingtons still return to Nassau in the person of Judge George Washington, who often spends his winter vacations here. However, the old house has passed into other hands, now being owned by an Englishman, Capt. Vivian Hewitt.

American horseman William Todd is taking his troupe of Nassau polo players back to America with him, and the team plays in the States and then plans to go to Mexico for several matches. Another famous horseman, Mr. A. H. B. Jeffords, whose racing stables are known in the sports world, is now visiting the island. Mr. Jeffords was the model for the main character in the popular best-seller "The Virginian," written by Owen Wister.

Nassau is seeing a very busy season, with all the luxury hotels filled. There have been so many visitors to the island that most of the hotels and guest houses that normally close for the summer plan to remain open this year. The Out-Islands, which have always been restricted somewhat to the more adventurous and unconventional, are seeing an unprecedented number of visitors arrive by yacht, passenger boat and by plane. For years, some of these islands have been the homes of wealthy Americans and British who fell in love with the quiet charm of life there. Mr. Howland Spencer has his home on Harbour Island, having moved there several years ago from Krum Elbow-on-Hudson; and Jo Carstairs has her own island world on Whale Cay. Since many of these islands offer such good fishing and hunting grounds, more and more men are forming sports clubs and buying property on the less inhabited.

The theatrical and movie world has moved into Nassau, both from England and from America. Alexander Korda, the English producer, and Leland Hayward, the fabulous American producer, have both been visiting here, the first as guest of Lord Beaverbrook and the latter staying at the Balmoral Club. Mr. E. Davis, owner of a large chain of theaters—some of which he recently sold to J. Arthur Rank—has been spending a few days here, having just come from Jamaica. He spends a great deal of time traveling about, and in the winter he flies his own private plane to the Riviera.

The Bahamas Headdress Ball Committee announced that it raised enough to buy the badly needed animal ambulance for the Humane Society. The Chinese Auction alone brought in 720 pounds, a little over three thousand dollars. Sir Francis Peek donated the antique coffee pot which was bought by Sir Victor Sassoon.

The costumes were imaginative and headdresses had been created out of sea fans, sea shells and tropical flowers and fruit. First prize for the most beautiful went to Mrs. Gerald Lightbourne, who wore a flower turban of red and white. First prize for the most original was awarded to Mrs. Al Watt for her headdress of a carousel, and second prize went to Mrs. Donald McKinney, who wore a headdress of sea fruit—a starfish, sea shells and sea fan, with her hair caught in a snood of fishnet.

The men were not to be outdone, either. Col. F. A. Wanklyn wore a headdress which bore a kennel and dogs and had named his entry The Humane Society, and Gerald Lightbourne, second prize, wore huge clusters of grapefruit as a fruit peddler.

Here during that week were the Duchess of Argyle, of London, who visited Lady Baillie, and Lady Dorothy Ross, of New York, vacationed at the Balmoral.

For the second time this season the Rt. Hon. Clarence Howe, Minister of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, and Mrs. Howe came here, this time as guests of Lord Beaverbrook.

Everglades Club

WITH THE SINGING of Auld Lang Syne, when the Everglades Club closes for the season, with the traditional dinner-dance March 31, the curtain falls on one of the most successful seasons in the history of the club, according to Mr. Lamar Harmon, manager.

Among the outstanding events, in a season of exciting social programs . . . the "Circus Ball", when an all-time record attendance of members and guests, witnessed the "greatest show on earth" in miniature, featuring all kinds of breathtaking acrobatic stunts, animal acts, comedy via the clowns; in an authentic improvised circus atmosphere.

The George Washington Birthday Ball in the Orange Gardens, also attracted a large crowd. Dinner was served in the Gardens and the dining room, where partiotic motifs and colors were effectively used in the decorative scheme. Red, white and blue flowers, American flags and red velvet swag drapes were in evidence throughout all of the public rooms and the Orange Gardens. Meyer Davis, society orchestra leader, personally conducted the Everglades Club orchestra for the dancing. Highlighting the entertainment program were Lee Fairfax, baritone and Consolo and Melba, novelty dance team. Adding brilliance to the beautiful setting, were the smart gowns and glittering jewels of the feminine contingent. It was said to be one of the most glamorous affairs, in the recent history of the famous club.

Also outstanding in the Everglades Club social notebook for 1952, was the Red and White Ball, given for the benefit of the Good Samaritan Hospital. The red and white theme pervaded throughout the club and the women guests were asked to dress in the two chosen colors. Miss Isabelle Haskell was given the award for the smartest red and white gown. Mrs. John S. Pillsbury Jr. and Miss Florence Lainhart, tied for honors and prizes, in the contest for the best looking all-white evening dress. Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, won the award for the all-red gown. The men entered into the spirit of the evening too and the audience and judges, chose Mr. Ken Griffith for his striking red dinner jacket. Another smart coat, a tartan plaid with red predominating, was worn by Mr. Zachary Scott, film and stage star.

Conrad Thibault baritone, noted concert, radio and opera singer, was the featured artist in the entertainment program, singing several hit tunes from popular Broadway musicals. "Prof." Irwin Corey comedian, presently appearing with Helen Hayes in the New York production, "Mrs. McThing" by Mary Chase, also added interest to the evening's varied program.

A highlight of the affair was the Chinese auction, for a car donated by Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, who bought it back. Two hundred and seven thousand dollars, was the amount received through the bidding. Others consistently taking part in the bidding were: Mr. William A. Phillips, Maj. Horace E. Dodge, Mr. James E. Bohannon, Mrs. Elisa Dyer Hubbard, Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds.

The Wednesday Tombola-luncheon-fashion shows, in the Orange Gardens of the Everglades Club, are always well-attended . . . a buffet luncheon, followed by a parade of mannikins, exploiting the latest styles and vagaries, from one of the Palm Beach shops. Among those showing this season were: J. J. Jonas, Saks Fifth Avenue, Martha, Mme. Mogabgab, Estelle Parker (a children's style show with society youngsters as models).

One of the most glamorous, was the "Spring and Summer Fur Fashions" by Ritter Bros. of New York City, who flew the luxurious furs to Palm Beach just for the Everglades showing, which took place at night, as the highlight of the vaudeville-dinner.

The sixty-five pieces shown, were the newest ideas in furs and styling, with special emphasis on the clever manipulation of the skins . . . furs designed with individuality and imagination. The array included chinchilla, sapphire blue, royal pastel, wild Labrador mink, Russian broadtail, ermine, sables.

Stairway in the Moorish influence at the Everglades Club, Worth Avenue, where the intricate design and decoration accurately reflect the near-Eastern influence often seen in Palm Beach.

Creating a lot of interest among Everglades members, is the "Masked Ball" to be given Thursday, March 27. The first affair of this kind to be held at the club and according to reservations, will be one of the most exciting dinner-dances of 1952.

The Golf Terrace has been exceedingly popular this year, with entertaining facilities increased and informal dining and dancing, when there are no activities at the Main Club, members have taken advantage of the innovation. The Terrace is also very popular at luncheon... a superb buffet, in a delightful atmosphere, where one may watch the golfers while lunching with friends. Billy Marshall and his Meyer Davis orchestra, play for the dancing at the Terrace, as well as the Main Club... the portable band shell, expedites the facilities.

The weekly Canasta, Backgammon and Bridge Tournaments, are popular with members and always attract large and enthusiastic crowds.

One of the picturesque details of the Spanish-type buildings stemming from Addison Mizner's influence in Palm Beach architecture, this drawing by J. W. Dillon shows a spiral staircase over one of the Worth Avenue entrances to the Everglades Club.

The imposing stairway, which adds interest and tradition to the main foyer of the Everglades Club... carrying out the Spanish influence.

During the summer, the usual refurbishing and building will take place, on the entire club property. The formal opening next season, will be the New Year's Eve dinner dance. Although the Everglades Club closes March 31, the Golf Terrace will remain open for several weeks longer... for golf, luncheons, dining and dancing, with Billy Marshall and the orchestra furnishing the music.

Officers of the Everglades Club include: Mr. Edward E. Bartlett Jr., president; Mr. Alfred G. Kay, chairman of the board of governors; Mr. Harold W. Sweatt, Mr. Lumen O. Peck and Mr. Byron L. Ramsing, vice-chairmen; Mr. John W. Salisbury, secretary; Mr. Austin B. Rittenour, treasurer.

The board of governors, to serve until April, 1952, comprise: Mr. C. Henry Buhl, Mr. Clifford Vail Brokaw, Mr. Walter W. Foskett, Mr. Bover N. Grace, Mr. Joseph F. Gunster, Mr. Edward F. Hutton, Mr. Vincent S. Mulford, Mr. Thomas A. O'Gorman, Mr. John H. Perry, Mr. Byron L. Ramsing, Mr. James T. Roche, Mr. Harold W. Sweatt, Dr. William Y. Sayad.

Executive departments: Mr. Lamar Harmon, manager; Mr. D'Arcy Rutherford, social secretary; Mr. Jack Ross, golf professional; Mr. Bob Murray, tennis professional.

Miami

THREE MUSICAL TREATS are scheduled for Miamians and winter guests during coming weeks.

William Kapell, pianist, makes his first Miami appearance in the Dade County Auditorium March 31 with the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Kapell has given concerts in the United States, Canada, Europe, Australia, New Zealand and South America.

A native New Yorker, he appeared 42 times with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra after launching his career in 1942.

Program for Mr. Kapell's appearance includes "Overture Egmont," by Beethoven; "Symphony No. 2 in D Major," by Sibelius, and "Concerto No. 3 for Piano and Orchestra," by Prokofieff.

Band leader Benny Goodman will follow Mr. Kapell April 4, appearing with the University of Miami Symphony in a special concert. A varied program will include "Les Préludes," by Liszt, and a popular medley of Gershwin tunes. Mr. Goodman will be featured in all solo clarinet numbers.

Igor Gorin, baritone, will be soloist with the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra April 21.

Miami's most successful horse racing season is continuing at Gulfstream Park, where the new and luxurious $1,000,000 clubhouse is the latest attraction.

Records in attendance and betting were broken at Tropical and Hialeah. Opening day at Gulfstream, where the meeting will continue through April 19, also scored new marks.

The Brooklyn Dodgers close spring baseball exhibition games at Miami Stadium with a series of three against the St. Louis Cardinals March 28 (night), 29 and 30 (day).

Today (March 25) Brooklyn meets the Philadelphia Athletics in the last game of their series.

Jail alai, fastest game in the world, will be continued nightly through April 10. The game has the longest consecutive run of any of Miami's nightly attractions.

Meanwhile, West Flagler and Miami Beach Kennel clubs are playing before full houses each night. West Flagler closes April 9 and Miami Beach ends its meet a week later.

Biscayne Kennel Club only recently reopened and is slated to continue its dog racing season through June 1.

Palm Beach Round Table

FROM "BYWATER LODGE", to big time Round Table with many of the nations' most prominent authors, lecturers and diplomats bringing a series of messages to resort residents each year marks a period of 20 years since the Palm Beach Round Table was first established in this area.

It all began, Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, president of the Round Table now recalls, when she visited the resort, and told of the Institute of World Affairs she had established with Mr. Hadden eight years previous in Geneva, Switzerland.

Thus in the tower room of the former Bethesda-by-the-Sea Church on North Lake Trail which served as a house of worship for Palm Beach pioneers in earlier days, and when deconsecrated as it gave way to the impressive structure known today as the Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea, became the property of Miss Nellie Cluett, it was here that the first Round Table sessions were held through the kindness of Miss Cluett who loaned the property for the weekly Sunday meetings.

Many young people were members of the Round Table at that time, Mrs. Hadden recalls. They met for song fests and to discuss current events. A library afforded an opportunity for informative literature on subjects of wide interest, and there was a French class arranged so that sons and daughters of Palm Beachers might hold French conversation in their discussions of affairs relating to Europe.

During War II, many soldiers from Morrison Field availed themselves of the Round Table sessions, and it was a natural for Palm Beach Junior College students, who like those in Europe that met at Geneva each summer, found an avenue open for fuller understanding of international affairs through concentrated discussions of the immediate happenings in countries all over the world.

But there were changes on the horizon, and just as War II necessitated closing the Geneva center, so "Bywater Lodge," was sold and new quarters had to be found for the Palm Beach Round Table.

The Geneva School was moved to Salisbury, Conn., at the foothills of the Berkshires where it still operates each summer, and of recent years has conducted winter sessions as more and more students from persecuted countries come to the United States for college training.

In Palm Beach the Round Table moved from its North Lake Trail site to the former Embassy Club in Royal Palm Way which gave way a few years back to the splendid Society of the Four Arts building.

Here through the kindness of the late Col. Edward R. Bradley, the Round Table held sway for a number of years. The large dining room of the club was used for musical events and a library, and around an open gallery on four sides of the patio young artists gathered to paint portraits of soldiers stationed at Morrison Field which were promptly sent off, generally to their mothers.

Many wives of officers joined the Round Table, and it was through their inquiries as to where their children might swim that the fabulous estate of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury came into the Round Table picture.

Mrs. Hadden recalls the great kindness of "a very great lady in allowing us to use her swimming pool and offering her home for our meetings," and it was here that H. R. Knickerbocker, the eminent newspaperman and official correspondent of the United States Army first division in North Africa who lost his life in an ill-fated airplane crash in 1949 spoke to the Round Table—among the first big names to appear on the local program.

As the years followed the Round Table grew right along with the Institute of World Affairs and as the most distinguished names each season appear on its roster of speakers—Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, H. V. Kaltenborn, Alexander

Sen. Styles Bridges, Republican leader of the Senate, Palm Beach Round Table speaker for the current season.

At the foothills of the Berkshires in Salisbury, Conn., students from many lands are led in seminars of better world understanding pertaining to the problems of their land and on occasion turn to festive affairs in costumes of their native lands.

Seversky being among those of past seasons with this year bringing Princess Illeana of Rumania, Sen. Styles Bridges from New Hampshire, Hanson Baldwin, New York Times military editor and Robert Vogeler, the American business man held seventeen months in 1949-51 by the Hungarian Communists, so the Institute has expanded with students assembling each summer from nearly every country in the world, even those under the Iron Curtain where the vise has not yet tightened to strangle hold.

Seeking to spread the ideals of ultimate world peace through building deeper understanding among chosen college students, the Institute of World Affairs trains young representatives of all nations for leadership in public affairs.

And each year juniors, seniors and recent graduates majoring in Political Science, International Relations, Economics or History are recommended by their Embassies or by professors in their universities are selected by the Institute's Scholarship Committee from Europe, the Orient, the Middle East and Latin America, Canada and the United States, chosen because of their ability, character, and capacity for leadership.

Because of their native ability, the nature of the program and the inspiration they receive, alumni carry forward the ideals gained by their experience at the Institute. Representing 63 countries, more than 850 former students are now in diplomatic posts, journalists and radio positions, educators and research work all striving for peaceful solution of national and world problems on a basis of mutual understanding.

The Educational Center of the Institute includes more than 500 acres with a waterfront on Twin Lakes. Schulte Hall houses the dining facilities and rooms for girls; Scoville Lodge is the residence for men; Hadden House is the library.

And in Palm Beach where the Round Table now meets weekly at the Everglades Club when the season is on, there is found inspiration and direct aid to carry forth the work of the Institute, for each season several lectures are designated as benefit affairs, all proceeds going toward scholarships for students of Institute material who without financial assistance would be unable to attend the Salisbury sessions.

Her Royal Highness, Princess Illeana of Rumania, on the '52 roster of speakers appealed that we not "be blind to the immense force of Communism aiming to reduce mankind to non-mindedness."

Thus while providing a program of distinction in Palm Beach, the fundamental goal of the Institute of World Affairs is promoted in an ever-widening circle of those who will resist Communist aggression through faith in the possibilities of democratic government and in the right of all men to freedom.

Honoring Robert Vogeler at a dinner party when he lectured in Palm Beach for the Round Table this winter on what it means to live under a Communist regime, are patrons of his talk, left to right—Mrs. J. Russell Maguire, Mr. Vogeler, Dr. Frank E. Adair, Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, Round Table president, Mr. Maguire and Mrs. Adair.

Yachts at Anchor in Lake Worth

NEVER BEFORE has Lake Worth been the highway for so many yachts as this year. Not only were the yachts more frequent, but they were also bigger, brighter, more luxurious and more marvelously equipped than in years past. It seemed, looking across the lake on a fine, sunny day, as though "all the world and his brother" had taken to the water.

Yachtmen in great numbers have been utilizing the divine weather for cruising to Jamaica, Isle of Pines, the Florida Keys and the Florida west coast. Lucky the yachtman, his wife and children, guests and pets who can sit in the breezy shade of a canvas-roofed afterdeck as his gallant ship rides the blue gulf stream waters—they are enjoying life at its peak.

Of most particular appeal to the travel-minded, the enchanting peace and relaxation of his voyage culminates in visits to strange and exotic islands; then the bow turns slowly into the current, and he is headed back into the welcoming arms of Palm Beach and northern friends in familiar ports.

It was to visit old friends in Palm Beach that Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Ludwig brought the magnificent "Danginn" into port. Too large to get in close to the Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club dock, the "Danginn" was anchored about fifteen feet off the end of the dock, and a launch bigger than some of the Sailfish dock "regulars" brought parties from the ship ashore. The "Danginn" was named in combination of the nicknames of Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig, "Dan" and "Ginger."

A crew of twenty young German seamen man the 189 ft. yacht, which is roughly the size of an American sub-chaser or destroyer escort, or a British corvette. The "Danginn" is of Monrovia, Liberia registry, and the owner is listed as being International Tankers, Inc.

An exciting visitor on a yacht in local waters, especially in view of later developments, was General Fulgencio Batista of Cuba, who apparently rested on board the "Carola", Colonel and Mrs. Leon Mandel's fabulous 121 ft. yacht, before the Cuban bloodless coup of mid-March. A week before the general assumed control of Cuba's government, he was the guest of Colonel Mandel, Chicago department store head and his beautiful Cuba-born wife, and a fellow guest of Miss Ethel Merman, of Broadway fame, in Palm Beach waters.

Much speculation is current as to the guests aboard Former Ambassador Stanton Griffis chartered yacht, the 98 ft. "Carolyn". Mr. Griffis, a career diplomat who has recently resigned as ambassador to Spain, is cruising for two months in Caribbean waters, with the expressed purpose of writing a book. The "Carolyn", one of the most luxuriously equipped yachts afloat, has an escalator from its main salon to a stateroom below. There are five staterooms, each with bath; five rooms and three baths for the seven-man crew, and every accessory to graceful living. Mr. Griffis' home is in New York City, and he had been visiting the home of Mrs. Margaret Emerson in Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schneider had as their cruise guest on board the "Rosalie L" last week the beautiful, red-haired "Diane," designer of fabulous knitted garments for motion picture stars and other lucky women. Diane Nabell, of Beverly Hills, Calif., is a one-woman "employ-the-physically-handicapped" program. Through her knitting, which was only a personal hobby a little over three years ago, she has developed an industry giving employment in their own homes to over four hundred persons, two hundred of them physically handicapped.

Diane designs the garments, ranging from evening gowns to tennis shorts, and farms out the knitting to persons who would not otherwise be able to earn any money or have the priceless feeling of being useful. The life of the first paralyzed girl she employed was actually saved through this therapy. Three months of training is given each handicapped person, some of whom are blind.

Mr. and Mrs. George Friedland of Philadelphia, owners of the "Lady Fair II", have been using their yacht for short cruises, with guests aboard, while in Palm Beach superintending the building of their new home on El Bravo Way. The "Lady Fair II" is partly named for the Friedlander family enterprise, the Food Fair stores.

Visitors from New Jersey, Colonel and Mrs. Edward N. Bloomer of East Orange, have returned from a cruise to Daytona Beach on board their "Figala". At a yachting cocktail party on their return, they entertained Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ferris, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Lind and Mr. and

One of the largest yachts ever to enter Palm Beach inland waters, the "Danginn," with Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Ludwig aboard, came here from Miami. Smaller than the "Sea Cloud," the "Danginn" is still quite a lot of yacht. Because its size prohibited getting into dock facilities, the "Danginn" had to be anchored off the Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club dock, in deep water..

Lake Worth, with the West Palm Beach skyline in rear, and the fishing fleet in the fore, a scene essentially unchanged from year to year, during the season. Yachts and fishing boats move out in steady procession each morning, some to return victorious in the evening with catch pennants flying in the breeze, others to steam haughtily toward their docks, bows in air, pretending that a lot of pennants really make a ship look overdressed.

Mrs. James Rogers, all of South Orange, and Mr. Felix Standen of Spring Lake, New Jersey.

From the Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club dock, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Kerr, Jr., of Spring Lake, New Jersey, are visiting in Fort Lauderdale, after cruising there on their yacht, "Gailew", and Mr. and Mrs. Allison F. Fleitas are spending some time on the west coast of Florida on their yacht, the "Vael".

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Edgcomb arrived from Philadelphia recently to join their yacht, the "Silver Dawn". They will have as their guests on a cruise in the Keys, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Johnson, of Middletown, Ohio and Mr. George Moomaw of Baltimore.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wallace Smith have gone back to Manhattan, leaving the skipper to bring their yacht "Quickstep" to New York a little later.

Mr. George Scher, of Newark, New Jersey, has been fishing nearly every day from the deck of his "Wilma D", with an impressive array of kingfish, dolphin and sails (released) entered in the fishing log.

A brand new yacht, the Chris-Craft "Blue Runner II" is the delight of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Kent, Jr. of Palm Beach.

Mr. Lyman Bloomingdale of New York City has been entertaining cruise guests on board his "Hiram III". Among his guests have been Mr. H. Peter Kriender, owner of the famous "21" in New York and Mr. William Riesenfeld of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Felts of Galax, Virginia, Sailfish Yacht and Beach Club members, have been sadly missed in Palm Beach this season. They had expected all season to be able to come to Palm Beach at least long enough to cruise on their lovely yacht, the "Betsy Chatham", but couldn't make it.

Comment that "Tchaika", the name of the yacht belonging to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Benjamin of Savannah, Georgia was a fascinating name brought the information that tchaika is Russian for sea gull, and that Mrs. Benjamin is a former Russian Countess.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. Pierson are on a charter cruise on board the "Restless Too". Mr. Pierson owns the Colony Hotel in Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Coleman of Palm Beach have been taking a number of short cruises on board their "Carib II", as have Mr. and Mrs. Gene Dyer on board their "Genie". The Dyers have had Mr. and Mrs. Milton V. Hoos as their cruise guests on several occasions.

An overnight guest in Palm Beach was Mr. Howard Johnson, famous restaurant proprietor. He was cruising north from Miami on board his "Do-Ho III".

The "Huns Buddy III", property of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Richards of the Embassy Apartments Palm Beach and Philadelphia has been at Bahia-Mar Fort Lauderdale most of the past season, taking short cruises with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Allen and Mr. and Mrs. O. Kennedy aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards will now take the "Huns Buddy III" on one of the most fascinating of all cruises, around the Florida Keys, up the west coast to Tampa, through the Caloosahatchee River to Lake Okeechobee and out the St. Lucie Canal to Stuart, before returning to Palm Beach.

Brazilian Court

A winter visitor to Palm Beach has not tasted the full delight of tropical living until he has enjoyed the hospitality of the Brazilian Court Hotel. Occupying an entire block, the hotel is built around a central courtyard as large as many city parks. The lovely fountain centers a network of flagstone walks, with cosy, umbrella-topped tables for completely outdoor dining and lounging.

The Brazilian Court Hotel is perhaps most famous for its completely tropical atmosphere, as guests tell friends of the utter peace and relaxation to be found within the cloistered walls, but it is also noted for the quietly superb service rendered in every department, and the beautiful rooms and suites.

In addition to three modern lounges, the Reading Room, Chanticleer Lounge, equipped for reading, writing and entertaining, and the Card Room, fully equipped for any game of the guest's choice. The Cloister Lounge, located off the main dining room and bar is one of the most beautiful cocktail lounges in Palm Beach. Music through the cocktail and dinner hours is provided by the hotel's own orchestra. A loggia dining terrace is equipped with sliding glass doors for indoor-outdoor compromise in occasional inclement weather.

The best test of quality in a hotel is whether the guests return year after year. At the Brazilian Court Hotel, reservations far in advance of the season show the same names that have been on the register since the hotel was opened, in addition to many new ones each season.

New arrivals at the Brazilian Court Hotel include Mr. and Mrs. James B. Donovan, New York City; Mrs. A. J. Abrams, Wilmington, Delaware; Mr. and Mrs. George C.

Peterson, Chicago, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leimback, Baltimore, Maryland; Mrs. E. C. Toner, Anderson, Indiana; Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Coffey, Dallas, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Parsons, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. C. Rowley Booth, Ottawa, Canada; Mrs. Frank O'Brien and daughter, Amarillo, Texas and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Armour, Chicago, Illinois.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Irving T. Smith and Miss Kirby Smith, Greenwich, Connecticut; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Redding, Chicago, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Torek, Oxford, Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Brockway, Shaker Heights, Ohio; Mrs. Donald McClain, Atlanta, Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Megowen, Lowell, Massachusetts; Mr. and Mrs. J. Sanford Otis and family, Chicago; Mr. Gustav Gruting, Sweden; Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. McIntyre and family, Palo Alto, California; Mr. and Mrs. William R. Turner, Norwich, New York; Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Colladay, Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. C. Frank Reavis, New York City.

Palm Beach Hampton

The Palm Beach Hampton Apartment Hotel is a startling new addition to the south strand of Palm Beach. Located between ocean and lake, south of the Lake Worth bridge, it is of rambling Bermuda-Nassau architectural style.

From the lovely patios and long porch walks there is a continuous view of the ever-changing Atlantic on the east side, and from other patios and covered walks overlooking the lake, one may watch the multi-colored sunsets in the west.

A view of the glamorous new Palm Beach Hampton from its ocean frontage. Just south of the Lake Worth bridge, the Hampton occupies land stretching from lake through to ocean, with patios, sundecks and private beach.

Among the guests at the Palm Beach Hampton recently have been, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bevan of New York City. Mrs. Bevan, daughter of Nancy Carroll, former motion picture star, is known professionally as Patricia Kirkland. Among other things, she has played in "The Egg and I" on the C.B.S. network. Mr. Bevan is co-author of the new Broadway hit play, "Staglag 17."

Mr. and Mrs. Don Carter have been occupying the penthouse. Mr. Carter is a financier in Dallas, Texas. Another penthouse was taken by Mr. and Mrs. William C. Griffith of Indianapolis, Indiana, where Mr. Griffith is president of the Indiana Trust Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Richards spent their honeymoon at the Palm Beach Hampton. Mr. Richards, a former Davis Cup player is an executive in the Dunlap Tire Company.

Other guests include Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Martin and daughter, of Detroit, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Smith of West Hampton Beach, Long Island; Mr. and Mrs. G. Dudley Thomas, Toronto, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lake, Jamaica, New York; Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Reddig, Ashtabula, Ohio; Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Wesley, Toronto, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. M. Yerkes, Detroit, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Sullivan, Reading, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Clem Less, Toledo, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Riford, Alburn, New York, where Mr. Riford is president of the Beacon Milling Company; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Tuller, Worchester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Eiler, Cumberland, Maryland and Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Whitworth, also Cumberland.

Among present guests of the Palm Beach Hampton are Baroness H. de Grandcourt of Chestnut Hill, Mass., the former Mrs. W. A. Helene Anderson; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Ayers, Rye, New York; Mrs. W. H. Biddell, Montreal, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ballenger, Chicago, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Clovis, Jr., Northbrook, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. E. D. di Tomasso, Pte. Claire, Quebec, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus C. Jones, Pasadena, California; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lange, Great Neck, New York; Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Lovett, Syracuse, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Maloney, also Syracuse; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. McCarthy, Rochester, Minn.; Mr. and Mrs. Van R. Richards, Batavia, New York; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Rousseau, Grosse Ile, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Gotfredson, Detroit, Michigan and Mrs. and Mrs. Thaddeus C. Jones, of Pasadena, California.

Ford men and their wives get together at the Patio for dinner. Left to right are Mr. E. R. Breech, executive vice president of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Mich.; Mrs. W. H. Wiley; Mr. John Bugas, vice president at Dearborn; Mrs. J. E. Holness, Jr.; Mr. Wiley, West Palm Beach; Mrs. Breech, Mr. Holness, West Palm Beach Ford dealer, and Mrs. Bugas.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL SEASON is nearing an end, but the crowds still continue to flock to the fashionable Patio Restaurant, where the best in food is served and excellent music for dancing is furnished by Val Ernie's orchestra. The Patio has kept its entertainment on a high plane again this season, and of this there is no better judge than a guest book filled with the names of celebrities in royalty, society, business, sports and entertainment fields.

One of the outstanding events of the whole season was the selection of the "best dressed woman of the Palm Beaches." The honor went to the beautiful Countess J. Marguerite Dorelis, a picture of loveliness in a bouffant evening dress of organza, contrasted with unique tuck treatment and topped by a strapless bodice. Mrs. L. Birrell was runner-up, and Mrs. J. Maurice Gray was third.

The judges until the finals, when the audience chose their positions by popular applause, were Mrs. Herman Watkins, Mrs. Walter Young, Mrs. Theodore Wiehe, Mrs. George Friedland and Mrs. Theodore W. Stemmler.

A number of movie stars dined at the Patio this season, particularly during recent weeks, when Judy Garland, Peter Lawford and David Niven were seen the same night.

Sports figures have also enjoyed the night spot for its class of food and entertainment. Connie Mack, 89-year-old president of the Philadelphia Athletics Baseball Club, gave a dinner party for a group of friends. In addition to Mrs. Mack there were Mr. William Harridge, president of the American League; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaughnessy, head of the International League; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Richardson, leader of the Eastern League; Mr. Earl Helligan, American League publicity director; Mr. and Mrs. Roy F. Mack, A's vice-president, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pollock, of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

The cocktail terrace and lounge have been popular meeting spots for Patio guests this season. When nights were a little on the cool side, the lounge, with its open fireplace, gave an added charm to the swank night spot.

Fashion shows, balloon showers, nights of many surprises, songstress Gracie Barrie, singers Frank Carroll and Johnny Gorman, and dancers George and Betty Montgomery all proved popular attractions.

THE MIRAMAR

A gala season was experienced at the Miramar restaurant, and now plans are being completed to keep the restaurant open throughout the summer months.

Currently attracting gala crowds is the entertainment policy, continuous from 10 p.m. until 3 in the morning, and starring Miss June Nelson, society's favorite disease, who alternates with Ed Mooney, piano stylist.

Miss Nelson, who is well known to the Palm Beach area, is also a favorite of Chicago society, and has appeared in the Windy City at the smart Oak Room.

Her repertoire, which includes show tunes, well known ballads, and songs of her own composition, is one of the many reasons why this year smart Palm Beach society is choosing the Miramar as the setting for its late evening gatherings.

The decor of the Miramar is definitely different, with the accent on old world charm. Soft lights, restful as well as flattering, emanate from wall panels depicting the crests of noted Florentine families. All embellishments in the Florentine Room were imported from Italy.

The superb supper delicacies are another reason why the Florentine Room is the hub of much activity. Long acclaimed a paradise of gourmets, the restaurant has lived up to its reputation for catering to the smart winter visitors.

Noted there were Mr. and Mrs. C. Henry Buhl, Mr. Herbert Pulitzer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Terry, Mrs. Isabelle M. O'Brien, Cmdr. and Mrs. Guernsey Curran, Jr., Air Marshall and Mrs. William A. Bishop, Miss Olive Mills Massie, Mrs. Joel White Massie, Dr. and Mrs. William Y. Sayad, Mr. and Mrs. Messmore Kendall, Mrs. Sylvanus Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. Clegg Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn Taylor, Mrs. Jennie Fabyan, Mrs. William Blodgett, Mrs. Edwin Willard, Zachary Scott of the films, Burgess Meredith of the films, and Mrs. Meredith, Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Schwill, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. ## SCAMPI

The famous Scampi Restaurant on South Federal Highway in Boynton Beach has added some new attractions to an already superior atmosphere, fine food and entertainment. A gorgeously decorated new patio invites outdoor entertaining on these increasingly beautiful and balmy nights. Indoors the divine piano playing of Mario Jazzetti keeps music lovers clustered around him, reluctant to leave the flood of golden notes even when the wee hours turn into dawn.

Among those entertaining at Scampi's recently have been many from far-away places. Mr. Paul H. Van Hoven of Duluth, Minn., President of the Iron Range Railway Company had as his guests Mr. J. H. Harold, Fort Lauderdale; Mr. Roy Rouse, Delray Beach and Mr. A. E. Arneson of Delray Beach.

Others dining and entertaining in Scampi's were Mr. and Mrs. Kingley Day and Mr. Otto Anderson, Minneapolis, Minn.; Chicagoans Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Lamberson (he is vice-president of Field Enterprises, Inc.), Mrs. R. Drought and daughter, Margo and Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron; Mr. and Mrs. C. H. R. MacKenzie, Mt. Clemens, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Leitz, Lake Worth, Fla.; Miss J. A. McCallum, London, Ont., Canada; Mr. and Mrs. Foster S. Acton, Garden City, L. I., N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Y., and Fort Lauderdale and Mr. and Mrs. C. Asher, Mineola, N. Y. and Miami, Florida.

Among guests of Scampi's from Palm Beach in the past few days have been Miss Helen Ernie, Mrs. Jane O'Malley-Keyes, Mrs. Harry Ewington Childs, Mr. Paul Dunkin and party of six; Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Rose, Mr. and Mrs. James Noyes Wallace, Mr. Orson Munn and party of eight; Mr. and Mrs. George Schrafft and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody.

PETITE MARMITE

Just off Worth Avenue, tucked cozily in a quaint little via, is continental Petite Marmite, a favorite season after season with a select clientele of Palm Beachers.

An outdoor restaurant with specialty foods of Italian origin, Petite Marmite matches its unique atmosphere with tempting, unique foods of palate-arousing aromas, and should a cool breeze blow in or the heavens open up, the attractive restaurant is equipped to afford undercover shelter for its guests.

From luncheon until late in the evening Petite Marmite caters to Palm Beachers and visitors to the resort who know and like food with a personality, a piquant flavor, deliciously prepared from the best to be had in raw materials.

MUSIC BOX

Entertainment, diversified and in generous measure is the theme at the Music Box, sparkling Worth Avenue Restaurant and cocktail lounge where patrons return night after night for good food, and good fun...and where just now added to the merry-go-round of troupers—the Mary Wood Trio, and Charlie Wright, glamorous petite blonde Gail Meredith straight from Broadway, television and radio conquests in New York is entertaining at two shows nightly.

Always a gay time afforded holiday seekers, the Music Box is filled to the brim with smart repertory and diversified programs, each Tuesday presenting a Fred Astaire dance-acade night, each Friday a fashion show.

And with so elaborate a scheme for laughter, nothing is overlooked in the way of superior food—Joe Moss and Martin McNally, manager-owners being old hands at purveying the best in the victual line so that from lunchtime through cocktails and on to dinner to the supper-clubbing hour there are palate-exciting dishes to suit and satisfy.

Recently at the Music Box were Mrs. George White, Lady Birley, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lansdall, Mr. and Mrs. David E. Kauffman, Mrs. McAlpine Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Edward U. # Gulf Stream and Delray Beach

GULF STREAM AND DELRAY BEACH can rightly boast of the cultural and civic activities of their communities as well as the gracious informality which is a part of these two adjoining seaside resorts.

The Sunday afternoon polo games at Gulf Stream are always popular, and scores of fans from all over the country are in attendance at every game. Stewart Iglehart and Mike Phipps, renowned the world over, compete regularly in this fascinating sport.

The play "Claudia" is having a week's run at The Little Theatre, with Mrs. Allen Topping, Jr., the former Mariana Look, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Millard Look, playing the part of Claudia. Directing The Little Theatre, which has played such an integral part in the cultural life of the community, is J. Stuart Warrington. Mr. Warrington is resident director of the Hilltop Theatre in Baltimore, Md., where he will return in the summer. He directed the Marblehead (Mass.) Little Theatre in 1949 and has done several Broadway plays, having been associated with Helen Hayes, Cornel Wilde, Basil Rathbone, Hildegard and others.

The engagement of one of Gulf Stream's most prominent winter resorters, Mrs. Lewis H. Brown, to the Rev. Charles O. Farrar, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Delray Beach, was announced at a dinner given by the Rev. Farrar at the rectory. Guests at the dinner included the wardens and vestrymen of the church and their wives. The wedding will take place in late May in St. Bartholomew's in New York. Mrs. Brown is the widow of the late Mr. Lewis H. Brown, chairman of the board of Johns-Manville. Rev. Farrar has been the rector of St. Paul's for the past six years, and prior to coming to Florida was rector at St. Paul's Church in Newton, Mass. Upon coming to Florida he was rector of Christ Church in Pensacola and later at St. John's Church in Jacksonville.

Among the interesting visitors in Delray Beach are Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Grant, Jr., and their son Richard, who have been dividing their time between their yacht "Gairic" and the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Grant, on Vista Del Mar. The junior Grants' daughter, Miss Gail, who attends Madeira School, has just joined her parents and grandparents in the resort.

Sgt. Robert S. Royce, who has been in the Marine Corps at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Calif., has been released from the service and is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander B. Royce, at "Flamingo Rise," their home in Gulf Stream.

Judge and Mrs. Burchard Dutcher have as their guests at their home in Vista Del Mar their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hager, and son, Eric, Jr., of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Mrs. Dudley Felt, of Darien, Conn., is the guest of her father, Mr. Norris J. Clarke, at his ocean-front home in Gulf Stream.

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Abbott, of Gibson Square Island, Md., and Jamaica Square, have returned from an extensive cruise to South America.

Miss Gertrude E. Skelly, who has been in Wilmington, Del., for a fortnight, has returned to her home in Gulf Stream. She has as her guests her mother, Mrs. James T. Skelly; her sister-in-law, Mrs. James T. Skelly, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Wheelock, of Greenville, Del.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kayser, Jr., of Weston, Mass., and Wolfeboro, N. H., are at Shell Lane for several weeks after a cruise to Key Largo as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leavatt L. Edgar, of Fort Lauderdale, aboard their yacht "Perlea 8th."

The George Eustaces, of Cincinnati, Ohio, have come down for a late stay at their home in Gulf Stream.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Troig, of Gulf Stream, are entertaining their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Watrous, of Janesville, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bruce Bredin have as their guest at their ocean-front home Mrs. Irene duPont, Jr., of Wilmington, Del. Mr. and Mrs. Adgate Lipscomb, of Washington, D. C., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Moffitt, and Mrs. Martin Schallenberger and her son, Mr. Martin Schallenberger, Jr., of Louisville, Ky., have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lyons Brown at their home in Gulf Stream. Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Brown, also of Louisville, are presently visiting in the Brown home.

Mrs. Louis B. Harding, of Chestnut Hill, Mass., who has been a guest of Brig. Gen. (ret) and Mrs. Harold Pierce at MacNichol Manors, was recently the honoree of a lovely party given by her hosts.

Capt. and Mrs. Earl M. Major gave a cocktail party at their ocean-front home, having as their guests their Gulf Stream neighbors. They also entertained with a buffet luncheon at the Gulf Stream Golf Club. Their guests for this occasion were Brig. Gen. Harold Pierce and Mrs. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Alden Painter, Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman Nickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert Plimpton, Mrs. Sylvia Rose and Miss Jane Major.

Other recent party hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Stewart B. Iglehart, who entertained with a barbecue at "La Centinela," their ocean-front home in Delray Beach, for Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, of Armstrong, Texas, who, with their children, Charles and Julia, are their house guests. Mr. Owsley Brown, of the Blue Grass State, gave a large cocktail party at Parliament Flats, where he is spending the season. Mr. and Mrs. T. Donaldson Sloan, Jr., entertained a small group of their friends for cocktails at their home on Miramar Drive. Mrs. William E. Hinsdale entertained a large company of friends at a cocktail party at her home on South East 7th Street. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bigelow Freeman, of Newton Center, Mass., who are at MacNichol Manors for the season, gave a small cocktail party at the Everglades Club in Palm Beach. Gen. and Mrs. Arthur H. Carter gave a dinner party at their home in Gulf Stream for their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Lovejoy, of Greenwich, Conn.

Arriving at their home in Gulf Stream for the spring season were Mr. and Mrs. F. Berry Lindley, of Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Newlin F. Davis, of Philadelphia, Pa., are at the Seagrape Hill, Delray Beach, for a spring holiday, and at MacNichol Manors are Mr. and Mrs. William B. Severn, of Haverford, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Bond, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown, Jr., of Boston, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe Nesbit and small daughter, Bland, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Preston T. Coursen and children, David and Richard, of Eugene, Ore., are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Farris at their home in Delray Beach.

Members of the college group who are in Delray Beach and Gulf Stream for their spring vacations are Miss Edna French Look, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Millard Look, who attends Rollins College; Herbert Hess, Jr., a student at the University of Virginia, who is with his father, Mr. Herbert Hess, in Delray Beach; John and Michael Annan, students at Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn., who are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Annan, in Gulf Stream. William G. Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Seward Webb, is also among those arriving from Yale.

Miss Nancy Fontaine Maury is arriving on March 29th from Sweetbriar College, Sweetbriar, Va., to spend her spring vacation with her mother, Mrs. Anne Fontaine Maury Adams, at her home in Gulf Stream.

MEXICO—American visitors to Taxco view the Spanish colonial church of Santa Prisca from this vantage point on Silver Street.

A DOZEN CITIES IN ONE—that's Mexico City. Whether you have a week or a year to spend, there's plenty of vacation fun in this 900-year-old capital of our good neighbor republic to the south.

It's mighty close to home, too. A 5-hour, 50-minute non-stop flight from Miami via Guest Airways, and you're there—ready to start having fun.

Your vacation starts when you leave Miami. From the cheerful "Welcome aboard" you get when you enter the cabin of a Guest airliner to the "Hasta la vista" that sends you off to vacation fun in Mexico, the flight has a festive atmosphere. While you cruise through the smooth skies above the Gulf of Mexico, the pretty stewardess is always ready with anything from pillows to magazines to a snack. At dinner time, she brings you a trayful of food that makes you think you're back home in the best restaurant in town. Anytime you're thirsty, just ask for refreshment. Anything from orange juice to a highball is yours for the asking—and, like the delicious meal, free of charge.

Mexico City will amaze you . . . you never know what to expect next. Coming in from the airport, you'll see a church, supposed to be the oldest in America, standing in the middle of a wide boulevard, completely surrounded by born-yesterday apartments and stores. Not far from Aztec ruins that were centuries old when white men first came to Mexico, charming modern homes dot the hillsides. Within a few blocks you'll see open-air markets, showrooms for American and foreign cars, a factory that uses 300-year-old methods and equipment to produce exquisite hand-blown glass, and a contemporary statue to a hero of Mexico's War of Independence. There's a blending of old and new—of different cultures and races—that keeps the sightseer's head turning from morning to night. And running through everything you see there's the music of modern Mexico. A rhythm of growth, of change, of the progress of a young and vital nation. No more active place in all the world exists than Mexico City.

You may spend days in wandering around the city, yet never tire of the ever-changing panorama of people and places. There are the famous tourist attractions like the National Palace of Fine Arts; the Cathedral; the Courthouse, where Diego Rivera has painted the mezzanine with brilliant murals depicting the history of Mexico from the year 900 until the present; and Chapultepec Castle, once the home of Carlotta and Maximilian—now a national museum. Or you can walk around the city on your own, drinking in the color and activity of its streets. You'll see Paris in the smart cafes and wide boulevards; old Madrid in the dark, narrow streets of the old city; a city of tomorrow in the glass-and-steel skyscrapers . . . the strikingly modern Normal School.

In Chapultepec Heights, a fashionable suburb, houses that would cost $35,000 and up in the States are going up like mushrooms after a spring rain. Many have swimming pools, tennis courts, or jai-alai frontons. The architecture is about evenly divided between adaptations of Spanish Colonial styles and "house of tomorrow" designs that look like the stone children of Frank Lloyd Wright.

Mexico City offers entertainment for every taste. Night-club shows rival those of New York, Miami and Hollywood. Patrons of the arts may attend symphony, opera, or ballet performances, or spend many hours at the Palace of Fine Arts, seeing art treasures from all over the world and frequent exhibits of the imaginative contemporary Mexican painting and sculpture.

Taxco, quaint and beautiful town, famed for its timeworn churches, cliff-bordered market place, and gay fiestas, is a haven for artists and intellectuals.

—PAA Photo

Constructed entirely of marble from Carrara, Italy, the Palace of Fine Arts in Mexico City is noted for its luxuriously furnished reception salons, also its murals by Mexico's foremost painters, Diego Rivera and Jose Clemente Crozco. In the Palace Theatre is the famous crystal curtain, the only one of its kind in the world, which depicts a scene of the volcanoes Popocateptl and Iztaccihustl. Some of the world's greatest art treasures are on display here.

Sports enthusiasts will enjoy Mexico's national sports—bull fighting and jai-alai—probably the two most exciting spectator sports in the world, and certainly the most dangerous.

Jai-alai is played somewhat like handball or squash. But it's a jet-propelled game that makes our speedy and strenuous games look like patty-cake. The professional player makes the very hard ball travel like Bobby Feller's fast one, and it's curtains for the man who gets hit with it.

After a day of fun and sight-seeing, it is good to relax in one of Mexico's famous restaurants. They offer some of the most delicious and unusual cuisine in the world, including German, French and Chinese, in addition to native cookery. A list of the restaurants about town reads like the roll call at the U. N. Better forget your diet when you go out to dinner in Mexico City, for meals are almost too big to eat.

Seeing ALL of Mexico City is like trying to see all of New York or Paris. Bluntly speaking, you can't. The best thing to do is hit the high spots of the capital and then take a trip to some of the other cities of Mexico. Each of them satisfies a different requirement of the visitor, and all of them are fascinating.

If you like tropical scenery, smooth white beaches, and all sorts of sports, Acapulco is for you. Colonial Spain of three or four hundred years ago still lives on in Taxco, center of Mexico's silver industry. Ancient Aztec ruins may be seen in and around Oaxaca, breathing their atmosphere of civilizations that flourished when Europe was peopled by barbarian tribes. Cuernavaca and the lake country around it offer quiet places for pure relaxation or fishing, swimming and boating. For real fishermen, Mazatlan has the most exciting fishing in the world. The Pacific Ocean there has been exposed to sport fishermen of the world for only a few years, and fish scarcely know what a hook is.

The Colony Hotel

THE COLONY, one of the exclusive hotels in the resort, is open all-year-round and every summer finds more and more northerners spending their holidays here, enjoying the delightful air-conditioned hotel. In close proximity to the beach, golf and tennis clubs and night spots, it is one of the most strategically located hostelrys in the resort.

Important in the history of architecture in Palm Beach, The Colony is modern, with a southern-colonial accent. . . . the magenta building and tall white columns, which dramatize the entrance, give an air of hospitality. Gracious service by the way, has been the "Hallmark" of the hotel, since it was built about five years ago.

The interior reflects the contemporary-modern theme . . . smart and luxurious furnishings, with accent on home-like appointments, which give the atmosphere of a club rather than a hotel. Carrying on the tradition of the "fabulous island", murals of old Palm Beach, enhance the lobby, terrace club and cocktail lounge. . . .merging the past and present, in perfect harmony.

Cocktail time is a must in the resort and the Colony Lounge is one of the most popular rendezvous. The intimate little lounge is a favored gathering place for friends to chat over a tall drink, or wee doch in doris. Adding to the fun, Herbert Ricci, noted continental musician, who entertains at the piano. . . .also impromptu accordion solos; basing many of his selections on requests from patrons.

Dignified and in good taste, a perfect background for the discriminating clientele, who dine at The Colony, the dining room is reminiscent of a charming New England home. A smart green and white color scheme, white ruffled curtains and a mirrored wall to give a sense of space. In harmony with the surroundings, the superb cuisine, featuring French and American dishes. . . .graciously served.

During the dinner hours, Herbert Ricci and Alexandro Rosatti, entertain with very "listenable" violin and piano music. . . .they have an enviable continental background of experience and are as adept at popular hit parade tunes as they are interpreting the semi-classics and folk songs. Presiding over the dining facilities and ensuring expedient and gracious service, is Morris, maitre d'hotel, who has been on the staff of numerous outstanding hotels and clubs, both here and abroad.

Late supper parties and private dinners, luncheons and cocktail affairs, are taken care of in the Terrace Club of The Colony. A charming and spacious tropical room, overlooking the hotel patio. . . .furnished in bamboo and colorful cottons, dramatized with interesting murals of Florida's yesteryear. The built-in mahogany bar, which follows the contour of the room, is both functional and smart. Ricci and Rosatti, furnish the music here.

According to Bernard H. Cooley, vice-president and general manager of the Colony, the hotel had capacity bookings during the season and is looking forward to an interesting spring and summer, with numerous reservations already received. "Indicative" said Mr. Cooley, "that Palm Beach is perhaps slowly but surely, becoming an all-year place and not just a winter resort."

Numerous celebrities and famous personages were guests at The Colony this season. All of the penthouses were occupied during the winter months, with the occupants hosts at numerous cocktail and luncheon parties.

PALM BEACH HOTEL

TROPICALLY ATTRACTIVE and a great favorite with many guests from the North is the Palm Beach Hotel with every comfort designed to make happy its large resort family and an entertainment program second to none on the Palm Beach scene.

A special center of interest is the Cabana Club, an innovation added about five years ago with palm-fringed patio and Olympic-sized pool, a veritable village of pale pink and white set off by a soft-clouded sky of pale blue and the azure sea but a step away.

Here the renowned Palm Beach Hotel aquatic events take place, and it was here that in 1948 the Women's Olympic swimming team had their try-outs and where many amateur Athletic Union championships have been won.

Throughout the season, the pool is a favorite recreation spot for guests of the Palm Beach Hotel, for besides acting as the "stage" for the evening aquashows, held every few weeks before capacity audiences, it is a constant source of pleasure to holiday seekers in the Florida sun.

The cabanas themselves are well furnished, right down to the showers, tiled in gaily colored mosaic patterns, and the tropical louvered doors serve a decorative as well as a utilitarian purpose exposing each unit to the sun, if desired.

Between the twin white-washed brick bathhouses at the ocean side of the Club, lies the outdoor dining patio, one of the most delightful luncheon spots in Palm Beach. On aquashow evenings, the dining patio is transformed into a dance floor for post-show dancing.

The outer walls of the Club are done in the same white-washed brick touched with pink that gives a tropical peaches-and-cream effect that is something to behold.

The Club adjoins the beach, which is reached through an underground passage created beneath the ocean drive.

The beach itself boasts a short boardwalk, complete with sun umbrellas and beach chairs.

Turrets of tropical beauty create distinction of architecture at the splendid Palm Beach Hotel.

This season Seiden management ever adding something new to its hotels, installed a fine new sun deck atop the cabanas. Running along the north and west angles of the Club, the new deck has become a popular sunning and lounging retreat for those who want all they can get of that Florida sun. Equipped with chairs and colorful umbrellas the skyline boardwalk is a fitting complement to the rest of the Cabana Beach Club.

As another Palm Beach season draws to a close, guests of the Palm Beach Hotel are looking forward to spending part or all of their summer vacation time with the Seiden family at the elegant Lido Hotel and Beach Club at Lido Beach, Long Island. The largest and most completely appointed shoreline hotel on the Northeast coast, the Lido affords luxurious accommodations in a seaside resort, within fifty miles of New York City.

The Ambassador

GOOD NEWS from the Ambassador Hotel of Palm Beach ... where there seems never to be anything but good news, the handsome apartment hotel being one of the most gracious and magnificently appointed in every respect, tells of plans for expansion which according to Mr. Larry Borsten, managing director of the hotel when completed will represent one of the greatest advances in hotel apartment planning in the tropics.

Three spacious villa units will be added to the Ambassador with John Stetson well-known Palm Beach architect already having submitted detailed plans which according to the Ambassador's policy will offer guests a Florida residence rather than a mere hotel room.

And while the three spacious villas are each to comprise eight completely furnished homes, the architectural arrangement is to be such as will allow for flexibility so that as many as four connecting units may be available.

Each is to consist of a large 19 by 15-foot master studio room, a private cabana, cabana porch, shower, kitchen, bath and multiple walk-in closets, the arrangement so unique and ingenious as to allow both cabana and living areas to be enjoyed separately or together.

Directly responsible for the expansion is Mr. Charles Bernstein, owner of the Ambassador and well-known in building circles for his expert development of fashionable Shaker Heights at Cleveland, Ohio.

Working in close cooperation with craftsmen, contractors and builders, Mr. Bernstein and Manager Larry Borsten believe their $312,000 project will be underway by June 1 and completed well in advance of the 1952-53 Palm Beach season.

Having enjoyed the most successful winter since it was erected about eight years ago, the Ambassador Hotel as close as possible to both the azure-blue ocean and the eastern shore of Lake Worth has attracted discriminating visitors from the width and breadth of the country this year and from Canada and foreign ports as well. And justly so, for it is a hotel to be enjoyed, one that the management wants enjoyed, and with the spirit of friendliness and informality that prevails many visitors to Palm Beach think only of the Ambassador as their home when time rolls round to journey southward.

Arrived recently for a holiday were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hays Sulzberger, the latter President and Publisher of the New York Times, accompanied by their son and daughter-in-law, Lt. of the Marine Corps, Arthur O. Sulzberger and Mrs. Sulzberger.

From Washington, D.C. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ourisman have arrived to make their home for several weeks at the Ambassador and here again after visiting earlier in the season, is the famous conductor Andre Kostelanetz.

Also guests of the Ambassador are Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Alexander from Hollis, L.I., N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Nev-ergall, Sidney, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McElligott, Waterbury, Conn.; from Chicago, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Strauss, Mrs. Seymour Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Pollak, Mrs. M. E. Feiwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Newberger. Also from New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas (Nick) Kenny, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Merz, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Schulman. Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hirsch, Highland Park, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. James Ellis, Toronto, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. George Richman, Shaker Heights, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Morton Stone of Gates Mills, Ohio; and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Opler, Hinsdale, Ill.

Palm Beach Biltmore

WITH ANOTHER BRILLIANT SEASON about to wind up, returning resorters will arrive home with fond memories of their happy holiday at Dan Taylor's Palm Beach Biltmore hotel.

Mr. Taylor's Midas touch which turns everything he touches to gold, has resulted in the Biltmore, acquired by this steamship magnate three years ago, to roll up one of the most impressive records of any resort in the country.

Last season when Mr. Taylor announced that he would run at his own expense, a special train from West Palm Beach direct to the gates of Hialeah, members of this tranquil island colony were startled to say the least. However the train was so successful that Mr. Taylor increased its weekly operation from two to four days a week. This year its patrons were numbered among the top "socialites" of the country. The "race special" which comprised seven de luxe club cars and three air conditioned coaches will provide a number of new innovations next year, according to Mr. Taylor, and is now definitely a part of the Palm Beach pattern.

Another new feature of the Biltmore will be their brand new ocean front beach and cabana club, just a short distance from the old club. Mr. Taylor who purchased the R. Stuyvesant Pierpont mansion situated on one of the choice sections of Palm Beach will transform this beautiful estate into a modern comfortable beach and cabana club for the exclusive use of the Biltmore guests.

The Biltmore's register this year boasts many names of international note who wintered at Dan Taylor's sparkling twin-towered hostelry overlooking Lake Worth on one side and the blue Atlantic on the other.

The glamorous Princess Sforza Ruspoli of Rome who spent her honeymoon here five years ago flew over from Rome with her handsome Prince for a holiday accompanied by Italy's leading fashion designer Irene Medici and her husband Sylvio. Judy Garland internationally known entertainer who scored the greatest comeback in theatrical history this year occupied one of the ocean front suites for several weeks. Accompanying her was her manager Sid Luft who it is reported will marry Judy when her divorce degree becomes final. Papal Marquis George MacDonald also enjoyed his annual southern hegira at the Biltmore. James A. Farley Jr., son of the nationally known political figure Jim Farley and Mrs. Farley commuted between the Biltmore and Kingston, Jamaica this season. "Toots" Shor restaurant magnate whose New York eating house is known from coast to coast and is the mecca for leading sports figures, members of the "fourth estate" and stars of the radio, screen and stage checked into the Biltmore for several weeks.

One of the most unusual ventures of Palm Beach this season has been the "Ice Musicale" which appeared nightly in the swank West India Room of the Biltmore. Marking the first time that an ice show has ever appeared in Palm Beach, it starred such sparkling skating stars as Illona Vail undefeated champion of Austria and John Brett plus an all star cast of eight performers. The West India Room under the management of Thomas Doherty made a feature this season of French cuisine exclusively, which was under the direction of Chef Georges Mouton with John Ricca formerly of Bradley's as maitre d'. The West India Room with its romantic Sidewalk cafe has been the setting for some of the most important society dinner parties of the season here.

The Palm Beach Biltmore docks have been a bee-hive of activity all winter with the nation's most palatial yachts cruising in and out of port. Among some of the largest floating palaces were the "Spring Maid" from Fort Mills, South Carolina with Col. and Mrs. Elliott Springs on board—also the 120 foot Carola from Chicago, largest of all to dock. Owned by Chicago department store magnate Leon Mandel, such notables as General Batista who seized the reins of the Cuban government this month and singer Ethel Merman were among colorful personalities entertained during the Carola's ten day stay here.

James J. Farrell whose guiding hand has made the Biltmore what it is today observed his third season as managing director and this summer will be greeting many of the Biltmore guests at summer home, the Monmouth Hotel at Spring Lake, New Jersey.

Florida Architecture, Its Phases and Growth

entered also upon a building extravaganza which became one of the most spectacular in the architectural history of the country.

From St. Augustine to Key West Flagler created grand-scale hostels, representing many schools of architecture. The most lavish and an outstanding was the Ponce de Leon, in St. Augustine a rich colorful adaptation of early Spanish Renaissance. Occupying a city block, the great hotel is a monolithic structure composed of six parts coquina shell to one part cement, created after young architects of the famous firm of Carrere and Hastings spent two years abroad studying Spanish, Italian and French architecture.

In Palm Beach where Flagler built Whitehall in 1902 as his private residence, he also launched the resort with the building of the great and renowned Royal Poinciana and later the Breakers. Whitehall like the Ponce de Leon in St. Augustine was the result of architectural study abroad and combines the best features of the style and design of the Spanish and Italian Renaissance period. In similar style the Breakers of today was designed and built. But the Royal Poinciana for many years the largest wooden hotel in the world, boasting eight miles of corridors, was designed in Colonial style with clapboard walls, and shingled roofs.

Railroads held a monopoly on resort hotel building until after 1900 and few other mammoth ones were erected for the next two decades. Meanwhile many private dwellings built from native fortunes accrued from phosphate, cattle, timber, and turpentine appeared in the lowlands of the south.

South Florida did not experience a marked architectural renaissance until about 1920 when Addison Mizner brought a dominant influence, especially in Palm Beach.

Among the first to recognize that the Florida sky provided an incomparable background for a kaleidoscope flow of color, Mizner removed the iron bars and enlarged the openings and he is credited with introducing use of pecky-cypress for interior finish.

The successful result of Mizner's breaking away from current tradition resulted in an awakened interest of the architecture of Spain; and in Palm Beach perhaps more than any other place in Florida, architecture was influenced by recognition as to the possibilities of an outdoor life on every occasion. At this time many of the villas of the resort came into being with their bewitching loggias opening upon patios of glazed tile, presenting fountains, flowers, terraces and luncheon tables set between stately palms and orange trees.

With the building of the Everglades Club the Spanish type of architecture became universal in Palm Beach and by 1920 large Spanish estates had sprung up on every side—the architecture featuring towers, balconies and grills. Thus it is observed that this was the time Palm Beach began to gain renown as a resident colony, boasting homes equal in importance and elegance to those of the Riviera.

It is hardly fitting to discuss the architectural aspects of Palm Beach without mention of Marion Sims Wyeth who, as well as Mizner, designed many of the resort's homes and villas.

The process of architectural evolution in Florida from 1924 to 1938 saw a number of changes. A new scale of grandeur was achieved but no new type of architecture. Heretofore public buildings employed the use of columns both classic and Gothic but in the process of evolution these structures acquired classic porticoes and their clock towers grew into expansive domes. Both features disappeared a little later with the arrival of the neoclassic style, and use of cast stone and marble. The Sarasota Courthouse for example took the form of a Venetian campanile and ornamentation in general increased with the temperature, as business structures jugged up obelisklike. Pylons grew into heroic arches of triumph resplendent with ceramic tile and sculptured cast iron achieved an imposing effect and air of stability which was the architectural goal of the Boom period.

During the Boom, the Florida landscape became dotted with pretentious buildings around which towns were supposed to grow. Oft times they were left stranded in grand but stark isolation eventually used for purposes vastly different to those for which they were intended. One of the larger unfinished hotels near Miami for example, was turned into a poultry ranch and thousands of chickens perched in the lofty guest chambers.

Following the boom years there was a sharp departure from spurious effects and a more general use of native woods, stone and brick came into vogue. In a new innovation of building, utility played an important role and houses were built to live in rather than for the purpose of promoting sales. The new construction avoided the almost standard buff tint in favor of white with tile roofs, an idea borrowed from Bermuda.

A resume of Florida's progressive architectural history cannot be made without taking into account the cabana, a comparatively modern beach structure which today has become a rather elaborate facility for oceanside and seashore comfort. From a primitive single dressing room it has developed into a continuous composition with scores of units including a lounging room, dressing rooms and baths constructed oft times in a half-circle around a pool and attached to a central, luxuriously equipped club house. Chiefly Spanish in style at first, with shaded loggias and arcades facing an open court and the sea, the cabana has since undergone many changes but all the variations strive for riotous color effects, gay and exotic.

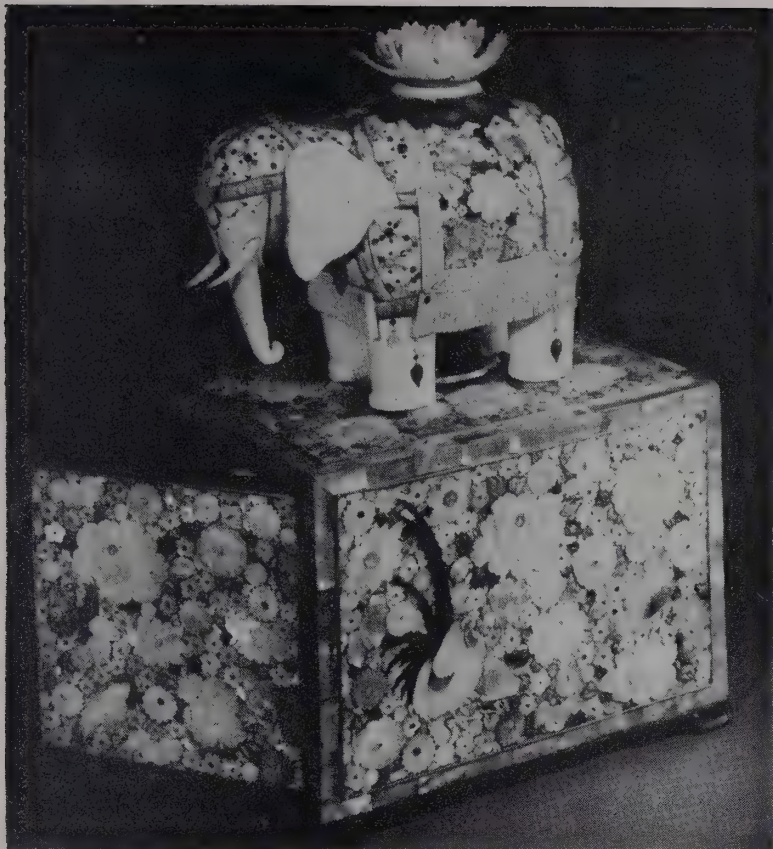

City zoning and planning have been in effect for many years in cities of Florida and the plans of all building, even to color and awnings must be approved by a city architect before construction begins.

Florida's three largest cities, Jacksonville, Tampa and Miami, portray architecturally, seven generations. Burned in 1901, Jacksonville rebuilt its business area giving it something of the atmosphere of the financial district in a northern city. Miami has the spectacular characteristics of a resort city of enormous and ornate hotels. Tampa on the other hand, with a few tall buildings is an industrial city with many flat-topped cigar factories of three and four-story red brick. In all three cities, outmoded business structures of the bay window, cupola and turret era still loom among the modernistic lines of the severe glittering fronts that are gradually replacing them.

Practically all cities and towns in the state have rigid building codes under which orderly construction proceeds, and factors that proved costly in the past, such as dry rot, inadequate windstress and termite damage now receive consideration along with design.

Architects have two organizations in the state of Florida: the Florida Association of Architects, concerned with legal and business aspects of building, and three chapters of the American Institute of Architects, which considers the ethical, cultural and professional phases of building and design.

HOW TO PROFIT THROUGH TAX EXEMPTION

Taxes are high today — may get higher tomorrow. If you're in a fairly high bracket and don't know how to profit through tax exempt securities, NOW IS THE TIME TO LEARN!

If your taxable income is over $16,000 you may be paying taxes, under present laws, of from 40% to 90% on some of your investments. You may be well repaid by an investigation of tax-exempt State and Municipal bonds. Yields on such investments can bring you as much net return as taxable securities yielding 8% or more.

OUR NEW BOOKLET, "HOW TO PROFIT THROUGH TAX-EXEMPTION"

explains in plain language your need for tax exemption, tells how much tax-exempt bonds can be worth to you. There's no obligation. Send for your copy today.

Winter Season — December 15th to April 15th

Summer Season — April 15th to September 1st

Traditionally British, thoroughly delightful . . . an hotel of great distinction, famous for the luxury of its appointments, the attentive service, and exquisite cuisine. A private beach and pool . . . tennis courts . . . palm-shaded walks through the exotic gardens . . . the gay air-conditioned Continental Room . . . all invite you to relax and enjoy every moment! Nearby are golf, polo, riding, water sports and, of course, Nassau's Bay Street with its fascinating shops and markets.

LOG-JAM...

For a person who has never settled an estate before, the job's many steps can pile up into a "log-jam" almost overnight. Struggling with tax questions and unfamiliar technical procedures, he may see the whole operation grind to a halt.

An expensive halt; mounting costs may mean less money for the estate's beneficiaries . . .

Only by naming an experienced executor can you make sure this will not happen to your estate. Executorship is a business; and because it is also our business, we've had practical training in avoiding "log-jams"—in settling estates quickly, along economical lines!

North County Road, a double parkway at this point, is another illustration of careful planning and attention to beauty in the development of Palm Beach. Casting their friendly shade over the road, the giant rubber trees stand sentinel along an inviting street.

Have a Fling at Spring!

Of course you know that spring comes early to the mid-Alleghanies. That's why we advise having a spring fling at The Greenbrier. You may golf on any of Greenbrier's three magnificent courses . . . canter along famous blue ribbon bridle-paths . . . or, if you will, sharpen up your tennis strokes on one of Greenbrier's sporty tournament courts.

Come evening, you may dance to the toe-tapping music of a Meyer Davis orchestra amid an atmosphere of light-hearted gaiety!

Have a fling this spring at The Greenbrier. Rates but $19 per day, per person—including Greenbrier's incomparable meals.

Driving south on South Ocean Boulevard, this is the 1100 block of one of the world's most fascinating streets. On the right is "Mar-a-Lago", the fabulous Joseph E. Davies estate, where Mr. Davies and his charming wife, the former Marjory Post have held some of Palm Beach's finest parties. In center is the Bath and Tennis Club.

Have your attention for a few minutes of your valuable reading time and present for your pleasure — “an announcement of our present new project — and “news” of our next development” — and extend to you a cordial invitation to “inspect our properties at your convenience”.

Delray Beach Shores:

A complete residential community. Something new and something different — “each lot a water-front property”, and located less than one-half mile South of Delray Beach on South Ocean Boulevard. This development is practically complete with only 70 water-front homesites, and located just across the street from the ocean, with one-half mile of choice property — of which one-quarter mile faces Ocean Boulevard and one-quarter mile on the deep Florida Intra-Coastal Waterway. Lots now priced at $6,000.00 each, and upwards.

Then -- our next -- “And we hope, history-making development” --

We are proud to present -- “The Presidential Colony of America.”

The land has already been conveyed to this company. Strictly an apartment area. Each building will be carefully planned and erected to “typify the particular period of architecture of each President”, and to be named in sequence for each of our former Presidents. For instance — “The Mount Vernon” for George Washington; “The Brick Colonial” for Thomas Jefferson; “The Log Cabin type for Abraham Lincoln”; and so forth.

Each building is to be of two stories in height, and to consist of four to twelve units in each building.

Our Executive Office will be “an exact replica” of The White House and will be used in the future as “The Administrative Building”.

Plans for “this coming historical development” are now in progress for 1953 completion.

Twenty Years Ago...

Tammany too, found Palm Beach a fair place to reside, the bungalow pictured here once occupied by the late Richard Croker, at one time head of New York City's Tammany Society. His wife was a full-blooded Cherokee Indian still residing in this vicinity, and the bungalow, an example of early Palm Beach architecture, was called "The Wigwam."

"BOXING TEAS" WERE A HIGHLIGHT of the Oasis Club program back in 1932, when this club was one of the important phases of life in Palm Beach. Boxing, with dancing between bouts, featured twice a month, was an outstanding event of the winter season. Sounds like fun!

Organized primarily as a residential club for bachelors, the Oasis Club held open house for feminine guests every afternoon, when tea was served in the tropical patio and there was dancing. The dance floor of multi-colored Zina tile, ran the length of the patio and was bordered by twelve palm trees; the gift of Mr. A. J. Drexel Biddle Jr. who was president of the Club. Other officers included: Messrs. Jules Bache, Maurice Fatio and Col. James A. Blair, vice-presidents; Mr. Christopher Dunphy, secretary and treasurer.

Opening on December 1, the Sea Spray Beach Club was a popular rendezvous of the early season for Palm Beach socialities. The membership in 1932 included the names of numerous outstanding personages of smart society, here and abroad. Among those noted frequently at this seaside club: Maj. and Mrs. Robert M. Stewart-Richardson of England; Juan Riano, former Spanish Ambassador to the United States and Rev. and Mrs. Roderick Terry who were guests of Mr. Stuyvesant Le Roy of Newport. Mr. and Mrs. Joel Massie and their daughters Olive and Patricia, were among those who enjoyed the delightful custom of remaining after their morning swim to lunch al fresco at the Club. Mrs. A. Minford Bond and son Mr. Minford Wolcott Bond, of the Waldorf Astoria, New York, always spent Sunday at Sea Spray.

The Sailfish Club of Florida, which had club rooms above the Poinciana Breakers Casino in 1932, was among the most active of the Palm Beach Clubs at this time. Tea dances were a daily feature and the annual fishing contest which opened in January and closed the middle of March, attracted widespread interest. Mr. David McCulloch was president; Mr. Ward Ames and Mr. Wiley R. Reynolds, vice-presidents; Mr. Francis A. Shaughnessy, secretary and treasurer. As in preceding years, the fishing fleet of the Sailfish Club was in the Royal Poinciana basin and was available to club members, hotel guests and winter visitors.

Luncheon at the Seminole Golf Club, was a Sunday habit with socialites back in '32, followed by a round of golf. Noted in the huge throngs which frequented this smart club: Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan Jr., who were spending the season with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn at Villa Oheka... the Grand Duke Dmitri, his wife Princess Anna Illynski and Major and Mrs. C. O. Marriott; Mr. Charles A. Munn, his daughters, the Misses Mary and Frances Drexel Munn and Brig. Gen. Critchley, their house guest; Mr. and Mrs. John C. King; Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas; Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy.

A new membership organization, the Colony-Ambassador Bath Club, located in the former J. Leonard Replogle estate, had a gala luncheon opening which was the talk of the town twenty years ago. Facilities of the club included a bathing beach and casino, dining room, spacious quarters for backgammon and bridge, locker rooms and cabanas, terrace beside the pool for al fresco luncheons and dinners.

Dancing every evening with Wednesday and Saturday night galas, were special features of the smart Colony Club in the Beaux Arts Gardens. Ernie Holst and his Colony Club orchestra furnished the music with Arthur Brown tenor soloist.

A dinner-dance-supper featured the season's opening, with a capacity crowd attending. Mr. Arthur C. Hand president, greeted the guests for the fourth consecutive year. Everyone was intrigued by the ingenious lighting effects. Among the many hosts at the opening dinner: Mr. Charles A. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams, Mrs. William Woods Plankinton, Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hammerstein.

Noted for superb food, the Beach Club had been a tradition in Palm Beach for many years, according to accounts

The bicycle discarded at the turn of the century came back into fashion in 1932 and that winter, sprouting all over the place like crocuses in the spring, the Royal Poinciana and Breakers hotels hustled to create parking facilities for the two-wheelers their guests found just right for a turn up the Lake Trail.

in Palm Beach Life of 1932." The longest established here and the club with a je ne sais quoi, the green and white dining room for luncheon and tea and the noted ivory room for dinner, have distinguished the world-famous Beach Club. Presided over by Jean Braca, who has seen it grow from a small and intimate club, to the brilliant meeting place it was during the boom days and now, to a reserved and conservative restaurant . . . and the favored dining spot in the resort."

The Florida Embassy Club was in its third season in 1932 and opened with a gay dinner-dance for members and their guests, music by Johnny Johnson and his orchestra. Noted for its tropical surroundings and beautiful building, the Embassy was one of the show places of the resort. The membership roster included many of the "best names" of the winter colony.

"One of the most exclusive meeting places for the elite of Palm Beach, the Bath and Tennis Club offers unlimited facilities for sports-minded socialites . . . swimming, tennis, handball courts, boxing ring, miniature golf course. The colorful cabanas dotting the sands and beneath the curving veranda of the clubhouse, adds to brilliant picture," wrote a reporter in Palm Beach Life. The cuisine was under the direction of George Lamaze whose Patio Lamaze in Palm Beach and New York, were internationally famous.

Officers of the Bath and Tennis in 1932 were: Mr. Edward F. Hutton, president; Mr. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. and Mr. Jay F. Carlisle, vice-presidents; Mr. R. O. Middleton, secretary.

An exciting conversation piece in Palm Beach during the 1932 season, was the sea cruise taken by Commodore Vincent Astor and Mr. William Rhinelanders Stewart aboard the former's yacht "Nourmahal" . . . for a penguin hunt in the Galapagos Islands and Haiti. A similar expedition by Commodore Astor, the previous year included Kermit Roosevelt, Robert Huntington, Suydam Cutting, Dr. Eugene Pool of the New York Hospital, Clarence Hay of the American Museum of Natural History, James P. Chapin, Elwin Samborn, H. K. Swenson, Dr. Townsend and Wilfred Brownson. They brought back specimens for the Museum, interesting photographs and an illuminating record of the voyage.

Mr. Edward T. Stotesbury's eighty-third birthday celebration February 26, 1932 at El Mirasol, was one of the outstanding events of the season. The many friends of the noted Philadelphia philanthropist were received by Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury in the patio of their villa. Other members of the family present were his daughters Mrs. J. Kearsley Mitchell of Villa Nova, Pa. and Mrs. Sydney Emlen Hutchinson and her daughter Frances of Philadelphia. More than a hundred guests extended their good wishes to Mr. Stotesbury during the memorable afternoon.

The pleasant custom of exchanging friendly greetings on New Year's Day is an old Palm Beach custom and for the fifteenth season, Mr. Addison Mizner was host at one of the most interesting of these gala affairs . . . back in '32. An excerpt from Palm Beach Life noted "Receiving with Mr. Mizner in his fabulous apartment were his niece Mrs. McKim Hollins and her husband of Pebble Beach, Calif."

Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Amory, Mrs. Reginald Boardman, Mr. Clifford V. Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund LeRoy Dow, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Fabbri, Mr. and Mrs. Quentin F. Feitner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Fair, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio, Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen, Mr. and Mrs. Gail Grant, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Phipps, Mr. and Mrs. Porte F. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Replogle, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff, Mrs. Dodge Sloane, Mr. and Mrs. H. Halpine Smith, Mr. John L. Sanford, Miss Jane Sanford, Mrs. Edward Shearson, Bishop and Mrs. N. S. Thomas, Mrs. John Charles Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. J. Leonard Thomas, Capt. and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson, Miss Mary Brown Warburton.

Major and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Sims Wyeth, Mr. Milton W. Holden, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. John C. King, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Kroger, Mr. and Mrs. George Luke Mesker, Mr. Charles A. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Ector O. Munn, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Major, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock, Mr. and Mrs. David Hugh McCulloch, Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Macomber, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oakes, Mr. and Mrs. Lucius P. Ordway, Mr. Larry Waterbury, Mr. and Mrs. Horace H. Work, Mrs. William Seward Webb, Major and Mrs. Elisha D. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. John Clawson.

Of interest to the elite of Palm Beach at this time, was the wedding of Miss Harriet Dyer Price and Mr. Howard

The first big boat to accommodate passengers over Lake Worth was appropriately called "The Lake Worth."

Phipps, which was one of the outstanding social events of October 1932 in New York. After a wedding trip in Europe, they came to Florida for the winter, occupying their house on Ocean Boulevard, near Gulfstream.

During this season, winter colonists were talking about the Palm Beach Playhouse which made its debut in 1931... founded by Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, the former Miss Muriel McCormick. The second year the Playhouse opened with the sprightly comedy, "Let Us Be Gay" by Rachel Crothers and featured a cast of young professionals with interesting theatrical background. The brilliant first night audience included virtually all of the leading Palm Beach socialites.

A unique cause provided the inspiration for an interesting affair, attended by important members of the cottage colony and hotel guests. A "Sportsmen's Ball", given at the Anglers and Sports Club, for the benefit of a fund to prevent illegal netting of fish in Lake Worth. Mrs. John Charles Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, sponsored the affair and entertained at a buffet dinner at her home Casa Beata, for a large number of friends, preceding the party. Among those attending... Mr. and Mrs. Horace A. Work, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sweatt, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allenton Cushman, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Shaughnessy, Mr. Theodore C. Hollander, Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne.

Among the many social events honoring Prince and Princess Vasili, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn at Villa Oheka, was the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio of Villa Del Mar. Guests included Major and Mrs. John C. O. Marriott, Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. B. Widener 2d, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somers Roche, Miss Sarah Jane Sanford, Mr. Joseph E. Widener, Mr. John P. Wemple, Capt. Boyd Rochfort.

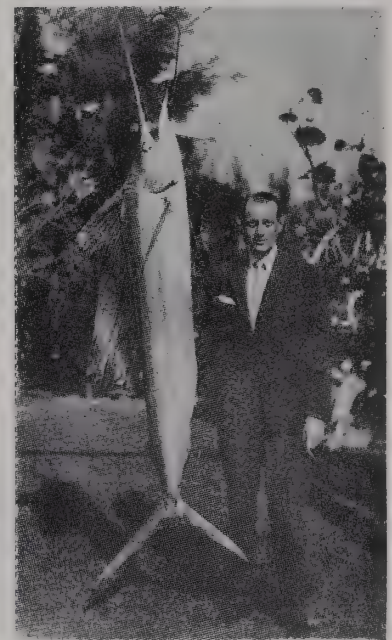

February 1, 1932 ushered in the ninth season of the Society of Arts, pioneer among the musical organizations of Palm Beach. Mr. Edward T. Stotesbury was president of the Society, which included in its membership the most prominent Palm Beach socialites. Mr. John S. Pillsbury was vice president and Mr. Henry Seligman, secretary and treasurer, with the following added board of directors: Mr. Chester C. Bolton, Mrs. John F. Harris and Mr. John S. Phipps.

As in several seasons past, according to an account in Palm Beach Life of that year, the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra gave the opening concert and members were quite excited by the new conductor, Eugene Ormandy. "Welcomed by critics as a young genius of the baton, Eugene Ormandy has become a sensation during the short space of a few months. First, as guest conductor of the famous Philadelphia Symphony and later, by his stupendous performances with the Minneapolis Symphony, both before and since his appointment as conductor. Also, by his remarkable success as musical head of the Columbia Broadcasting System."

With the exception of the Symphony concert, which was held in the Paramount Theatre, the other musical events of the Society of Arts, took place in the Everglades Club. The 1932 season's concerts included: John Charles Thomas, baritone; Efrem Zimbalist, violinist; Myra Hess, pianist; Claudia Muzio, soprano.

The present Society Of The Four Arts, developed from the original "Society of Arts."

Among other cultural advantages offered to winter colonists of Palm Beach during 1932, were the popular Current Events Lectures. "Men of wide experience in the analysis of world affairs, will speak before the members this winter and the program as arranged by Mrs. John R. Bryden, director of the course, is replete with interest," noted a Palm Beach Life story.

Sport fishing, one of the "big three" in outdoor divertisement in Palm Beach, gave golf keen competition back in 1932 and judging by old records, leading socialities were very adept at the popular sport. For instance, this tidbit culled from the archives of that era... "An interesting party was that of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pulitzer, Miss Grace Amory and Mr. Charles Amory Jr.; Miss Amory landed two beautiful 'sails' and Mr. Charles Amory brought a sailfish to gaff, after a spirited struggle."

From the same resume of "fish stories"... Grand Duke Dmitri of Paris, France, house guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan Jr. landed one of the largest sailfish of the season, when he brought in a fine specimen weighing seventy-five pounds, measuring eight feet, one and a half inches. Miss Louise Iselin, guest of Mrs. Harrison Williams, also made a record catch... an eight foot, two inch sailfish, tipping the scales at seventy-four pounds.

Washington Letter

Dear Dora,

A large reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. A. Burks Summers to compliment Senator and Mrs. Styles Bridges, of New Hampshire. The reason for the gathering of friends from diplomatic, official, congressional, service and residential circles was to congratulate the Republican lawmaker on being made minority leader at the opening of the second session of the 82nd Congress.

If the next Chief Executive is a Republican, Senator Bridges automatically becomes the powerful President Pro Tempore of the Senate, he having served the longest time of any Republican Senator in the Senate.

The Summerses, prominent in the Republican activities, own Holly Oaks Estate out in Rockville, Md., which was the party setting. The residence of white stone is built with columns on Greek renaissance lines and looks somewhat like a "little White House."

A buffalo skull with red lights as eyes and a white face, acted as a beacon for the parking lot. It is one of the host's prizes, shot on an African safari. There was the bar set up inside the trophy hallway which is covered with zebra skins.

Blonde and pretty Doloris Bridges received in the line with the popular Helen Summers in a pure silk hyacinth-mauve frock fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline. There were orchids and tall white tapers gracing the dining table and a dozen or so Republican ladies assisting the hostess. Among this group was Mrs. Harold H. Burton, Mrs. Owen Brewster, Mrs. George Malone, Mrs. Lowell Stockman, Mrs. Fred Britten and Mrs. Harold Walker.

The gayest of parties was the gala reception given by popular Representative and Mrs. Clark Wallace Thompson, of the Lone Star State, for Speaker Sam Rayburn, one of the leading lights of Texas. Topping the list of about 300 of Washington's best were President and Mrs. Truman, who made "a must" of getting to the Clarks' delightful party.

The Texas women always stand out at a party, as they are among the best dressed in the capital. There were familiar faces all around, and it seemed strange to see the beaming President shaking hands and talking happily with the guests. It is a rare party that doesn't find him in the receiving line.

Saw Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer, of Peru; Chief Justice and Mrs. Vinson, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Ambassador and Madame Koo, who don't go to many parties these days; the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de la Colina, and attractive Luz de Osa, daughter of the Chilean Ambassadors.

There was chit-chat that Minister Mesta, of Luxembourg, is slated to be our new Ambassador to Belgium, succeeding Robert Murphy, who will become the new envoy to Japan. Well, it was just one of those gloriously successful parties from beginning to end and just shows what the warm-hearted real Texas spirit can do.

Distinguished authoress Donna Degna Paresce, patrician Italian-Irish beauty and daughter of inventor of the wireless Marconi, returned from Italy this fall and moved into the Paresces' handsome new McGill Terrace home.

Signora Paresce is the wife of Italian press counselor Gabriele Paresce, and the mother of a handsome little son, Francesco Paresce. Her book on the fascinating life of her famous father she hopes to have on the press in the late spring. She visited her mother, Madame Marconi, who is the daughter of Lord Inchiquin, of Ireland, and who has a villa between Rome and Florence, while gathering further material for her book.

This will be the first book ever written about Marconi the man, and will be dedicated to her young son, says Signora Paresce in her clear, crisp English accent. She spent many years of her youth in England.

Washington's youngest Ambassador, Dr. Hipolito J. Paz (age 35), and his chic, slim wife gave their first reception recently since taking over the French-style embassy residence on Q Street that used to be the home of Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay, of the capital, widow of onetime United States Ambassador to Argentina.

The host and hostess have been in and out of the city frequently since they became part of the embassy colony. They were recently in Paris, where the Ambassador headed up his country's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly meetings. They returned in time to celebrate Christmas with their two little youngsters, ages 3 and 1.

The young Ambassador was formerly Minister of Foreign Affairs. Senora de Paz is the former Carmen Gomez Errazuriz, granddaughter of Indalecio Gomez, political writer-diplomat who served as Argentine Ambassador in Germany. Mrs. Robert Low Bacon was there among the many, and Madame Benard, of the French Embassy, said she was expecting the former French counselor, Francois Charles-Roux, here as their house guest. Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins was there, as was Assistant Secretary of State for Latin America Edward G. Miller and his pretty wife.

Another Embassy affair was the Dominican Republic's party. The Embassy was in holiday dress, with Ambassador de Thomen and his wife receiving at a 6-to-8 reception.

Madame Thomen was in a pretty garnet red dress and was assisted by Senora de Vega, wife of the Minister Counselor. The Cabinet and Embassies were well represented, and I saw Secretary of Commerce Sawyer (who spends lots of time in Palm Beach), the Charles F. Brannans, Mrs. Edward F. Bartlett, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and the new Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Overby.

Flash bulbs caught Gen. Carlos Romulo, who is the new Ambassador from the Philippines, and attractive, silver-haired Lady Lewis. Oh, then there were the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Lequerica; the Ambassador of Uruguay, and dozens of Washingtonians, including the T. Peter Ansberrys and Mrs. James H. Gilman. The lavish buffet was a picture. It featured many south-of-the-border specialties, including "Arroz Paella," which seemed to be the favorite.

Jimmie Parks gave a fine cocktail party at his suite in the Fairfax Hotel, which was filled with mimosa and yellow tulips and women in pretty spring hats. The guests came early and stayed late. I saw Prince and Princess Colonna, of Rome; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Glover, the Meade Patricks, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Hollister Sturgess, and her nephew, Hugh Barbour Hutchinson, Jr.; Hazel Edgar, and Elovius Mangor, of the Norwegian Embassy, who with his wife, Alma, returned recently from Europe.

Mr. Burks Summers, Senator and Mrs. Styles Bridges and Mrs. Burks Summers.

Mrs. Richard Cowell was there, as were Mrs. Randall Hagner and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis.

I hear that Angier Biddle Duke, who was the right hand of Ambassador Stanton Griffis, of Spain, has his heart set on being an ambassador himself. His friends say Mr. Duke did a good job in Spain, and before that in Argentina, and that since his return to the United States the State Department has been considering sending him as Ambassador to El Salvador. Gossip has it that if he goes, he will go alone.

Mrs. J. Carroll Cone, who is prominent in social and charitable circles in the capital, gave a luncheon this week honoring Mrs. Dallas Sherman, who is visiting in Washington from Tokyo, and Miss Madeline Cuniff, of New York City.

Attending were Mrs. John L. McClellan, wife of the Senator from Arkansas, who just returned from a Cuban trip; Mrs. John Shugrue, Mrs. Willis Ballinger, Mrs. Curtis Shears and Mrs. J. Lee Murphy. Mrs. Sherman was complimented at another luncheon the next day given by Mrs. Milton Arnold, wife of Brigadier General Arnold, U. S. A. F.

Expected to be the first guests in the newly redecorated White House come April are Queen Juliana, of Holland, and Prince Bernhard, the Royal Consort. April 2 is the day set for their arrival and during their four-day stay there will of course be the President's dinner in their honor the first night, followed by another hosted by the Secretary of State, and other festivities arranged by the Netherlands Embassy.

Well, darling, that just about does it for this year. Much love, and write me when things slow there a little, if ever.

Sincerely,

GARNETT.

Sports Winding Up Winter Season

THE OLD GUARD SOCIETY of Palm Beach Golfers conducted its annual invitation mixed foursome tournament again this year, with Mrs. Harvey Mack, husband of one of the members from Easton, Pa., teaming with William B. Langford of Chicago to win the title. They defeated Mrs. Frieda Nolan and Shel Greer, 3 and 2, in the finals, an eight-stroke difference in handicaps helping them to triumph. Consolation honors went to Mr. and Mrs. Rosser Huff, who defeated Mr. and Mrs. William Dyer, 2 and 1, in the finals.

Twenty-eight teams started the tournament, the only Old Guard event of the season open to women. Among them were the defending champions, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McAuliffe. They got past the first round, beating Mrs. George Desler and Albert B. Drake, but they were beaten in the second round by Mrs. J. Clyde Hooker and P. A. Bennett. Meanwhile, the eventual winners—Mrs. Mack and Langford—gave eight strokes and defeated Mr. and Mrs. Dan Scott, 6 and 4, in the first round; accepted one stroke and gained a 1 up win over Mrs. B. Brown and John Butler in the second round; accepted four strokes handicap from Carol Gallagher and Hayden Storz and won the third round match by 3 and 2; and in the semi-finals they overcame a seven-stroke handicap to beat Mrs. W. J. Pulver and Charles E. Wertman, 5 and 4.

Mrs. Edith Gibbs Hasler carried off most of the top feminine honors in tennis this season. She won the women's singles titles of the Bath and Tennis Club and the Sea Spray Club, but in the finals of the Everglades Club championships she lost to Rhoda Hopkins, one of the nation's leading players, 6-1, 6-0. Robert Terry won the men's singles at the Everglades Club, beating George Clark in the finals, 6-4, 6-2. The following day, Miss Hopkins and Terry won the mixed doubles, defeating Mr. and Mrs. John Van Ryn, 6-2, 6-1.

One of the late season tombstone tournaments at the Everglades Club was won by Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Meehan, who were allowed 53 swings and used them to get within six feet of the hole on the 12th green. In second place that day were Mr. and Mrs. J. Clyde Hooker, whose 51 strokes took them 150 yards of the 12th hole. Mrs. J. W. Fribley and R. J. Wean were third, 365 yards from No. 12 in 49 strokes. In 11 were Mrs. E. G. Brown—Chris Connell, who had 52, and Mr. and Mrs. William Klopman (51).

Short of the 11th hole were Mrs. Hamilton Pell and John Cushman, 47, 8 inches; Mrs. R. J. Wean and J. W. Fribley, 53, 11 yards; Mrs. F. Wilhelm and H. B. Henry, 53, 12 yards; Mrs. J. E. McAuliffe and J. L. Terry, 52, 30 yards; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Walter, 53, 31 yards; Mrs. J. Schoonmaker and R. P. Kelley, 52, 35 yards; Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Corya, 58, 40 yards, and Mrs. John Cushman and Hamilton Pell, 57, 150 yards. Stopping before 10 were Mrs. Verna Reed and Herman Huffer, 53, 1 inch; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rea, 51, 6 inches; Mr. and Mrs. Hal C. Rich, 50, 2 feet; Mr. and Mrs. P. Sanvorne, 52, 1 yard; Mrs. R. Edwards and L. T. Kissam, 50, 1 yard; Mrs. W. B. Ansted and J. R. Berdan, 51, 12 yards; Mr. and Mrs. John Small, 55, 20 yards; Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Lyeth, 55, 20 yards; Mrs. James H. Howard and Talmadge Woodward, 46, 20 yards, and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Gillmore, 51, 220 yards. In No. 9 were Mrs. E. F. Hutton and H. C. Brokaw, 55; Mrs. C. Crocker and Gen. R. Robertson, 57; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Smith, 53, and Mrs. Theodore Stemmler and G. Ulmer, Jr. 53.

A hole-in-one was made on March 12 by Francis L. Quillinan of Rye, N. Y. He used a 3-iron for the 200-yard shot on the 12th hole of the Palm Beach Golf Club. It was his first ace. Playing with him, and shooting a deuce on the same hole, was Tom Powers of New York City.

The two teams for the annual Society Softball Game were known this year as the Everglades and Bath and Tennis Club, the former winning by 12-11. A record crowd of more than a thousand attended, with movie star Judy Garland and Mayor James Owens forming the battery and Connie Mack, 89-year-old president of the Philadelphia Athletics, batting in special pre-game ceremonies. Playing for the Everglades were Earl E. T. Smith, movie star Peter Lawford, Ross Carlino, Bob Rasmussen, Ted Bassett, Jim Kenney, Fred Dapasidera, Philadelphia Athletics Coach Wally Moses, Bill Borman, J. Woolworth Donahue, Tom Shevlin, John Robell and Herbert Farrell, Jr. Bath and Tennis players were Johnny Cardegna, Athletics Manager Jimmy Dykes, Athletics Coach Bing Miller, Frankie Ross, Tom Clark, Page Hufty, John Van Ryn, Robert Terry, John Gayer, Peter Perkins, Jeff Webster, George Dempsey, Raymond Kunkel, Robert Grace, A. Parker Bryant, Peter Ordway, and Byron Saam.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold B. Chace captured top prizes in one weekly tombstone golf tournament at the Seminole Club. They placed their 48th stroke 30 yards from the 11th hole. Second place went to Mrs. Alfred Cernadas and Gordon Douglas, Jr., whose 53 strokes found them 330 yards from No. 11. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Bradley, Jr., with 47 strokes, were tied for third in the 10th cup with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Butler, who were allowed 53 swings. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spalding, 43, were three feet from No. 10, as were Mr. and Mrs. Marion S. Wyeth in 52. Mrs. V. C. Spalding and R. P. Kelley had 50 strokes and came within five feet of 10 to tie with Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Redmond, who had 49. Mrs. Hamilton Pell and J. W. Tamany, 52, were 140 yards from 10. Finishing in the ninth cup were Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Shields, 52; Mr. and Mrs. Eric Loder, 53; Mrs. Paul Scheerer and W. B. McIlvaine, 46; Mrs. J. W. Tamany and Hamilton Pell, 52; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Babcock, 48; Mrs. Charles Payson and J. H. French, 53, and Mr. and Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, 46.

Marjorie Kelly and Abbey Weller turned back Mrs. Margaret Lewisohn and Greg Lawrence, 6-2, in a playoff of sectional winners in a mixed doubles round-robin tournament at Charley Wood's Coral Beach Tennis Club. The winners had topped their division by winning 17 games and losing seven. Two games back of them were Mrs. O'Malley Keyes and J. B. Carr. Anne Weller and George Boman won nine games and Mrs. Robert Ackerman and Maurice Ferris won seven. The three top teams of the other section finished only single games apart. Mrs. Lewisohn and Lawrence won 15 and lost nine, Mrs. Joseph Walker and Kenneth Ives won 14, Carol Dyer and John Pardridge won 13, and tied at nine wins were the teams of Louise Duquet-Alfred Lyons and Phyllis Woote-Lazarre Baker.

Robert Sweeny and Robert R. Young won the Wolcott Blair Cup four-ball member-guest handicap golf tournament at the Seminole Club with a record score of 59, 13 strokes under par. A record field of 65 teams contested the cup. Sweeny had a 2-stroke handicap, while Young's was nine. Thomas A. Bradley, Jr., with a 12 handicap and J. Sullivan, 9, placed second at 63. Allan Minter, 9, and Walter T. Shirley, 11, were third with 66. Other scores were:

67—Charles Spalding, 7, and Harry Daumit, 5; Charles Terry, 15, and James Maver, Jr., 3; D. J. Donovan, 16, and
